WHO IS HE?

Thousands have searched for him. He has been seen in the garb of a convict. He is wanted in every community. Millions have been deceived by him. He has been entertained by Royalty. He has baffled the police. He doesn't remain in one place long. His methods are of a secret nature. He has caused many arguments. Many have copied him, but they have all been caught. He has many admirers. He lives the best he can. He moves in the best society. He has never been known to work. He requires close watching. He is sure to get your money. His ideas are his own.

The first letter received giving the correct name of the person described above will receive the first three guineas which this gentleman takes from the public. He is sure to get yours. This is your only opportunity of getting some of his. Address your letter, "Deceiver," Stage Door, Criterion.

THE FUN FILM OF THE YEAR,
THE NIGHT THE LOST MENAGERIE FOUND BINGVILLE.

Tigers underneath the bed,
Monkeys squirming overhead!
Serpents, alligators creeping
Where the servant girl was sleeping!
What a time there was that night,
When the Sheriff died from fright!
The time the wrecked menagerie wrecked Bingville.
See the cook, all crazed with fear,
Try to slay a snake with beer!
Watch the Mayor, in terror flying,
Trying all he knew, yes, trying
To get out of town that night!
Tho' he knew it wasn't right
To let the scared menagerie scare Bingville.
And the man who sold the meat—
Watch the swiftness of his feet,
When six lions, gaunt and grim,
Try to take bites out of him!
What a mess the big brutes made,
In the little time they stayed!
That night the starved menagerie bit Bingville.
Oh, the times that Bingville had,
All the people jumping mad—
Running, swearing, screaming, falling,
Fighting, climbing, fainting, bawling—
Striving to get out of there—
Out from where the wild beasts were
The night the lost menagerie found Bingville.

"ROSE DAY" NEXT SATURDAY.

From early morning until late at night next Saturday thousands of Ladies will appeal for contributions in the streets of the City and Suburbs on behalf of fifty-six noble charities of Sydney. These embrace institutions for the Blind, the Deaf, the Sick, the Destitute, the Fatherless, the Crippled, and the Incurable, regardless of Race or Creed.

THE DAY IS DEDICATED TO CHARITY.

All that is needed is money, and unto everyone who gives will be given a rose, "the mother of flowers." The rose is the chosen symbol of charity for the day.

IT IS IMPORTANT THAT ALL GROWERS OF ROSES SHOULD CO-OPERATE. Those who have not arranged to give blooms to the collectors in the different suburbs and city areas will assist materially by bringing as many as possible into Sydney early on Saturday morning. Depots have been arranged at the following centres:—Central Railway Station, for all growers for all lines terminating there; Circular Quay, at the respective wharves of Parramatta, Lane Cove, North Sydney, Neutral Bay, Mosman, Cremorne, Manly, and Watson's Bay ferries; Town Hall, for Leichhardt, Balmain, Forest Lodge, Annandale, Abbotsford, and all trams converging on George-street; Mark Foy's and corner of King and Elizabeth streets for all trams from Bellevue Hill and Waverley; King and Elizabeth street corner also for trams from Rose Bay, Darling Point, and Edgecliff.

ALL COLLECTORS ARE EARNESTLY REQUESTED TO SECURE THEIR OWN SUPPLIES. It is also urged, so as to be in keeping with the spirit of the day, that all collection stands should be florally decorated.

CARNEGIE AND SONS

(Temporary Address During Rebuilding),

333 GEORGE-STREET, SYDNEY.

THIS is addressed to those mothers of girls and boys who are beginning to be afraid that "music simply isn't in" their children, it's so hard to keep them interested in it.

SHE PRACTISED AND SHE PRACTISED —BUT SHE NEVER LEARNED TO PLAY.

Surely you never heard of a child who didn't love music. But practising—that's another matter. Nothing is harder or more tiresome work, especially when there are other things going on—evening parties or outside games.

There's only one way to make practising less hard and less tiresome—that is to keep in the front of your boys' or girls' minds the fact that some day they are going to be good players, musicians.

But how?

Incentive! They should know what good music is and what good playing is. If you could play and would play for them, they couldn't ask for a better incentive. They would practise till their fingers ached to learn to play as well.

But you don't play. And that is why you need the Steck PIANOLA Piano to give your children the incentive you yourself can't give them. Keeping up their interest will be the least of your worries when a PIANOLA Piano comes into your home.

Do you think, because anyone can play the Steck PIANOLA Piano, that they will lose interest or become discouraged with their own efforts?

No! They will practise as never before—to be able to do with their own two hands what the PIANOLA Piano does so perfectly. It is the greatest incentive in the world to make girls and boys want to be good players and try to be.

And then think of your world of beautiful music, of finished masterly playing, to offset the finger exercises and scales you listen to while your children are still beginners.

The Steck Pianola Piano, whose wonders as a Player-piano are not equalled by any other at any price, is an instrument ideally unmechanical and mysteriously sympathetic to your slightest expression and modulations.

Come and hear it to-day. We ask you to be our guest without obligation of any kind.

If unable to call let us send you a Catalog of the Steck Pianola Piano. We will send it free if you will ask for Catalog R.

TORIC LENSES.

The most SCIENTIFIC LENSES ever made. Owing to their curve, which corresponds with the shape of the eye, the visual angle is largely increased, and they can be worn closer to the eyes.

This increases the field of vision, thus making TORIC LENSES very comfortable to wear.

Distortion, which is so objectionable with the old, flat lenses, is practically done away with when using TORICS.

TORIC LENSES, by reason of their curved shape, prevent even the longest eyelashes from touching the glass.

Have your glasses fitted with TORIC LENSES, and obtain all the comforts Science can give you.

CHAPTER VI.

THE MEETING.

When Power arrived at New England's chief summer resort on a glorious July morning twenty-two years ago man had only succeeded in adding a garish fringe to a quietly beautiful robe devised by nature. Some few pretentious houses had been built, but local residences in the mass made up an architectural hotch-potch utterly at variance with sylvan solitude and breezy cliffs. Rhode Island, which lends its name to the entire State, is slightly larger than Manhattan. A long south-westerly spur shields from the mighty rages of the Atlantic the little bay on which the old town of Newport stands, but the climate has the bracing freshness which is almost invariably associated with the northern half of that great ocean. If the bare rudiments of artistry existed among the idle rich who overran the island during the eighties it should have protected a charming blend of sea-shore and grassy downs from the Italian palaces, Rhenish castles, Swiss chalets, and donjon keeps which the freakish conceits of plutocrats placed cheek by jowl along the coast. Nowadays, these excrescences are either swallowed in forests of well-grown trees or have become so beautified by creepers that they have lost much of their bizarre effect, while magnificent avenues, carefully laid out and well shaded, run through a new city of delightful villas and resplendent gardens. But Power's first stroll from the portals of the Ocean House revealed a medley in which bad taste ran riot. The Casino, a miserable-looking structure, was saved from dismal mediocrity by its splendid lawns alone; the surf-bathers' friends were protected from the fierce sun by a long, low shanty built of rough planks; the roads were unkempt, and ankle-deep in mud or dust; broken-down tenements alternated with mansions; a white marble replica of some old Florentine house, stuck bleakly on one knob of a promontory, was scowled at by a heavy-jowled fortress cumbering its neighbour.

He found these things irritating. They were less in harmony with their environment than the corrugated iron roofs of Bison. His gorge rose at them. They satisfied no aesthetic sense. In a word, he resolved to get through his business with the horse-fancying judge as speedily as might be, and escape to the unspoiled wilderness of Maine.

Were it not for one of those minor accidents which at times can exert such irresistible influence on the course of future events, he would certainly have left Newport without ever being aware of Mrs. Marten's presence there. He ascertained that the judge had gone off early in the morning on a yachting excursion up Narragansett Bay, having arranged to lunch at a friend's house at Pawtucket, so, perforce, he had to wait in Newport another day.

At dinner he was allotted a seat at a large round table reserved for unattached males like himself. The company was a curiously mixed one, but pleasant withal. A Norwegian from San Francisco, who sold Japanese curios, a globe-trotting Briton, a Southerner from Alabama, a man from Plainville, New Jersey, and a Mexican who spoke no English, made up, with Power himself, a genuinely cosmopolitan board, and Power soon discovered that he was the only person present who could understand the Mexican. Mere politeness insisted that he should lend his aid as interpreter when a negro waiter asked the olive-skinned senhor what he would like to eat; but the "Greaser," as he was dubbed instantly, proved to be a jovial soul, who laughed when any of the other men laughed, insisted on having the joke translated, and roared again when it was explained to him, so that each quip earned a double recognition, while he never failed to pay his own score by some joyous anecdote or amusing repartee. Thus Power was forced into the role of "good fellow" in a way which he would not have believed possible a few hours earlier. In spite of himself, the merry mood of other years came uppermost, and when the party broke up at midnight, after a long and lively sitting on a moonlit verandah, he retired to his room with a certain feeling of marvel and agreeable surprise at the change which one evening of enforced relaxation had effected in his outlook on life. He decided that these chance companions had done him a world of good, that his misanthropic attitude was a false one, and that a week or two at Newport might send him back to Colorado a better man. Applying to a state of mind a metaphor drawn from material things, he felt as the stay-at-home Briton feels who leaves his own dripping and fog-bound island on a January afternoon and wakes next morning amid the roses and sunshine of the Riviera. The glitter on land and sea may bear a close resemblance to spangles and gilt paper on the stage, but it is cheering to eyes which have not seen the sun for weeks, and when, in such conditions, John Bull sits down to luncheon under the awnings of a cafe facing the blue Mediterranean he is unquestionably a quite different being from the muffled-up person who hurried on board the steamer at Dover.

Power had contrived to withdraw himself so completely from the more genial side of existence at Bison that he rediscovered it with a fresh zest. Next day he was no longer alone. The man from Birmingham, Alabama, and his own fellow-countryman shared his love of horses, and the three visited the judge, who stabled some of his cattle on the island, and had photographs and pedigrees galore wherewith to describe the stock on his New York farm.

So Power stayed two days, and yet a third, and he was laughing with the rest at some quaint bit of Spanish humour which he had translated for the benefit of the company at dinner on the third evening, when he became aware that a lady, entering with a large party, for whose use a table had been specially decorated, was standing stock still and looking at him. He lifted his eyes, and met the astonished gaze of Mrs. Marten.

"Derry!" she gasped.

"Nancy!" said he, wholly off his guard, and flushing violently in an absurd consciousness of having committed some fault. She had caught him, as it were, in a boisterous moment utterly at variance with the three years of self-imposed monasticism which followed her marriage. Yet with the speed of thought, he saw the futility of such reasoning. The girl-wife knew nothing of his sufferings. She was greeting him with all the warmth of undiminished friendship, and could not possibly understand that he had endured tortures for her sake. So he regained his wits almost at once, and was on his feet, bowing.

"I beg your pardon, Mrs. Marten," he went on. "Your presence here took me completely unawares. You are the last person breathing I expected to see in Newport."

She laughed delightedly, with no hint of flurry or confusion beyond that first natural outburst.

"It would sound much nicer if you said what I am going to say to you," she cried, "that you are one of the few persons breathing whom I am really delighted to see in Newport. But I can't stop to talk now. I'll ask Mrs. Van Ralten to forgive me if I slip away from her party for 10 minutes after dinner. Mind you wait for me on the verandah. I'm simply dying to hear some news of dear old Bison. How is Mac? Oh, my, I really must go. But don't you dare escape afterwards."

Forgetful of all else, he allowed his startled eyes to follow her as she ran to her place at the neighbouring table. She was dressed in some confection of white tulle and silver; a circlet of diamonds sparkled in her thick brown hair; a big ruby formed a clasp in front for an aigrette of osprey plumes; her robes and bearing were those of a princess. Were it not for the warranty of his senses, he would never have pictured the girl of the Dolores rancho in this fine lady. Even now he stood as one in a trance, half incredulous of the evidence of eyes and ears, and seemingly afraid lest he might awake and come back to the commonplaces of an existence in which the Nancy Willard of his dreams had no part.

The newly-arrived Briton, Dacre by name, knew something of the world and its denizens, and he had seen the blood rush to his friend's face and ebb away again until the brown skin was sallow.

"Sit down, old chap," he said quietly. "I was just thinking of ordering some wine for the public benefit. Do you drink fizz?"

The calm voice helped to restore Power's bemused senses. Afraid lest his moonstruck attitude might have been observed by some of Mrs. Marten's companions, he tried to cover his confusion by a jest.

"Wine, did you say?" he cried. "Certainly; let's have a magnum. Bottled sunlight should help to dissipate visions."

"Anacreon has something to that effect in one of his odes, though he vowed that he worshipped wine, women, and the muses in equal measure."

LOCAL GOVERNMENT.

OUR STATE SYSTEM.

MUNICIPALISM AT WORK.

THE STATE AND PUBLIC HEALTH.

It is significant that, for the first time in the history of the State, a "policy speech" has contained a section devoted to public health. This shows the growing regard in the minds of our statesmen for its importance. It is notorious that politicians are reluctant to get in advance of public opinion on any subject. The pioneering is usually done by the enthusiast, who, by the way, usually gets little or no acknowledgment when his aspirations are realised, after having been "commandeered" by the active political leader. However, it has been noted for some time that our political leaders have been extremely sympathetic towards those philanthropic movements for the betterment of public health which have been pioneered by private individuals. The public are becoming more enlightened as to the wonderful ameliorations which are possible by active public measures in the regions of disease and death; and the statesman can hardly ignore measures which, it is apparent to everyone, are a pressing public need. Doubtless the minds of both the public and the politician have been influenced by the occurrence of sudden epidemics like plague and smallpox, and also by the startling figures showing the ravages of less startling and dramatic diseases which are preventable if timely measures are taken by the State. The present Government must be commended on having inaugurated a new era in that policy of organised attack upon preventable disease which is being accepted all the world over. When it is also the policy of the State—and a vital plank—that population is to be attracted from abroad, it should surely be within the range of statesmanship to preserve to the State the precious lives of those born on the soil. Besides, the crippling of our workers and creators of national wealth, through diseases caused by mitigable conditions, has long been recognised as an unpardonable waste of valuable material. The world is beginning to recognise the value of each efficient and healthy citizen to all; and that is why statesmen have at last begun to treat public hygiene on a scientific basis, and have acknowledged its status in relation to high public policy.

RE-FORMING PARRAMATTA ROAD.

The system, which is to be adapted for re-forming Parramatta-road from the city boundary to Ashfield, should indicate to other municipalities a method by which the standing reproach as to the condition of their main roads may be removed, and a long stretch of good road created. The councils through whose area the road runs have agreed among themselves and with the Government for the reconstruction of the road on a joint financial basis. The Government is to contribute its proportion of one-half, which presumably will be debited against the amount set aside as a subsidy towards municipal main roads. The councils find the other half, the cost being debited according to the amount of expense incurred in the various areas. In the case of Ashfield, the sum required is advanced by the Government as a temporary loan, repayable by equal annual instalments, no interest being charged. A similar arrangement presumably will be arrived at with the other councils. The actual method of construction follows a system which has been worked out by Mr. Goodwin, the engineer of the Ashfield Council, and made use of by him in certain parts of the area, particularly in those carrying heavy traffic. The system consists in laying on a good foundation a mixture of large and small metal, 2½ and 1½ inches respectively, to which metal blinding, slag, and other cementitious material is added. These ingredients are treated with hot tar so as to form a homogeneous mixture, the work being done upon the spot with plant which turns the mixture out hot, ready to be placed upon the road. The substance, when rolled, sets like cement. The variation in size of the different pieces of metal forming the surface of the road gives a good foothold, and the whole wears evenly throughout, providing always a similar surface. Specimens of the substance so laid may be seen at the Ashfield Council-chambers, some of which have stood constant heavy traffic near the railway station for eleven years. The Ashfield Council will do the work of construction in its own area, the remainder of the work being carried out by the Government.

METROPOLITAN TRAFFIC.

It seems strange that the metropolis of London should, at the present time, have no traffic boards with similar powers to those possessed by the Sydney Traffic authorities. The local Metropolitan Traffic Act gives the power of determining by regulation the routes to be taken by horses or vehicles of various classes. In a city of more or less narrow streets such a power is of great benefit in allowing the authorities to prevent congestion, and it is freely availed of for the purpose; the heavy traffic being diverted to certain of the wider streets, although the consequent detour may be considerable. Still, this power, however wisely used, cannot of itself be expected to cope with the increasing traffic demands of the city, or to obviate the necessity of opening up further wide avenues for through traffic. On the question of the direction which should be taken by such thoroughfares, the advice of the traffic superintendent should be of the greatest use, and it is here that one regrets that he should be connected with Government rather than municipal authority, so that he has no direct means of making recommendation to the latter. The Superintendent's work should be extended beyond the mere work of directing traffic, and should include the important municipal functions of record and suggestion traffic matters. There is no reason why details of the intensity of traffic in different directions should not be compiled by him, and recorded in the form of diagrams, as is done in cities of the old world. Such diagrams would be of the greatest use in indicating the localities where improvement of thoroughfares was required. The superintendent's advice and suggestions might be made available in other directions as to the influence of traffic requirements upon the proper planning of the city.

DUST AND HEALTH.

At the annual conference of sanitary inspectors held in England last month Sir James Crichton Browne delivered an adress which is of great interest to all students of local government. A journey through the Midlands and North Wales had inspired him to discourse on dust in all its forms, but chiefly on the "town dust" and "road dust," the two varieties with which sanitary inspectors are concerned. Town dust is generally far more complex than industrial dust, against which factory inspectors have carried on a successful war by the provision of appliances for ventilation. A specimen from the top of a wardrobe in a house in the West End of London had been analysed for the speaker, and found to contain organic and inorganic matter, silica and insoluble silicates, oxide of iron and alumnia, lime, carbonic acid, and traces of phosphoric and sulphuric acid. There were recognised in it vegetable and animal fibres, derived from fabrics such as linen, cotton, and wool, and fragments of wood; also scales from the skin and small round cells, food materials represented by starch granules, and a few pollen spores. The most objectionable and the commonest constituent of town dust is carbon particles or soot, derived from coal combustion. But it is as a carrier of disease germs that dust is most to be feared. It carries about pathogenic spores and bacilli of various kinds, which are resistant to drying, and so disseminates catarrh, hay fever, and influenza. Tuberculosis among adults is most usually conveyed by the dust of the dried up expectoration of tubercular persons which is blown about in confined spaces. It seems to be the fact that dust is most to be feared when it is associated with chemically corrosive or mechanically wounding elements. Apparently the sharp particles plough the field and prepare a way for the bacilli to take possession of the pulmonary substance. It follows that town dust is most fatal when it springs from a material likely to produce such particles, such as granite, whinstone, or sandstone. The exact effect of these materials is still to be ascertained. But the discomfort caused by them, and their choking properties, are well known; and it is already evident that such dust is responsible for cases of conjunctivitis, of oral sepsis, of sore throat, tonsilitis, bronchitis, and pneumonia.

ROAD SURFACES AND HEALTH.

Sir James Crichton Browne, in the course of the same address, gave some valuable information as to the effect of road surface on health. Road-making he took to be in a transition stage. The rise of the motor has brought about a demand for progress which is being met by the experiments carried out by pavement manufacturers on their own account, and by the Road Board, with its engineering advisory committee. It is quite clear that for a long time to come tar macadam will remain the basal idea for all processes. Although it has not yet been possible to ascertain the best method of securing a smooth and impervious surface, the experts are agreed that the best roads are those which owe their virtues to tar, bitumen, or petroleum pitch in some combination. This being so, Sir James Crichton Browne, to set at rest a bogey similar to that which was started by the opponents of wood-block paving in Sydney, declares that the use of tar in road-making is in no way responsible for the spread of cancer. Tar is as innocent as the tomato. Even on badly made roads, on which tarry or bituminous particles might be ground up into dust, these, even if as is improbable they contained any noxious material, would hold it in so attenuated a form as to be harmless. The chief danger to be feared from road dust is tetanus, of which the organism lives in the alimentary canal of the horse, and is, therefore, to be found in soil, dirt, or dust which contains horse-manure. Road dust must now be regarded as no less dangerous than field and garden earths, and the soil of brickyards which have hitherto been accepted as the seed-beds of tetanus. Unfortunately, no improvement in road formation will eliminate this danger, so long as the same roads are used by horses and automobiles. Although mineral dust may disappear, horse dust will still be churned up and wafted abroad with undiminished virulence. It is not suggested that all road dust, or even all road dust containing dry powder from horse manure contains the bacilli or spores of the tetanus, and not all road dust charged with these, even if it finds its way into a wound, will set up the disease. The bacilli must find suitable conditions, nutriment, and temperature. Still the danger is sufficiently serious for Sir James Crichton Browne to warn motorists to keep covered and free from road dust all cuts, wounds, or abrasions on the hands or face, and to seek immediate treatment when road dust has entered these under suspicious circumstances. He finds in the existence of this danger an additional argument for the suggestion that all houses and cottages should be built henceforth with a broad belt of garden ground intervening between them and the highway.

SMALLPOX AT COOTAMUNDRA.

The emergency caused by the outbreak of smallpox at Cootamundra afforded proof of the possibilities of co-operation by councils with other public bodies. Upon the outbreak of the disease large responsibilities devolved upon the hospital authorities, and the council properly came to their assistance. At a joint meeting of councillors and hospital committeemen the Mayor stated that the council had obtained leave from the Minister to expend moneys, and would assist the hospital financially. The council undertook to provide a site for a smallpox hospital, the hospital authorities undertaking the work of construction. Some difficulty arose over the question of site. The position originally suggested was upon the common, some distance from the town, but the inconvenience of a distant site for doctors and nurses, as well the difficulty of obtaining water and other supplies, caused the suggestion of sites closer to the town. No doubt the public would be better satisfied to have the hospital some way off, for there are those who believe that the infection can be carried by wind for a considerable distance. Instances are quoted of the disease appearing in the direction of the prevailing wind blowing from a source of infection, though the weight of proof is generally discounted by the probability of the infection having been carried in other ways. The Cootamundra site, after being much debated, was left to the joint consideration of the Mayor and hospital president.

COST OF LIVING.

Further evidence was heard yesterday by Mr. Justice Heydon in the Industrial Court in his inquiry into the cost of living.

Alexander Jobson, public accountant and actuary, was cross-examined on certain phases of his evidence.

Mr. Connington pointed out that Mr. Knibbs worked out the average cost of bread at 8d per week per person and meat at 1s 1d per head; yet a witness had recently stated that it would cost an economical person 7s 2d per week for meat for a family of five.

To Mr. Bevan: To get at a reliable estimate it would be necessary to get at the budgets of thousands and of different classes. Mr. Knibbs had made up his estimate on an apparently small basis.

Mr. Rolin said he was in the unfortunate position that now the newspapers were publishing details of the inquiry, witnesses were showing the greatest reluctance to come forward and give evidence. He would be prepared to submit affidavits on the following day.

The inquiry was consequently adjourned till to-day.

NEW FERRY STEAMERS.

Two important additions to the fleet of the Sydney Ferries, Ltd., are now practically ready for launching, and the first of these will take the water this morning.

The vessel in question is a new vehicle steamer, to be named the Kedumba, and the launch will take place from Mr. David Drake's yard at Balmain at 8.45 a.m. to-day. The Kedumba is to be something special in the way of vehicle steamers. Her dimensions are:—Length 146ft, breadth 30ft, and depth 10ft. She will carry about 45 vehicles, and will be ready for service in a couple of months' time. She will be placed on the Milson's Point run, and with her advent an eight-minute service will probably be established.

The second addition is a new steamer, which is intended for the Parramatta River service to replace the Pheasant. This steamer will be launched from Messrs. T. F. Morrison and Sinclair's yard, Balmain, on Saturday morning next.

WOMAN OF 70 HAS A FACE LIKE THAT OF A YOUNG GIRL.

"From mother to daughter, generation after generation," writes a lady now 70 years old, "we have been noted throughout the little provincial town where we live for the beauty of our complexions, preserved even to old age. Of late so many of our friends seem to have been deceived and disappointed by harmful skin remedies that we have decided it is not right for us to keep to ourselves any longer the formula that has always been considered as our family secret, and to which we owe our 'eternal youth.' Therefore we take the opportunity of communicating it to our sister readers. Simply take 2oz. rosewater, 1 dram tincture of benzoin, and 2oz. Flowers of Ozmoin, and mix them yourself at home. Any chemist can supply you with what is necessary. Shake the lotion before using, and apply with a clean piece of cotton wool or a sponge regularly night and morning. In less than a week you will surely be asked what has caused such a wonderful improvement in your appearance. The freshness of your complexion will be dazzling. We know, because we have often made the very same experiment among our friends, and this is the only thing we ourselves have ever used. It is our family remedy for all complexion troubles, and has never failed to give the very highest degree of satisfaction; in fact, we consider it an ideal means for preserving the natural health of the skin. The formula is old-fashioned, simple, and inexpensive, but always efficacious. We would be very happy to give you others, but this is the only one we possess of which we know the benefits from personal experience."

Important.—Inquiries recently made of a noted dermatologist proved conclusively that the above lotion is unequalled for the purposes for which it is recommended, and it may therefore be regarded as being thoroughly reliable.—Advt.

MAIN ROADS.

ALLOTMENT OF THE VOTE.

The Chief Engineer for National and Local Government Works (Mr. R. J. Jones) yesterday issued his allotment of the Main Roads Vote.

Among other things, Mr. Jones says:—"That the sum of £250,000 will cause the main roads to be put into a satisfactory state is out of the question; but if this mode of special recognition of the requirements connected with the principal arteries of traffic is adopted year by year, there must be such an improvement of these roadways as will repay the State for the expenditure and the local taxpayer for any extra cost to him in the shape of increased rating.

"Coming now to the classification of main roads, I may observe that, whilst I have scheduled 183 roads, the list in no way represents the whole of the important roads in the State; but, so far as the disposal of the departmental vote is concerned, it cannot be expected that it was ever intended to help councils to improve and maintain roads within their own areas serving only intershire or inter-municipal traffic, and from the frontages of which roads good rate revenue is obtained. The position I have taken up is to classify only:—First, those roads carrying a certain percentage of outside traffic from which the areas passed through get little or no benefit; 2nd, roads such as that from the Yerranderie to Camden, and Burraga to Perthville, where the traffic is heavy, causing high road expenditure, and is of a character not covered by the ordinary endowment of the municipalities or shires concerned; and, thirdly, roads such as that from Helensburgh to Bulli Pass, Mount Keira, etc., that carry traffic, of which seven-eighths belongs to places outside the shires, and from which the councils derive little or no benefit." . . .

"If the reclassification made by the committee early in December last, and in which no reduction was made for main roads, had been adopted, but 97 shires would have received endowment, and the amount payable this year on 1912 rate receipts would have been £308,909, whereas the ordinary endowment of £150,000 is now being augmented by £200,000, so that the shires are really better off than if the old reclassification method had been adopted, whilst interference with the councils is reduced to a minimum, except in one respect, viz., that the grants made cannot be deflected from the object for which given, viz., for the improvement of the classified main roads."

FERRY MISHAP.

KIRRULE BUMPS THE WALL.

The Sydney Ferries' steamer Kirrule, while on the 1.33 trip from Mosman yesterday, was coming into the wharf at Circular Quay shortly before 2 o'clock when she over-ran the distance and struck the stone wall of the Quay.

It was stated that the steamer was proceeding alongside the wharf at the usual speed, and the engines refused to act effectively when put astern. The vessel struck the wall about midway between the two wharfs, breaking the forward bulwarks. No damage was done to the wall, but the steamer was taken off the running, and proceeded to the company's works for repairs. It is expected that she will take up her running again tomorrow.

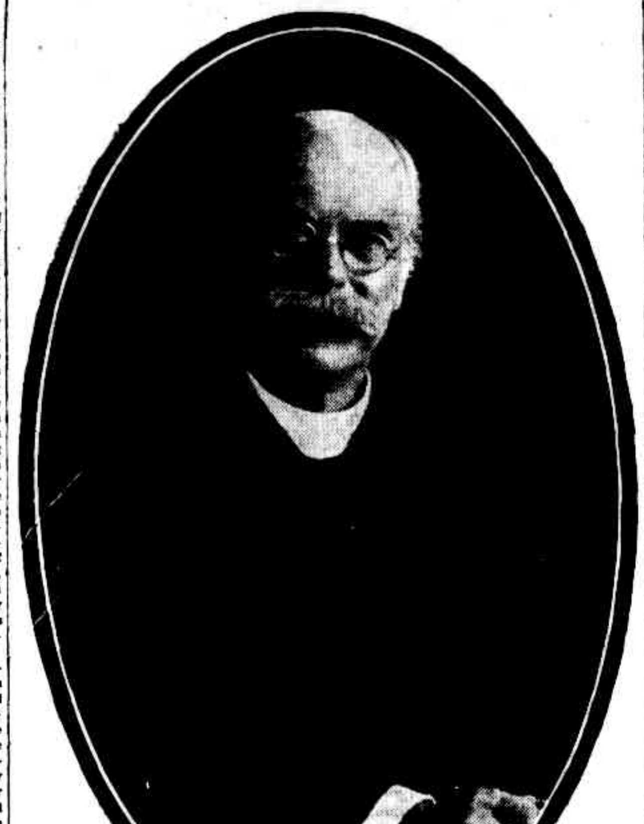
Gillespie, to act as examiner of titles, Registrar-General's Department; Mr. J. Bush, as officer-in-charge, Occupation Branch, head office, Lands Department; Mr. F. S. Murray, as clerk-in-charge, Alienation Branch, head office, Lands Department; Mr. L. T. Hooper, as Court reporter, Department of the Attorney-General and of Justice.

A DISTINGUISHED DIVINE.



THE LATE DR. DILL MACKY.

The Rev. Dr. William Marcus Dill Macky, one of the most prominent of the Presbyterian divines of the State, and minister of Scots Church, Church Hill, died at 2 o'clock yesterday morning, aged 64. The death occurred at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. Stephenson, at Benboyd-road, Neutral Bay. Though not entirely unexpected by the members of his family and his most intimate friends, the news of the death came as a great shock to the public generally, and to the various religious communities of the city. Deceased had been some months in retirement from active work, and had suffered for years from a serious liver complaint. For several weeks he had been confined to his room, and during the last week his condition had caused his friends and relatives the gravest anxiety.

William Marcus Dill Macky was born at Lisfannan, county Donegal, Ireland, on June 8, 1849. His father was a well-to-do farmer, and his mother a daughter of the manse, Susannah Dill, second daughter of the Rev. Richard Dill, minister of Knowhead Presbyterian Church, about three miles from Londonderry, whose pulpit he occupied for upwards of half a century.

The Dills are a Levitical family in the Presbyterian Church of Ireland, generation after generation, for more than two centuries, having given their sons to the service of the ministry. Dr. Edward Dill, the celebrated South of Ireland missionary, was Dr. Dill Macky's uncle. In the early part of his ministry he was called to Scotland as a Protestant lecturer. The position he filled with ability and popularity for several years, but, owing to failing health through the overstrain of the work, he resigned the position, and took up the work of evangelisation in the South and West of Ireland, where he earned the sobriquet of "The Cock of the North." Another of his uncles was the Rev. Richard Dill, of Osmond Quay Presbyterian Church, Dublin, the founder of the Magee College, in which Dr. Dill Macky received his theological training for the work of the ministry.

In the early 'Fifties Dr. Dill Macky's father caught with the gold fever, emigrated to Victoria, intending that after a time his family should follow him, but within a year his letters suddenly ceased. His last letter was written from Buninyong, and from that time he was never more heard of, although every effort was made at the time and afterwards to discover his fate. Life in the goldfields in those early days was very precarious. Many were buried in the shafts which they themselves sunk, and not a few suddenly disappeared and were never afterwards heard of. Left to her own resources, with a family of five children—three sons and two daughters—with only a small annual allowance, which came to her after the death of her father from the widows' fund of the Irish Presbyterian Church, Dr. Dill Macky's mother, of whom he always spoke with reverence and affection that was unbounded, bravely faced the battle of life, and faced it so successfully that she lived to see her three sons occupying honourable positions—two as Ministers of the gospel and one as a medical man. All three came to New South Wales—Dr. Dill Macky as Minister of Scots' Church, Sydney; Rev. Richard Dill Macky, now Minister at Byron Bay; and the late Dr. James Macky of Ulmarra, Clarence River.

When about 16 years of age, Dr. Dill Macky, whose educational training had hitherto been confined to the national school curriculum, began the study of the classics in a seminary situated on the walls of Derry, and overlooking one of the bastions, in which were mounted the old guns which did battle at the Siege. In those days Dr. Macky was a member of one of the "Prentice Boys'" clubs, whose title was "No Surrender."

After a good preliminary education, Mr. Dill Macky entered Magee College in 1868, and took a full course of three years in Arts and three years in Theology, holding scholarships or bursaries in both. He studied under well-known professors—among these Professor Witherow, to whom he acknowledges much indebtedness in his Moderatorial address. At that time the Magee College could not confer degrees, but he passed the G.C. examination, which was then held as equivalent to a B.A. The Alma Mater of Dr. Dill Macky owes its existence chiefly to his uncle, Rev. Richard Dill, of Ormond Quay, Dublin, who not only influenced Mrs. Magee, the widow of a Presbyterian minister, to invest a large sum of money for its foundation, but also contributed £6000 to it himself. Mr. George Fullerton, M.D., well-known to many old residents of Sydney, and brother to the late Rev. Dr. Fullerton, of Pitt-street, also founded two scholarships in the Magee College.

During these years he gained many prizes and scholarships, and at the end of his course in 1876, was licensed by the Derry Presbytery to preach. In the early part of the same year, 1876, he received a call from the members and adherents of the congregation of Draperstown, popularly known as the cross of Ballinascreen, to become their minister. He accepted the call, and was ordained by the Presbytery of Magherafelt in the month of November. Here he laboured for 10 years, beloved by all the Protestant sections of the community, who testified to the love and esteem in which they held him by subscribing a public testimonial in the shape of a purse of sovereigns and an illuminated address on his resigning his charge at Draperstown preparatory to coming to New South Wales.

STANDING ALONE.

On two other occasions during his ministry in Draperstown he was the recipient of addresses and testimonials from his own people. In politics, Dr. Dill Macky was, at the time, a strong Conservative, and took an active part in the Parliamentary elections. Most of the ministers of the Presbyterian Church were then strong Liberals and stanch supporters of Mr. Gladstone. Indeed, in his own presbytery, the Presbytery of Magherafelt, he stood alone, as he has done many a time since, in advocating the principles he believed. Dr. Dill Macky distrusted Mr. Gladstone and his policy in connection with Ireland. He disbelieved him even when he was declaring that Parnell and his company were "steeped to the lips in treason." The last election campaign he engaged in was when Colonel M'Calmont (Conservative) was fighting County Derry against the Liberal (Mr. Findlater) and the Home Ruler (Mr. Tim Healy). In this contest all the members of the Magherafelt Presbyetry were fighting strenuously for Gladstone and Mr. Findlater. Dr. Dill Macky alone among them supported the Conservative candidate. He warned the Presbyterians of county Derry of Mr. Gladstone's "ulterior aim," the granting of Home Rule to the Irish, but such an idea at that time was ridiculed. It was with a degree of satisfaction, therefore, to Dr. Dill Macky, some two or three years later, to see his forecast fulfilled and the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church of Ireland called together specially to denounce the Irish policy of the man whom at one time they almost idolised.

ARRIVAL IN AUSTRALIA.

In the year 1880, Dr. Dill Macky was married to Ellen Elizabeth Morwood, the youngest daughter of John Morwood, M.D., the late Government Medical Officer of Draperstown. As the Doctor's family, by his mother's side, inclined to the office of the ministry from bygone generations, so Mrs. Dill Macky's family, by her father's side, inclined to the practice of medicine, her brother, father, and grandfather, for over a century, filling the same office of Dispensary Medical Officer in the parish of Ballinascreen.

In the year 1886 Dr. Dill Macky's attention having been drawn to New South Wales, he determined to come hither, and accordingly resigned his Draperstown charge, and in the month of November sailed with his wife and three children for Sydney. He landed here on January 1, 1887, on board the Austral.

In the following May he was unanimously called to the pastorate of the old Scots' Church, which happened to be vacant at the time through the death of the Rev. Milne Jarvis. The old Scots' Church is inseparably connected with the name of John Dunmore Lang, D.D., who founded it in the year 1820, and filled the pulpit for a period of 55 years. In June of this year Dr. Macky celebrated his semi-jubilee as Minister of Scots' Church.

Dr. Dill Macky was not long in Australia before he joined the Orange Institution. The reason for his so doing he has often told from the public platform. "I was not an Orangeman," he said, "prior to my coming to New South Wales. In my youth I was an apprentice boy, and I suppose they are half brothers to Orangemen. But when I saw the determined effort of Rome to dominate this free country, I felt it to be my duty to assist, by every means in my power, those who were endeavouring by constitutional organisation to check her encroachment, and so I joined the ranks of the Orangemen and was initiated in No. 1 Derry Lodge within a year of my landing." Subsequently Dr. Dill Macky formed the Protestant Defence Association.

At the Sydney Town Hall, on April 6, 1904, a packed house assembled to do honour to the champion of Protestantism by presenting him with a purse of sovereigns and an address. A similar tribute was paid to him in June, 1909, on the eve of a trip to Europe. The purse on that occasion represented over a thousand pounds.

Dr. Macky is survived by his widow, three sons, and five daughters (four of whom are married).

APPRECIATIONS.

Many tributes were yesterday paid to the sterling character of deceased. The Rev. J. E. Carruthers, President of the New South Wales Methodist Conference, said that the spirit of the Scottish Covenanters and of the Cromwellian Puritans burned strongly in the doctor, and produced in him a personality that never flinched from peril, or faltered with principle where the interests of what he conceived to be truth were concerned. He possessed a gentleness, a modesty, and a chivalry that won both admiration and affection. The Rev. Dr. Roseby, president of the Australasian Congregational Union, said that the late doctor was best known as the champion of Protestantism. But those who knew more intimately the man himself found in him something more and deeper than the ecclesiastical polemic. There was in him a capacity for intimate friendship, not without a touch of tenderness and grace, that endeared him to those who knew him best. The Rev. C. J. Tinley, ex-president of the Baptist Church in New South Wales, also paid a warm tribute to deceased's many good qualities.

FUNERAL ARRANGEMENTS.

Arrangements have been made for a special service in Scots Church, Church Hill, at 12.30 p.m. to-morrow, Friday. The Moderator of the Presbytery, the Rev. F. Barclay, will preside, and the Revs. R. H. Waugh, John Macaulay, Thomas Morgan, and Canon Bellingham will also participate in the service. The body will be borne from the service of the office-bearers of Scots Church while the Funeral March is being played, and the cortege will then proceed to the Mortuary Station, thence to the Presbyterian Cemetery at Rookwood. At the graveside, in addition to the clergy named, Revs. Dr. Burgess, P. J. Stephen, and the Moderator of the Presbyterian Assembly will participate in the burial service. Orange and Masonic burial services will also be read by presiding officials of those bodies.

AMBULANCE EXPEDITION.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—On Thursday morning I saw a poor unfortunate workman fall from a telegraph pole in Bourke-street, Surry Hills. Seeing that I could render no aid, as a kindly-faced young constable had instantly taken charge of the case, I thought I would "time" the coming of the ambulance, and here is the "timing" exactly:—The man fell at 11.28 a.m.; the ambulance at Central Station was rung up at 11.29, and arrived on the scene at 11.48—wounds dressed, and ambulance away to the hospital at 11.50. Thus in less than half an hour the whole work was completed, the one-horse ambulance having to journey a mile, and up hill, too. If this is not grand work, and richly deserving of public sympathy and cash support, I don't know what is.

I am, etc.,

HEALTH AND EDUCATION.

IMPORTANT PROPOSAL.

COMMISSIONER'S REPORT.

The annual report of the Commonwealth Public Service Commissioner, which was tabled in the House of Representatives yesterday afternoon, is a prodigiously verbose document of 50 printed pages foolscap size.

The report shows that during the year the permanent staffs of departments have been augmented by 1795 officers, this being the largest increase in any year since the commencement of federation. The total number of permanent officers has increased from 17,050 to 18,845, while the actual number of classified positions in the service, including vacancies, was 20,214 at the close of the financial year.

AN IMPORTANT PROPOSAL.

Mr. M'Lachlan makes the following important suggestion regarding the education and training of officers for the service:—

"The question of educational efficiency of officers is one of supreme importance in relation to departmental administration. In the Postmaster-General's Department of the Commonwealth, and also in other departments, a moral responsibility devolves upon those controlling sections of employees to provide for the further education of youths on their staffs, this being essential no less in the public interest than in that of young officers themselves. The organisation and establishment of departmental institutes for both elementary and higher instruction of employees is a duty which cannot be evaded without serious consequences to the future management of departments, the well-being of which must necessarily be dependent upon the developed efficiency of its units.

"In certain directions, it should be possible to take advantage of existing educational agencies, such as technical and other schools, but for much of the instruction required in the Postmaster-General's Department special arrangements would need to be made. An essential feature of any system of training devised for departmental officers would be the provision of facilities for instruction in telegraphy, telephony, and mechanical work, and for general instruction leading up to the specialised branches, and this would necessitate suitable accommodation in a central position, the equipment of workrooms with telegraphic sets and model telephone switchboards, benches, tools, etc, and the establishment of lecture-rooms for various branches of instruction. It is certain that a very large proportion of the youths in our service will, unless some assistance and encouragement be provided by the Government, remain in a condition of educational unfitness and apathy and of undeveloped intelligence."

"While it is fully realised by me in advocating departmental consideration of this question that the difficulties of initiating any concrete scheme of educational organisation are great, such difficulties only exist to be overcome, and a commencement on proper lines would gradually develop into a harmonious system, which would eventually prove of incalculable benefit. The expenditure involved in the establishment of departmental schools in the capital cities of the States, with extensions later on to provincial centres, would ultimately repay the Government threefold in the increased value of the work performed throughout the Service and in the higher intellectual development of its officers."

CONSIDERABLY INCREASED COST.

"In keeping with the augmentation of departmental staffs," says the Commissioner, "the expenditure on salaries and wages of permanent and temporary officers shows a considerable increase over the previous year. The salaries expenditure of the permanent Service amounted to £2,434,051 as at June 30, 1912, while at the corresponding period this year the expenditure aggregated £2,719,360, or an increase of £285,309 on the previous year. The expenditure on temporary assistance, overtime pay, district and travelling allowances and contingencies also show a marked increase. While much of the added cost of the public departments is necessarily due to new appointments made to cope with expansion of business, the revision of rates of pay of existing officers, more particularly in the general division, is responsible for a large amount."

SERIOUS DEFECTS POINTED OUT.

On the subject of safeguarding the health of the service the Commissioner remarks: "It unfortunately happens that in departmental buildings throughout the Commonwealth, other than those of comparatively modern construction, consideration of the health and comfort of officers have in many cases been subordinated to external architectural effect, with the result that employees of the Government are compelled to discharge their duties in disadvantageous circumstances, and often to the detriment of health. The matter is one calling for serious attention by departmental authorities, as, while architectural defects may in some instances be irremediable, in others the possibility exists of structural alterations which would conduce to improved conditions, and enable the work of the departments to be carried on with proper regard to the demands of health. Public departments should be required to conform to the fullest degree with the requirements of the State health authorities in all matters affecting sanitation, space, ventilation, and lighting, and there can be no doubt that funds wisely expended in this direction would produce a three-fold return in the diminution of sickness and the increased efficiency of public service. In the matter of providing satisfactory accommodation, whether in office or workshop, for the servants of the public, the departmental authorities under the Commonwealth Government carry a moral responsibility which cannot be evaded without danger to effective administration."

MALINGERERS AND TRICKSTERS.

The Commissioner gives amusing instances of candidates' expediency to overcome possible physical defects, which would debar them from employment. "A candidate for appointment as lineman," he says, "who was apparently under the impression that a standard height and weight was required for the position, endeavoured to meet his deficiency as regards weight by attaching pieces of lead to his nether garments. In another similar case the candidate loaded his boots with lead."

Malingering is not uncommon in the service. The Commissioner remarks:—"An analysis of the sick leave granted officers of the Postmaster-General's Department in New South Wales during 1912 shows that no fewer than 1250 officers were absent for periods of not less than six days. The total staff in this State as to June, 1912, was 5942 officers, and it will thus be seen that 21 per cent. of the officers were away from duty for six or more days. If the absences for lesser periods than six days be also taken into account, it will be realised that the department is carrying an enormous burden of sick leave. It is estimated by the Deputy Postmaster-General, Sydney, that the cost of relieving officers on sick leave was for the year 1912 not less than £4000, which amount does not cover the salaries of the absent officers. Reports recently submitted show that, despite the special attention called to the matter in 1910, the number of absences on sick leave is still much greater than appears to be justified, and that numerous cases of malingering occur in the several States. In one State a special test as to the legitimacy of absences was instituted at a given date, with the result that on the investigation of fourteen (14) cases only six (6) were found to be bona fide."

GIRLS WITH BAD TEETH.

Girls with bad teeth predominate among the applicants for female employment in the service:—"A prolific source of trouble in respect to the health of female candidates," says the commissioner, "appears to be the lack of proper attention to the teeth, and many of the serious ailments affecting candidates may be traced to this cause. In a batch of 40 medical certificates (female telephonists) recently submitted to me for consideration where the medical officer recommended rejection or deferment, no fewer than 27 cases were reported in which attention to teeth was deemed requisite before appointment to the service could be justified."

The annual expenditure on salaries of permanent officers throughout the Commonwealth as at June 30, 1913, amounted to £2,719,360 (for details see table "A"), being an increase of £285,309 over the amount payable at June 30, 1912. Of this amount £160,636 is represented by ordinary increments and promotions of officers already in the service, the balance of £124,673 being expenditure in connection with the filling of newly-created positions, either by appointment or promotion of officers.

PLAIN FACTS.
YOU CANNOT DODGE.

The offer of £100 to anyone who can prove that the testimonials and claims made for Muco Tonic was any other than genuine came like a thunderbolt to those people who were inclined to be sceptical. Mrs. Adamson, of Rozelle, the lady who was relieved of gallstones. T. A. Dillingham, of Pitt and Barlow streets, Sydney, is high in his praise of this valuable medicine as a relief for catarrh and rheumatism, and many others have called at the office, No. 11 Oxford-street, to express their thanks for the good results already attained. This valuable preparation is on sale at the Weis Medicine Co., No. 11 Oxford-street, Sydney.—Advt.

Opens a HAT STORE!
At 25-27 OXFORD-ST.

Every man who wears a Hat should be interested in this announcement—and if he likes practical economy, he certainly will be.

I have built up the largest tailoring business in Australia, by not only giving better value than can be obtained elsewhere, but also by saving my customers a guinea on every suit I make for them.

Now, I am going to do a similar thing in the Hat business.

I have been considering the question of selling Hats for some time.

I have purchased Hats from every retail hatter in Sydney—so I know the qualities and the prices that are ruling.

The conclusion I have come to is that:—

You are Paying 33⅓ % More Than You Ought--for Hats.

And this is my reason for launching into the Hat business. I have made contracts with several hat manufacturers to take large supplies of hats, with the result that I have bought, and will continue to buy Hats cheaper than any other hatter in Australia.

My reputation as a big buyer and a cash payer has spread over the land, and manufacturers have displayed the keenest competition to get my orders.

Even if I were not able to buy cheaper than other hatters, I could still sell at a 33/1-3 per cent. lower price than others, and make an honest profit for myself.

MY SPECIAL STRAW BOATER COSTS 4/10.

Not sold elsewhere under 6/6 each. Some hatters ask more. In this SPECIAL BOATER at 4/10 you get 6/- quality and a handsome shape. It comes in various widths of brim—has a black silk band, and is plain or serrated edge, as you prefer. This is the BOATER that I am specialising on this season, and I have several thousands of them to come forward. When you see it you will agree that it is absolutely the finest BOATER you have ever seen at or near the price—4/10. Add 8d extra for postage.

FARM AND STATION.

THE P.P. BOARDS.

The fact that the Government has made it part of its policy to abolish the Pasture Protection Boards, relegating certain of their duties to the shire councils, and concurrently extending the field functions of the stock branch of the Department of Agriculture, will create considerable interest throughout the country districts. This is a matter which has been prominent in the rural public mind for some years. Opinion is divided upon the matter, but we believe the majority of landholders will welcome the intentions of the Government as a progressive step. It is undeniable that there is some needless overlapping in the function of the two bodies at present mainly entrusted with the conduct of country local government, and Mr. Trefle is justified in claiming that both economy and efficiency will be attained by the suggested change. At the same time there will be strong opposition in some localities, because there is a feeling that the shire councils are not in a position to appreciate the needs of stockowners, who claim that the administration of the work performed by the P.P. Boards should remain entirely in their hands, as they have to find the money to carry it on. However, other districts are just as strongly opposed to the existing system, particularly where the work of the boards is light, and their upkeep is considered an unnecessary expense. It was certain that some alteration had to be made, and the idea most favoured was to give the districts concerned the right to decide whether they would retain, the boards or not.

While this might have been the easiest way of settling a contentious point, from the politician's standpoint, and, indeed, had much to recommend it, reflection shows that an unsatisfactory position would have been reached owing to different systems prevailing in different parts of the State, where there should be common action. After all, it can hardly be denied, if local government is to be properly carried out in the country districts, that the present proposal deserves support. There are few who contend that the present position is satisfactory. Those who are desirous of retaining the boards advocate giving them greater powers, thereby admitting that under existing conditions their retention is not warranted. Strange to say, it is generally found that those who take this stand are opposed mainly to absorption by the shire councils because the latter are elected upon a much broader franchise than the members of the boards. They hold that stock matters are the concern of the stock owners alone, and the franchise should be confined to them. While there may be an inclination to agree with this view, it cannot be forgotten that it is difficult to draw these lines of demarcation without creating an inequitable position. When, however, greater powers, such as control of stock routes, reserves, etc., are asked by the boards, a directly contradictory position is assumed. These, although it may appear so at first sight, are not matters affecting stockowners alone.

The handling and control of Crown lands most certainly is a matter in which the whole community is concerned, and it is hardly likely to agree to hand them over to a body created on a restricted franchise. The shire councils obviously hold a greater right to such power as being more directly representative of the people. As to the actual danger of stockowners' interests being detrimentally affected by the wider franchise pertaining to the shire councils, it is questionable whether there is real ground for fear in this direction. It is expressed somewhat late in the day for that matter when we remember the government of the country is created by an adult franchise of the most liberal character. Apart from that, however, against the fear of probable inequitable treatment of the stockowners by the exercise of power on the part of non-stockowners, has to be placed the fact that at the present time we find little difference in the practical results of the P.P. Boards' franchise and that of the shire councils'. In district after district, particularly in the inland stock districts, we find the same gentlemen occupying the position of shire councillor and director of the P.P. Board. Is not this an assurance that the common sense of the community can be relied upon to pick the most suitable men for the position, irrespective of their interests?

Whatever may be thought of the abolition of the boards, the proposed extension of the scope of the Stock Department should meet with general approval. This is a step that will greatly strengthen the work of the department and make it of much greater direct value to stockowners. It is a measure of decentralisation that will appeal strongly to the residents of the country districts. To divide the Eastern and Central divisions into five or six parts, each containing a branch of the department, manned by trained veterinary officers, is to place a valuable organisation directly at the service of stockowners, and must have most beneficial results. We trust that such a scheme will be carried out in the near future, whatever political developments might be, for it is one that reflects considerable credit on the originators. A thoroughly useful and practical suggestion is well completed by the proposal to establish a veterinary experiment station under the charge of a pathologist in some central locality. Such an establishment is sorely needed if the Stock Department is to carry out its work of protecting the interests of stockowners, and properly guarding our valuable flocks and herds. Altogether, in deciding upon the drastic and definite proposals made by the Government, stockowners have much to consider. While many, but by no means all of them, may resent the abolition of the P.P. Boards, there can hardly be anything but welcome for the accompanying proposals as regards the work of the Stock Department.

VITICULTURAL INDUSTRY.

MINISTER'S REPLY TO DEPUTATION.

Last month a deputation from the council of the Wine Association of New South Wales waited upon the Acting Under-Secretary for Agriculture (in the absence of the Minister) to urge the appointment of a Royal Commission to inquire into the wine industry in the past, and to suggest the best means and methods of promoting its interests in the future. It was stated that the number of acres under vineyards in New South Wales in 1896 was 8754, while in 1912 it was 8231. During the same period the acreage under vines in Victoria had increased by 4000 acres, while there had been an increase of 6000 acres in South Australia. Members of the deputation also commented on the Government's failure to supply phylloxera-resistant rootlings, and suggested that there should be a special Act to govern the sale of wine.

The Minister has forwarded a reply in the course of which he points out that for a considerable time prior to the date of the deputation he had given special consideration to the question of improving generally the status of the viticultural industry in this State, and had arrived at certain conclusions. The representations made by the deputation have convinced him that these conclusions were correct. A Royal Commission will not be necessary.

The question of a supply of grafted resistant rootlings has been thoroughly investigated by a committee consisting of Mr. Valder, the Acting Under-Secretary and Director, Mr. Allen, Fruit Expert, Mr. Binnie, Viticultural Expert, Mr. Jenkins, nurseryman in charge at Raymond Terrace Nursery, and Mr. Gollan, superintendent of planting at the Gosford Forestry Nursery. These officers unanimously condemned the site of the Raymond Terrace nursery as being unsatisfactory, and selected a new site a few miles from Gosford. Operations have been already commenced at this new nursery, and they have every hope that a much larger and more satisfactory output of grafted vines will be available in the future. To assist in achieving this object, arrangements are being made to establish a much larger supply of resistant wood, by establishing a vineyard of another stocks at the Wagga farm of 30 acres, and another one of seven acres at the Yanco farm. The latter will be extended as rootlings become available. In addition to the nursery at Gosford, the department is arranging for another nursery on a large scale on the Yanco irrigation area. In this connection Mr. Trefle pointed out that in the past vignerons have not shown the spirit of enterprise that one would have expected in the direction of producing phylloxera-resistant wood, if not for general supply, at least for their own requirements. In countries where the Government has taken up the propagation and distribution of grafted vines, the result has been a substantial loss. For instance, the Victorian Government is supplying the growers with grafted vines at a price of £4 per thousand, while they cost the Government upwards of £12 per thousand.

It is the desire of the department to assist nurserymen and others to produce grafted vines for the vine-growers in the same way as they produce fruit trees for the fruit-growers. If the nurserymen are prepared to develop this section of the industry the department will be pleased to supply them with resistant cuttings to enable them to lay the foundations for an adequate supply of resistant vines.

In regard to the statements made by the deputation in connection with the area under vines, the Minister points out that in all countries where phylloxera has obtained a foothold the shrinkage in area and output has been very evident, and this has occurred even in countries where cheap labour is available. In the course of his remarks, Mr. Goschc quoted figures to show that the acreage under cultivation of vines in 1896 was 8754 acres, which had decreased to 8231 acres in 1912. It would be interesting to know from what source Mr. Goschc obtained these figures. The official printed reports of the Government Statistician show that the acreage under vines for the year ended 31st March, 1895, was 7677 acres, and for the year ended 31st March, 1896, 7515 acres, the figures for 1911-12 being as stated by Mr. Goschc, viz., 8231 acres. It would, therefore, seem that instead of there having been a decrease in the area under cultivation of 500 acres, as stated by Mr. Goschc, there was actually an increase of nearly 700 acres. Mr. Goschc went on to say that in Victoria, on the other hand, there had been an increase in area under cultivation of about 4000 acres during the years from 1895 to 1912. Here, also, Mr. Goschc would appear to have made an error, the figures in the Victorian statistical record being, for 1895-6 20,275 acres, and for 1910-11 23,412 acres, or a decrease of nearly 7000 acres. The figures for 1911-12 are now available, but it can hardly be imagined that in one year the area would increase by nearly 50 per cent., which would be necessary in order to arrive at an increase of 4000 acres.

In regard to the figures given by Mr. Goschc in respect to the production of wine for the year 1911-12, viz., 963,422 gallons in Victoria, and about 850,000 gallons in New South Wales, it must be remembered that the area under wine producing varieties in New South Wales is only half that in Victoria, so that the figures are decidedly in favour of New South Wales.

Mr. Trefle stated that he had come to the conclusion that one of the best methods of encouraging the viticultural industry was to develop a good system of experimental work throughout the State, under the direction of the viticultural expert. If vignerons are prepared to set apart a small portion of their vineyards for the purpose, he will arrange to have experiments carried out on lines somewhat similar to those adopted in connection with the farmers' experiment plots. The Under-Secretary, Mr. Valder, who has made a success of the farmers' experiment plots, sees no reason why a similar success should not be achieved in connection with viticultural experiments, provided the vignerons show the same spirit of co-operation and enthusiasm as the wheat growers have shown.

With reference to the representations made by the deputation regarding the sales of wines, Mr. Trefle states that he is heartily in sympathy with the desire to see our local wines become more acceptable to the public than they appear to be at present. With this end in view, he is considering the question of amending the Wine Adulteration Act to provide a check on the sale of unsound wines.

PRODUCE IN LONDON.

HOW IT IS HANDLED.

FREMANTLE, Wednesday.

The passengers by the Otranto include Mr. J. H. Esdill, commercial superintendent of the Port of London Authority, who has come out to Australia with the view of delivering a series of lectures before various commercial bodies in order to refute certain statements which have been circulated in Australia regarding shipment facilities in the port of London.

"Very large sums of money are now being spent by the Port of London Authorities," said Mr. Esdill, "in providing additional facilities in order not only to keep abreast of the times, but to provide for the expansion of business in the future. It has been stated that we put our meat into leaking barges; that we bruise carcases and break shanks in the unloading and generally treat meat as though we had a grudge against it and the Australians who send it; that we keep wool littered about on the quay, with no covering other than tarpaulins; that we also put our dairy produce in dirty, musty barges and let them drift up the river at the mercy of the tide. I have seen these statements repeatedly quoted in your press, not, I might add, by producers or exporters, but by persons who have an axe to grind.

"Let me briefly state the facts with regard to frozen meat. To a very large extent, frozen mutton is discharged by means of electric elevators, which deliver it to Emblass band conveyors under cover. These band conveyors carry the meat to sorting tables, under cover where it is most expeditiously taken to insulated railway trucks alongside the steamer, or to an insulated railway truck for conveyance to the Port of Authority cold stores, or to insulated barges for conveyance to private stores. Practically no meat is landed direct on to the quay. It is absolutely incorrect to assert that meat is mishandled and damaged.

"The Port Authority are providing at Smithfield Market what will be the most up-to-date and unique meat stores in the world at a cost of half a million sterling. The authorities' programme for dock improvements provide for an expenditure of £14,000,000, of which five million have already been authorised. The accommodation for wool in London is not equalled or rivalled by any other port in the world. The Port Authority alone have eight acres of show floors, all fitted with excellent top lights, and 26 acres of storage warehouses."

P.P. BOARDS TO GO.

THE GOVERNMENT'S INTENTIONS.

COUNTRY BRANCHES OF THE STOCK DEPARTMENT.

In the course of his policy speech on Tuesday evening, the Premier announced that it was intended to abolish the P.P. boards. Interviewed yesterday, the Minister for Agriculture amplified the policy of the Government in connection with this question.

Mr. Trefle said:—"With the object of improving the conditions under which our live stock are kept and handled, we propose to abolish the pastures protection boards, at least in the Eastern and Central divisions. The work in connection with the control of stock routes and reserves, and several other routine matters, will be delegated to the shire councils, which already possess the necessary machinery to enable them to deal with such matters. The stock boards were useful in the days when there were difficulties attached to protecting stockowners from ties, cattle duffers, and so on, owing to the unsettled state of the country and the difficulty experienced in tracing stock which had been once moved from one part of the State to another, but with the settlement of the country, erection of stock-proof fences, the disappearance of the cattle duffer and the almost total disappearance of the sheep thief, much of the work done in the past is not required to be done now. In addition, we have shire councils throughout the Eastern and Central divisions, which can perform quite a number of the duties previously attended to by the boards, and, owing to their larger staff of officers, perhaps perform them better. I have given serious consideration to the wisdom of handing over stock routes, reserves, etc., to the P.P. boards. If this had been done it would have meant the creation of an army of inspectors to protect the reserves against trespass, etc., which in turn would have saddled stockowners with a considerable increase in the cost of the upkeep of the boards. Therefore, both from the standpoint of economy and efficiency, I came to the decision that all the duties which could be performed satisfactorily by the shire councils should be handed over to those bodies.

"On the other hand, there is much to be done by an up-to-date department in giving practical assistance to stockowners by combating and controlling the numerous diseases which attack our flocks and herds. At the present moment I have an officer at work upon the sheep fly pest. Numerous other diseases give trouble from time to time, and necessitate serious troubles we require to meet these. scientific men to study the diseases capable, as far as possible, for their prevention and eradication, or, if these desirable aims cannot be attained, then at least to minimise their effects upon our stock. To accomplish this it is proposed to establish the Stock Department in five or six central districts, apart from the Western Division, which will be in charge of a highly trained veterinary officer, who will be ready to assist stockowners with advice and be on the spot when his services are required. The work of these branches will consist principally in the prevention and control of disease. In order that such work may be done thoroughly it is also intended to establish a veterinary experiment station, in a central position, with a highly qualified pathologist in charge. Here, for the sake of economy, the more particularly scientific work of investigation will be carried out. This station will carry out the work to which it would be impossible for the district veterinary officer to devote sufficient attention.

"I am satisfied," said Mr. Trefle, in conclusion, "that the adoption of these changes will result in a greater economy to the ratepayers, while providing a much more efficient substitute to serve the interests of our stockowners."

COST OF BRANDING.

VALUE OF HIDES AND FLEECES AFFECTED.

WAGGA.—A well-known Wagga district man, who has been touring in the old country, paid several visits to the leading stock markets in England and Scotland. He also visited the largest tannery in the West of England, and found that there was strong feeling on the question of the branding of Australian hides. He was told "that the insane way in which our hides are branded depreciates their value over there to the extent of from 10 to 20 per cent. This is due to the fact that the most valuable part of the hide is rendered useless. Furthermore, the cloth factories will not buy wools with tar and pitch brands on them, as these marks are most difficult to get out. They cannot understand the Australians spoiling the best wool that comes into the English market."

A DESTRUCTIVE BEETLE.

TRANGIE.—A small black beetle has been doing considerable damage amongst flowers and vegetables in a district homestead garden. Chrysanthemums, lettuce, parsnips, and other plants were attacked and eaten clean off in a single night, the beetles sheltering under the surface soil during the day. The pest not being known locally, specimens were forwarded to Mr. W. W. Froggatt (Government entomologist) for identification. A reply has now been received from that gentleman stating that the insects are Hetermora, and that, while the larvae of some species are well-known pests on the roots of grass and plants, it is the first record he has ever had of the beetles doing damage to growing crops; they usually confine their operations to decayed wood and decayed vegetable matter. He recommends poisoned bran as a means of destroying the beetles.

WILD DAISY CHOKES PASTURES.

FORBES.—The plant or weed commonly known as the white everlasting wild daisy is growing so prolifically in some portions of this district that it is proving rather detrimental to the good natural grasses. On account of its hardiness its eradication will be a matter of some difficulty.

YANCO IRRIGATION AREA.

Mr. Robert Gibson, Harden, writes:—Although I have lately criticised the high capital values put on the above lands, brought about by the great extravagance and waste in carrying out the works, and which must yet be written off to a large extent, and the loss sustained by the State, and not borne by the settlers, still I am a great believer in the ultimate success of irrigation on that area, when the terms and conditions are such as to attract settlers with the necessary capital and some amount of experience. I, therefore, endorse the remarks of Mr. O'Callaghan, the dairy expert, that this area is eminently adapted for dairying. In fact, I go so far as to say that it is on dairying that success or failure of this irrigation scheme will depend. The sooner, therefore, the settlers realise this the better it will be for themselves, as well as for the State. That being so, not one ton of fodder, either lucerne or hay, should go off the area, except in the shape of butter, eggs, or bacon, the only exception being in a drought, when reserve stacks of lucerne may be sold at a high price. The management should, therefore, give, as I believe they are doing, every facility for settlers to get good dairy cows, and no settler who will not take advantage of this should be allowed to get into arrears of payments for more than three months. The crux of the success of this settlement will be the settlers not only making a living, but paying their way to the Crown. This has to be done with holders of land under our Crown Lands and Closer Settlement Acts. And by this will the Yanco irrigation scheme have to be judged. In conversation with one of the settlers' wives on her way lately to the area, she said she never intended to learn to milk. It is to be hoped she is an exception. If not, then, unless a lot of money is behind them, settlers are doomed to failure. Fruit-growing should be looked upon chiefly as an important adjunct. We have about overtaken the Australian markets for ripe and dried fruits. For several years, a proportion of the Mildura and Renmark raisin crop has been exported to keep up local prices. And we know that the export dried fruits have to compete with that grown where labour is about one-fourth the price it is here. Our butter can hold its own in the markets of the world. That is the difference between butter and fruit when exported. We are pleased to see Mr. O'Callaghan such an enthusiast for dairying in Riverina. As is well known, at Hay, inadvertently, perhaps, he blocked the butter factory being established there for two years. His advice to the settlers about Hay, given at a public meeting there, and later, at Carrathool, was to go into a dairying climate. The success of the Hay butter factory, and the experience at Jerilderie and elsewhere, have caused him, no doubt, to alter his opinion. And he deserves credit for never being too old to learn.

HOMESTEAD FARMS.

The Minister for Lands and Agriculture (Mr. Trefle) made the following statement yesterday respecting the procedure to obtain remission of rent for periods up to five years on homestead farms:—

"There appears to be some misapprehension in regard to the requirements of regulation 409 of the Crown Lands Act by those applying for homestead farms who are desirous of availing themselves of the liberal provisions of section 122 of the Consolidation Act (formerly section 9 of the Act No. 6 of 1912), in regard to effecting improvements to the value equal to the amount of the rent in lieu of paying such rent for the first five years of the term, or part thereof. If this concession be desired as from the date of application, the application for the homestead farm must be accompanied by a notice on form 158 that the lessee intends to effect improvements in lieu of paying rent for the period desired. If such notice is not lodged with the homestead farm application, then a half-year's rent, at the rate of 2½ per centum on the capital value of the farm, must be lodged with such applications; and if the concession be thereafter availed of at any time within the five years' limit, then the notice on form 158 must be lodged at least three months prior to the date when the rent for the period in question shall become due."

ARGENTINE CATTLE.

"Rambler" writes: Having just arrived from the Argentine, my attention has been called to your article "Argentine Cattle" in issue of 14th inst. in which you express doubt as to the accuracy of the cables stating that such an amount as £16,000 had been paid for a prize bull. Personally, knowing the Argentine and the people as I do, I have no doubt in my mind the cable will be found to be correct. Early in this year, at the sale of stud stock, the property of Senor Manuel J. Cobo, 50,500 dollars, equal to a fraction £4408, was paid for one bull, and 46,000 dollars, or, say, £4000 odd, for another. When two or three Argentine stockowners get together in a sale ring money is no object. The Argentine is out for the world's markets.

[In the article referred to we stated an instance where £4370 had been given for a champion bull, but there is a wide margin between that amount and £16,000.]

BUSH FIRES.

TRANGIE.—Several bush fires have broken out in the district during the past few days, but all have been extinguished before much damage was done. There is a very heavy growth of grass and herbage nearly dry, and landowners are fearful of an outbreak getting beyond control.

GOOD WATER STRUCK.

TRANGIE.—Mr. G. E. Gibson, of Ferrachurst, has just completed sinking a sub-artesian bore on his property, obtaining a flow of 20,000 gallons a day at a depth of 315 feet, the water rising to within 32 feet of the surface.

YOUNG CHERRY CROP.

YOUNG.—Cherry trees have set a more abundant crop than in any previous season. This is due to ideal weather conditions. More rain will be required to swell the fruit, when there should be the largest crop ever harvested here. This would also result in the pickers earning exceptionally good wages.

Got a thick head? It is very easy to contract a cold at this time of the year. Changeable and erratic weather is sure to get you, but Chamberlain's Cough Remedy will put you right again.—Advt.

TRADES AND LABOUR.

LIFTERS' WAGES.

For some time past the lifters in the employ of the Chief Commissioner for Railways at the Clyde repair siding, have been endeavouring to secure an increase of their wages to 10s 5d per day, so as to be on a level with men doing similar work outside of the service. The general secretary of the Amalgamated Railway and Tramway Service Association (Mr. Claude Thompson) has received information that the desired rate of wages will be paid in future. Endeavours are now being made to secure back pay for the lifters.

FEDERATED ENGINEDRIVERS.

An agreement, to operate until June 13, 1915, has been signed by representatives of the Junction North (Broken Hill) mine and the Federated Enginedrivers and Firemen's Association. It provides for a week of 48 hours, overtime at the rate of time and a quarter, and wages 9s 6d to 12s per day.

WATERSIDE CONFERENCE.

The interstate conference of Waterside Workers is still in progress at the Trades Hall. Since Mr. W. M. Hughes left for Melbourne on Tuesday the chair has been occupied by Mr. Ogden, of Townsville. During recent sittings consideration has been given to rates of pay according to different climatic conditions at ports along the Queensland coast. Questions regarding payment generally, meal hours, and smoke-ohs have also been engaging attention.

MASTERS AND ENGINEERS.

Claims are about to be filed by the Federated Masters and Engineers' Association covering employees on sea-going tugboats. These will come on for hearing before the tugboat board for Sydney and Newcastle. This board comprises Dr. Coghlan, barrister (chairman), Captain J. J. Allan, and Mr. A. Carter, representing the employees; and Messrs. A. Dalton and A. Fenwick, representing the employers. The union is asking from £28 and found for masters, £17 and found for mates, £21 and found for the first engineer, and £17 and found for the second engineer. Lighters under 50 nominal horsepower are proposed to be graded. It is asked in respect to these that masters be paid £21, mates £15, and engineers £18. The hours suggested are eight per day, with time and a half for overtime and public holidays, and two weeks' annual leave.

Consideration has been given to the desirability of amalgamating this union with the Firemen and Deck Hands' Association and the Ferry and Tugboat Employees' Union, and it has been decided, as far as the masters and engineers are concerned, to have the question decided by ballot.

BROKEN HILL PAINTERS.

An award has been gazetted fixing the hours of labour for painters at Broken Hill at 48 per week; the wages at 1s 6d per hour, and overtime.

The hours of work of all club employees, excepting night porters, kitchenmaids, and housemaids, are not to exceed 118 per fortnight. BRICKLAYERS' AGREEMENT.

The agreement between the Master Builders' Association and the bricklayers remains in force for three years, and provides for 48 hours as a week's work, but the Master Builders' Association has agreed not to take any exception to the bricklayers making an application to the Industrial Court for a reduction of hours to 44. It is understood that the Master Builders' Association will oppose any such application for a reduction of hours, but will not raise any technical points in order to prevent a hearing of the application.

BOAT EMPLOYEES IN NORTH.

The Shipping Board (No. 8), which is to deal with claims filed by the Federated Masters and Engineers' Association, covering employees in the Northern Rivers, held a preliminary meeting in Sydney on Tuesday. The chairman, Dr. Coghlan, barrister, announced that the board would commence the taking of evidence at the Tweed River on 27th and 28th instant. The board is asked to fix a working week of 48 hours, instead of 57, as at present, with wages at £4/10/ for harbour tugs and passenger boats (outside Sydney and Newcastle); £4 for droghers; and £3 10/ for employees on small tugs and small lighters. Other conditions suggested include the granting of a fortnight's holiday a year, and time and a half for overtime, which at present is time and a quarter. Some of the claims as to details have already been settled in conference.

No. 9 board, which has Mr. G. A. Nicholls as the employees' representative, is to inquire into claims filed by the Firemen and Deckhands' Association. It is asked that firemen, now £2/6/, be paid £2; that deckhands, now £2/2/, be paid £2/5/; that 48 hours shall constitute a week's work, and that public holidays and Sundays be paid for at the rate of time and a half.

ST. JOHN AMBULANCE.

The annual meeting of the St. John Ambulance Association was held yesterday, Mr. Hanbury Davies presiding.

The report set out that notification had been received from the secretary-general of the selection of Dr. A. Livingstone Kerr as an hon. associate, and Mr. James Muir as an hon. Serving Brother of the Order of St. John. During the year 46 classes had been held, and 1000 members attended a full course of instruction. The examinations resulted in 786 successfully qualifying for certificates, while 108 gained medallions, and 92 labels. New branches and detached classes were formed at Randwick, Dundoo, Leichhardt, Rose Bay, Lockhart, T. S. Dartford, O. T. Port Jackson, South Mine and Zinc Corporation (Broken Hill), Armidale, Richmond, and Bega. The receipts were £511 16s 11d, and the expenditure £502 17s 6d, leaving a credit balance of £8 19s 5d. There was also £60 in the Savings Bank.

The report was adopted, and office-bearers elected.

HANDS SWELLED AND CRACKED.

Ocean View, Lilcunda, Vic.—"Cuticura Ointment has cured my hands after suffering intense misery for several years. About eleven years ago little red spots appeared on both hands which itched so terribly that I would rub them with the scissors till the skin came off. They grew worse, swelled and cracked, causing great pain, which however was not so bad as the irritation. I have waked in the morning to find my hands bleeding where I had scratched them while asleep. After being like this for about three years my hands gradually got better, but never well. My sympathies who had suffered from weeping eczema and who had tried everything cured himself with the Cuticura Remedies. He persuaded me to try the Cuticura Ointment, which I did. I used two tins of the Cuticura Ointment as directed, and my hands are well, the skin sound, smooth and soft, whereas since they first took bad they have been hard, cracked and dry, often not bleeding." (Signed), Mrs. H. Berryman, June, 1912.

THE REIGN OF THE READY-MADE!

AS the world advances, everything advances, and so it is with the Ready-made Suit. In years past it was considered that anything would do for the man who wore ready-mades, or, as they were termed, "hand me downs," or "slop" suits.

But, when Lowe's entered the arena of the clothing business, they realised the great necessity that existed for making ready-made clothes of high standard.

They saw the fallacy of making the ready-made suit wearer take any old thing—saw that he was badly catered for—so they set to work with a determination to turn out ready-to-wear suits that look as smart as order garments.

Isn't it quite as feasible that the smartest style and correct fit can be had in ready-to-wear clothes as it is possible for smartly dressed men to buy the most fashionable boots ready to wear—to fit at once? Not many men now-a-days wear order boots, because the ready-made boot is perfect in style and fit. And so it is with Lowe's ready-to-wear clothes.

Mind you, we do not in any way wish to discount our big Tailoring-to-order business, but we realise that there are many men—busy business men—men in a hurry—men travelling, who have not the time to wait for order garments; and also men who, from an economical point of view, wear ready-to-wear suits.

To-day we enjoy the distinction of having the largest ready-to-wear clothing departments south of the Equator, carrying an enormous and magnificent stock for the requirements of the younger as well as the older generation. Every range runs in degree, or ⅛, ¼, and ½ sizes to fit tall, short, stout, or slender men. Every suit is modelled on the very latest American and London styles.

The most particular dresser, the man who is hard to please in matters of clothes, will obtain entire satisfaction from Lowe's ready-for-wear suits. We guarantee perfection in fit, finish, and material, and back our guarantee by refunding your purchase money should you be dissatisfied with your order.

LAW REPORT.

NO. 2 JURY COURT.

DISPUTE ABOUT A BORE.

J. Martin and Co. v Hartley.

The case is still part heard.

IN CHAMBERS.

(Before Mr. Justice Harvey.)

THEATRICAL DISPUTE.

MOTION TO SET ASIDE A WRIT.

Bailey v McCrea.

Mr. E. M. Mitchell, instructed by Mr. A. G. de L. Arnold, appeared for the defendant, Fred McCrea, and moved to make absolute an order nisi by which plaintiff, Charles Ranger Bailey, was called upon to show cause why a writ of ca re, issued against defendant, should not be set aside or, in the alternative, why the bond given in the action should not be delivered up and cancelled on the following, among other grounds: (1) that the plaintiff has not adduced evidence that he has prima facie a good cause of action in respect of his claim against defendant, and that such cause of action is to the amount of £20 or upwards, or that plaintiff has sustained damage to that amount; (2) that the action would not have been defeated unless the defendant had been forthwith apprehended under the writ; (3) that under the circumstances a writ of ca re should not have been issued. Mr. Curtis, instructed by Mr. Neville W. Montagu, appeared for plaintiff to oppose the application. It appeared from the affidavits that plaintiff had commenced an action against defendant for alleged breach of agreements by which, in consideration of the plaintiff, arranging and financing a tour of a theatrical company known as the "Butterflies" in Australia and New Zealand, and providing theatres, halls, etc., the defendant promised to pay plaintiff 60 per cent. of the gross receipts of the tour in the larger towns of Australia and New Zealand, and 50 per cent. of the receipts of the smaller towns of the tour. Plaintiff further averred that he was always ready and willing to carry out his part of the agreement, but defendant repudiated it, whereby plaintiff suffered loss and was put to expense. Damages were laid at £1000. On October 9, on the application of plaintiff, Mr. Justice Pring issued an order for a writ of ca re, under which defendant was arrested, but a bail bond was given by him, and he was released from custody. The affidavit upon which the order for the writ was issued set out that defendant was the controller of the company known as the "Butterflies," and that in violation of the agreement between him and plaintiff, he had made arrangements in Australasia for the company to give a series of entertainments, without in any way providing for the percentage to be paid to plaintiff. The latter is the lessee of His Majesty's Theatre, Auckland (N.Z.). As defendant was about to leave with the company for Victoria to appear in Melbourne and other parts of that State for the next six months, and had refused to give security to answer the action plaintiff applied for and obtained the order for the issue of the writ of ca re. It was now contended by defendant that the issue of the writ was not justified on the true facts.

The case is part heard.

PROTRACTED LITIGATION.

Trudeau v Williams.

This was an action by the nominal defendant for an order staying all proceedings in the action upon the grounds that the Government was not liable and that the plaintiff manifestly must fail at the trial, and secondly, that the action was frivolous and vexatious. It was stated that this was the third of a series of actions brought against the Government in respect of the construction through plaintiff's property at Pennant Hills of a public roadway in the year 1898, the declaration being framed in trespass. The first action was settled by the payment to Augusto Lorenzini and his wife of a sum of £307 19s 9d, and a release executed. The second action was brought by Augusto Lorenzini against the Government for a continuing trespass, as it was stated, and after a hearing lasting six days, the plaintiff, who conducted his case in person, was non-suited. The present plaintiff sued as trustee of Mrs. Lorenzini, he having been appointed such on February 25, 1913. The Government, for whom Mr. Loxton, K.C., appeared, instructed by the Crown Solicitor, contended that, as the effect of the Local Government Act, 1906, all responsibility on the part of the Government in respect of the said roadway came to an end. The case of Avery v The Harbour Trust Commissioners, 22 W.N. 55 was cited as an authority for staying proceedings by a judge in Chambers, where it was made to appear that the action could not succeed. Mr. E. A. Beeby appeared for plaintiff to oppose the motion. His Honor made an order staying the proceedings as requested, with costs.

IN EQUITY.

(Before the Chief Judge in Equity, Mr. Justice Simpson.)

INJUNCTION AGAINST TOBACCONIST.

Mr. C. E. Manning (instructed by Messrs. Minter, Simpson, and Co.) moved on behalf of Henry Clay and Bock and Company, Ltd., cigar manufacturers, to continue an injunction against Stephen J. Eddy, tobacconist, of Market-street, Sydney, in respect to the sale of cigars got up and described in a manner alleged to be an infringement of the plaintiffs' trade mark rights.

Mr. J. A. Browne (instructed by Messrs. McDonell and Moffit) appeared for the defendant.

The statement of claim set out that the plaintiffs carried on the manufacture of cigars at Havana, in the island of Cuba, and had a brand of cigars on the market which were known as "Golden Eagle" cigars. It had recently been discovered that the defendant was selling cigars, not of the plaintiff company's manufacture, under the name of "Golden Eagle" cigars, and in boxes which were a colourable imitation of those in which the plaintiffs' cigars were supplied. The defendant had been written to, but had given no satisfactory reply, and the plaintiffs had instituted a suit against him.

By consent, his Honor granted a continuation till the hearing of the suit of an injunction restraining the defendant, his servants, and agents from infringing the plaintiff company's trade mark, No. 2935, and from passing off goods not of the plaintiff company's manufacture, in any way bearing the device of an eagle perched with outspread wings, or any other device colourably resembling the plaintiff company's trade mark, or under the name of "Golden Eagle;" or otherwise imitating the get-up of the plaintiff company's cigars.

MORTGAGEES' APPLICATION.

Ward v Hemery.

The hearing was concluded of the application of Herbert Kaspar Bors and Otto Bors for leave to bring a suit to restrain the sale of certain mining property ordered by the Court in the case of Thomas William Ward v Charles Jersey Hemery, on the ground that they had title paramount by mortgage over Hemery's interest in the property. His Honor allowed the application to be amended to one, asking that the sale be restrained conditionally on the applicants instituting a suit, the applicants to be at liberty to notify any purchaser of their encumberance on the property.

His Honor said the applicants ought, in the first place, to have an opportunity of raising their contention as to the effect of their securities, and they could do this in a fresh suit without the leave of the Court if they did not join the receivers as parties. In his Honor's opinion the receivers, in whose hands the property was placed as the result of the Court's decree dissolving the partnership of Ward and Hemery, were not necessary parties to any such new suit, and therefore the Court's leave was not necessary. If the suit was instituted within seven days, the sale ordered by the Court ought to be suspended, and he would grant the amended application in this respect until the suit was disposed of on condition that the brothers Bors and Ward each paid half the expenses of working the mine till the new suit was finished. His Honor refused to remove either of the receivers, as he had been asked to do, with a view to a refusal of the applicants taking the position, and ordered the applicants to pay the costs of the receivers on the application, without prejudice to the questions of how these costs should ultimately be borne. Liberty was given to Ward to amend the statement of claim in the suit of Ward v Hemery by adding the brothers Bors as defendants.

Mr. Mann (instructed by Messrs. Macgregor and Palmer) appeared for the applicants; Mr. Maughan (instructed by Messrs. Norton, Smith, and Co.), for the respondent Ward; and Mr. C. E. Manning (instructed by Messrs. Norton, Smith, and Co.), for the receivers—Peter Ross Sutherland and Arthur James Brierley.

(Before Mr. Justice Harvey.)

A CONDITIONAL BEQUEST.

The Court's ruling was sought on certain matters in connection with the will of the late Kate Van Wessem, formerly of Darlinghurst, the plaintiffs being the Permanent Trustee Company of New South Wales, Ltd., and Henry Van Wessem, as executors and trustees; and the defendants Nicholas Van Wessem and William Van Wessem.

Dr. Waddell (instructed by Mr. Herbert L. Tress) appeared for the plaintiffs; Mr. Jordan (instructed by Messrs. Mackenzie and Mackenzie) for Nicholas Van Wessem; and Mr. Maughan (instructed by Mr. H. L. Tress) for William Van Wessem.

The affidavit of Henry Van Wessem set out that the testatrix in her will dated February 23, 1911, left the whole of her estate on trust for her children, Henry, Kate, Susie, Lena, and the two defendants, and expressly declared that the bequest to Nicholas should not become payable until he had repaid to the trustees the money owing to his mother at the time of her death. The testatrix died in December, 1912, and Nicholas made claim against the trustees for £169 17s 6d, and, having been informed of the provisions of the will, entirely repudiated any liability to his mother. The trustees, however, had a letter which Nicholas Van Wessem had written to the testatrix, in which he admitted that he owed her £250, and, on the other hand, Messrs. Mackenzie and Mackenzie, solicitors, had a document dated December, 1909, in which the testatrix admitted owing her son Nicholas £50. The beneficiaries differed as to whether the claim of the defendant Nicholas should be admitted, and the defendant William Van Wessem was one of those who opposed the claim.

By consent of the parties his Honor ruled that upon the facts appearing in the affidavits the trustees would not be justified in paying to Nicholas Van Wessem his share in the estate, and would be justified in withholding it until accounts between him and the testatrix had been taken. An order was made referring to the Master in Equity the question of the alleged indebtedness of Nicholas Van Wessem to the testatrix, and of the latter to Nicholas, and William Van Wessem was appointed to represent for the purposes of the application all persons interested in the estate other than Nicholas Van Wessem.

A LAND TRANSACTION.

Egan v Elliott.

This was an action brought by John Joseph Egan, farmer and grazier, of Calaria, Trundle (N.S.W.), against Joseph John Elliott, farmer and grazier, of Trundle, for a specific performance of an agreement with regard to the purchase of land by the defendant from the plaintiff.

Mr. James and Mr. Pitt (instructed by Messrs. Currie and Wood, agents for Mr. R. H. K. Wood, of Parkes), appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. Loxton, K.C., and Mr. Pike (instructed by Messrs. McIntosh and Crowther, of Parkes) for the defendant.

The statement of claim set out that in February, 1912, a memorandum of agreement was made, whereby the plaintiff was to sell to the defendant, a homestead selection, containing 1156 acres, at the price of £3236 16s, this being £2 16s per acre. The purchaser was to pay a deposit of £100 on the signing of the agreement and the balance on January 19, 1913. The vendor agreed to obtain the necessary certificate from the Minister for Lands as to the fulfilment of conditions in respect to the selection, and if the transfer could not be completed for want of the certificate, the deposit was to be refunded. The purchaser was to have the right to use the lands for grazing pending the completion of the transfer, and, in the event of circumstances preventing the transfer through no default of either party, rent was to be paid for the use of the land at 2s 6d per acre per annum. The defendant had refused to carry out the agreement, and the plaintiff submitted that the defendant should be ordered to pay the loss occasioned by this refusal. It was asked that the defendant might be decreed specifically to perform the agreement.

The defendant contended that the selection in question was liable to forfeiture owing to failure to carry out an obligation to live on the property. He further stated that as he was the holder of a conditional lease which was not within working distance of the selection he could not carry out the condition of residence if he purchased the latter, and therefore one of the holdings would become liable to forfeiture. It was also alleged that the purchase was conditional on the defendant being able to re-sell the lands before January 19, 1913, and that in the event of their not being sold, the memorandum of agreement was not to be binding. The defendant had not been able to re-sell the homestead selection, and circumstances had prevented the transfer through no default of the defendant. The defendant offered to pay the difference between the deposit already paid and the rent payable by him for the use of the lands.

The case is part heard.

IN DIVORCE.

(Before Mr. Justice Gordon.)

RAMSAY v RAMSAY.

KEARON v KEARON.

This was a case in which Rosa Amelia Kearon (formerly Simonetti) sought a restitution of conjugal rights against William Kearon. They were married on August 24, 1907, at Sydney. An order was made in favour of petitioner.

HANKIN v HANKIN.

William Alexander Hankin petitioned for divorce from Hannah Mary Hankin (formerly Hale), to whom he was married at Cootamundra in 1894. Desertion was the ground alleged. His Honor was satisfied as to the desertion, but he reserved his decision on the question of delay.

INDUSTRIAL MAGISTRATE'S COURT.

(Before Mr. G. C. Addison.)

BREACHES OF AWARDS.

Inspector Wallace appeared in a case against Mark Blow, of the Crown Studios, George-street, for a breach of the Picture Frame Makers' award, in that he employed three improvers in a proportion in excess of one female apprentice or improver to each journeywoman. The proceedings were taken at the defendant's instigation as a test case. In Court the defendant did not wish to proceed. His worship imposed a fine of 5s and costs.

Inspector Taylor proceeded against R. Roberts, senr., of 407 Kent-street, trading with others as H. Roberts and Co., for a breach of the Printing Trades award (for females), in that he failed to pay Florence Norton, a senior hand, the minimum weekly wage of £1 3s. Defendant was fined £3 and costs.

Procedings were taken against the same defendant for failing to pay Harry Muir, a junior hand, the minimum weekly wage of 18s. A plea of guilty was entered, the employee being paid 17s 6d per week. A fine of 30s and costs was imposed.

Inspector Henstock proceeded against Robert McKenzie Meldrum, of Victoria-avenue, Chatswood, for a breach of the Food Supply and Distribution Award, by employing as a bread-carter, J. Mustard, a youth under the age of 16 years, not being defendant's son. Defendant was a baker at Chatswood, and employed Mustard, aged 15 years, between August 7 and 14 last. Defendant stated that one of his men had sprained his wrist and could not work. The wrist was afterwards found to be broken. The lad did the bread-carting, as no one who knew the customers could be got. Defendant was fined 10s and costs.

William Higginson proceeded against Charles Davey and George A. Davey, trading as Edwin Davey and Sons, Pyrmont, for a breach of the Enginedrivers' Award, by failing to pay complainant the sum of £1 15s due to him. Mr. Croft appeared for the complainant, and Mr. Fawl for the defendant. The complainant was an engine-driver in defendant's mill. On January 17, 1912, the Milling Board Award was made. Mr. Fawl submitted that the award was in force at the time of the alleged breach.

Mr. Addison, in finding for the complainant, held that, notwithstanding the fact that the award under which the claim was made was held by the Industrial Court to be one which the board was not justified in making, in view of the fact that the Milling Board Award had sufficiently dealt with the same classes of persons, he was bound, under section 49, to make an order if he found by a fact that the work had been done under the award and the amount had not been paid. In this case the Enginedrivers' Award was in force during the period in question. He worked under it, and was paid less than the rate prescribed.

The Archbishop of Bombay writes: "I use Sanatogen every now and then under my doctor's advice, and always derive great benefit from it."

Dr. Claude L. Wheeler

—the well-known medical author, writes: "Sanatogen is a highly concentrated and very nutritious food, endowed with special tonic properties. The gain achieved from its aid is permanent; it builds up, fortifies and strengthens the cells of the body. It is a purely scientific and physiological restorative, and there is no reaction."

Sir H. Hesketh Bell, K.C.M.G.,

writes: "For a man doing hard, mental work in an enervating climate, there is, according to my experience, no better invigorator than Sanatogen."

The Bishop of Southampton

writes: "It gives me pleasure to bear my testimony to the value of Sanatogen as an invigorating tonic and restorative. I took it for the first time some three years ago, simply as a remedy for fatigue due to pressure of work. I take it one month in three during the year."

The Rt. Hon. Sir Frederick Milner, Bart.,

writes: "Sir Frederick Milner was much run down from overwork when he took Sanatogen, and it certainly did good. It seems both to nourish and give strength."

"After a fair trial"—that is the basis of the unexampled verdict in favour of Sanatogen, the tonic food, which has been given by over 16,000 practising physicians, including many of the greatest specialists in the world.

Over their own signatures they commend and specifically comment on the powers of this genuine tonic food in all run-down conditions—in Anaemia, Digestive Disorders, Wasting Diseases—and, above all, in Nervous Exhaustion and General Weakness.

This remarkable endorsement, coming from physicians who habitually prescribe Sanatogen in their practices, is the best possible evidence of what Sanatogen has actually accomplished in restoring health and rescuing nerves that have been wasted by illness, anxiety or the strain of overwork.

The nervous system is splendidly helped by Sanatogen because the scientifically combined elements of this ideal tonic food supply to the nerves the very nourishment their exhaustion demands. Sanatogen is a true food—the true food—for hungry, exhausted nerves.

You Give Sanatogen a Fair Trial.

Do not the needs of your nerves find a reassuring message in the verdict of the multitude of medical men who have honoured Sanatogen? Does it not suggest that You should give Sanatogen a "fair trial" in the interest of that highest blessing—perfect health?

If you only knew, as these eminent doctors know, how splendidly invigorating Sanatogen is, you would not put off taking it a moment longer. Buy a tin now—it is sold at all Chemists, price 2/6d., 3/6d. and 6/6d.

DISTRICT COURT.

(Before Judge Murray.)

TIME-PAYMENT FURNITURE.

A COMPLICATED CASE.

Judgment was given in the case in which Marcus Clark and Co., Ltd., of Sydney, sued W. J. Allen, of Porter-street, Waverley, for £55 14s for alleged wrongful conversion of furniture belonging to the plaintiffs.

Mr. W. J. Curtis (instructed by Mr. J. J. Jagelman) appeared for the plaintiffs; and Mr. A. R. Watt (instructed by Mr. W. D. Schrader) for the defendant.

His Honor said the furniture had been sold by the plaintiffs on the hire-purchase system, and had been distrained upon by the defendant as landlord of the person who hired the goods. The bailiff was withdrawn, and the furniture taken possession of by Mr. Litchfield, who guaranteed the rent on the understanding that the furniture was the property of the hirer, and went into occupation of the premises, the hirer going away. The plaintiffs subsequently demanded the furniture, which had not been paid for, and within two days the landlord again placed the bailiff in the house. The goods were then sold by auction, and purchased by Mr. Litchfield. His Honor pointed out that the defendant had refused the plaintiffs permission to go on his premises and recover their furniture, which at the time was not held under distraint. The landlord had the legal right to recover his rent, but the plaintiffs in equity had come in first, demanding the goods when there was no distraint. Judgment was given for the plaintiff company for £35, with £7 7s costs.

A stay of proceedings was granted for eight days.

CLAIM FOR £400.

Herbert Walter Worger, of Sydney, investor, claimed £400 damages from Edward Arthur Butcher, of Sydney, traveller, in respect to a motor car which the defendant hired, and allegedly so negligently used that the car was damaged, and the plaintiff lost the benefit of an insurance policy over the car and the value and profits of the car. The plaintiff contended that the defendant had agreed to return the car in good condition, and the defence was that the car was not in good condition when hired.

Mr. H. G. Edwards (instructed by Mr. W. Arnott) appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. F. Coen (instructed by Messrs. Freehill, Donovan, and Hollingdale) for the defendant.

The case stands part heard.

QUARTER SESSIONS.

(Before Judge Backhouse and juries.)

Mr. Herbert Harris, Crown Prosecutor.

ACQUITTED.

William Henry Grimes and Charlotte Grimes, husband and wife, were charged with having feloniously received three doors and 30 sheets of galvanised iron, the property of Goodlet and Smith, Ltd., at Sydney, on June 16, knowing at the time that the goods had been stolen.

Mr. J. W. Abigail appeared for the accused, who pleaded not guilty.

A number of witnesses were called for the prosecution, including three carters, who stated that they took the property to the accused's place, and in each instance sold to Mrs. Grimes doors for 8s 6d each, the sale price of which was 16s each. The galvanised iron was bought for 1s 6d per sheet, the usual price being 3s 1d. Mrs. Grimes had very shortly before bought similar iron and paid 3s 1d per sheet for it.

Mr. Abigail contended that there was no evidence of receiving against the male accused, as he was not present when the sales were made.

His Honor expressed the opinion that there appeared to be very little case against either accused.

The jury returned a verdict of not guilty, and the accused were discharged.

PLEADED GUILTY.

Henry Buckley pleaded guilty to a charge of having at Sydney, on September 13, maliciously damaged two plate-glass windows, the property of Alfred Sanderson Edmunds and others, of the value of £8.

Mr. J. W. Abigail, who appeared for Buckley, said that his client had been convicted at the Central Police Court of having thrown the missiles which caused the damage, and had thus been practically proved guilty of the offence in another form. His Honor agreed that such was the case, and on Buckley promising to make restitution he was ordered to be bound over in his own recognisance to appear for sentence if called upon.

EMBEZZLEMENT.

Victor Bruce Wynne pleaded guilty to the embezzlement of £46 0s 7d and £30, the property of Thomas Alfred Field, by whom he was employed, at Enfield, on July 19.

Wynne had been an accountant and collector for the Edderton Meatworks, and it was stated by a professional accountant that the general deficiency amounted to £500, or possibly more.

The Crown Prosecutor said that the shortage was £300.

Mr. J. W. Abigail, who appeared for Wynne, said that the defalcations only amounted to £101, and the whole of the money was taken in a period of about 10 weeks. It was the same old story—horse-racing. Up to the time of the committal of this offence the prisoner had borne a good character, and had occupied positions of trust.

The prisoner was remanded for sentence.

GUILTY OF ASSAULT.

Albert Smith pleaded not guilty to a charge of having maliciously wounded Henry Webber Bailey at Dulwich Hill on the 20th ult.

Mr. J. W. Abigail appeared for the accused.

Bailey said that he was of opinion that the accused did not maliciously injure him.

At this stage his Honor said that what had better be done would be to alter the charge to one of common assault, to which the accused could plead guilty, which was done, and Smith was bound over, in his own recognisance, to appear for sentence when called upon.

A PERJURY CHARGE.

William Cotterill was charged with making a false statement before Mr. H. S. Hawkins, special magistrate at the Children's Court, at Sydney, on June 13 last, on an occasion when the truth of the same was material.

The accused pleaded not guilty and was defended by Mr. H. C. G. Moss.

The jury returned a verdict of guilty, with a recommendation to mercy. Cotterill was remanded for sentence.

POLICE COURTS.

CHARGE OF ASSAULT.

Charles Snow, 27, was charged at the Central Police Court yesterday with having assaulted William Kindness, a visitor from Mackay, Queensland, and robbed him of 12s, on Monday evening.

Kindness said that he inquired of Snow the way to the Quay, and instead of taking him there the accused took him to the Lower Domain, where he was assaulted, receiving a gash in the throat which necessitated the insertion of some stitches, the result of a heavy blow. He was struck on the mouth. "If you call out or make a noise I will blow your brains out," Snow told him; also ordering him to turn out his pockets. He gave Snow the silver coins he had in one of his trousers pockets. Witness had about £8 or £9 on him, also a gold watch and chain. Just then Snow released his hold somewhat, and witness broke away and ran for about 25 yards, but Snow called out "Come back; I will shoot you." Finally witness met a civilian. Snow came by them, and said that he would "drop" any man who followed. Snow ran, and they followed him, calling out "Stop." He was afterwards caught near the gates by two young men named Joseph Allan and Henry Press, who took him to the police station. Witness said that he was perfectly sober.

The accused reserved his defence, and was committed for trial to the November Quarter Sessions.

MILITARY CADETS FINED.

Before Mr. Smithers, S.M., at the Balmain Police Court yesterday, James Longobardi, a military cadet, was fined £1, with 8s costs, in default to be confined at Middle Head for 10 days, for having failed to fulfil his drill obligations. Longobardi's excuse was that he had split one of his hands.

CHARGE OF STEALING.

At the Balmain Police Court, before Mr. Smithers, S.M., yesterday, a youth named Alonzo V. Brooke was committed for trial at the Quarter Sessions on November 3 on a charge of having stolen certain articles valued at about £50, the property of the Amphorus Whitelead Company, which had, until recently, carried on business at Bayview-street, Balmain. Bail was allowed, self in £50 and two sureties in £25 each.

BENEFICIAL RAINS.

HEAVY IN FAR WEST.

SQUALL IN THE CITY.

Owing to the rapid movement of a very energetic Antarctic disturbance, which covered New South Wales, a severe westerly squall, accompanied by rain, passed over Sydney shortly after 9 a.m. yesterday.

The wind veered from the north-west to the west south-west, and at 9.10 a.m. a velocity of 60 miles was reached. During the squall which was only of short duration, 14 points of rain were registered, while the temperature fell 10 deg. in as many minutes. At 10 a.m. the wind veered back to the north-west, and the rain clouds cleared away.

Good rains have been registered over the southern half of the State, extending from Broken Hill to the Hunter River districts. The best falls were received on the central and southern tablelands, while fairly good falls occurred in the Riverina and in the extreme south-west.

The heaviest falls were:—Orange 162 points, Albury 158, Crookwell 156, Yass 140, Bathurst 127, Rockley 125, Bungendore 120, Howlong 115, Gunning 113, Taralga 108, and Murrumburrah 107.

The temperatures have fallen generally, except in the extreme north-east. In the southern districts the differences in the morning temperatures ranged from 6 to 22 degrees lower than on Tuesday morning. The highest readings were:—Quambone and Quirindi each 100deg., Pilliga 99deg., Moree and Jerry's Plains each 96deg.

Fine and colder weather, with squally south-west winds, may be expected generally, with the exception of a few thunderstorms in the north-east.

COOLOGONG.—Eighty-seven points of rain fell on Tuesday night. This will save most of the crops in this district.

CROOKWELL.—During Tuesday night steady rain fell, 156 points being recorded. After a month's hot and dry weather it was much needed by the crops.

JUNEE.—Light rain fell for 16 hours, and 76 points were recorded. The farmers and business people are jubilant. Good crops are now assured.

LOCKHART.—Up to noon on Tuesday Lockhart district had been favoured with 25 points of rain, and the sky was still heavily overcast. Farmers consider that excellent crops are assured. Haycutting will be the order of the day from this time, and the prospects are excellent.

LITHGOW.—On Thursday night it rained heavily, with a strong wind, and at 9 o'clock on Wednesday morning 85 points had been registered. The change is very welcome.

MOLONG.—Heavy rain was general all over this district, 108 points were registered. This means the salvation of the majority of crops, which were in a bad state in many instances, especially the late-sown ones. It has turned what would have undoubtedly been a poor harvest into a prospective, excellent yield.

PORTLAND.—Splendid rain fell here on Tuesday night. 120 points were registered. The rain was very badly needed, as water for household use was almost exhausted.

TULLAMORE.—Splendid rain has fallen throughout the district, and there is every appearance of more.

MEXICO.

If the latest developments in Mexico be any criterion, there is likely to be serious trouble in the immediate future. We are now informed that General Huerta has declared himself dictator and has suspended the Constitution; and as this has followed upon the wholesale arrest of members of the Chamber of Deputies, it is clear that he is prepared to go to extremes. Both Houses of Parliament had passed resolutions of practical defiance of the self-constituted President in so far as the demand for a missing senator was to be pressed home; but after the Cromwellian act against the Deputies, the Senate backed down. Now it may be supposed that Parliament does not count, and it is certain that President Wilson's continued call for free elections to regularise the position has been treated with contempt, and the elections will not be recognised at all. Of what value would an appeal to the people of Mexico be when General Huerta cares nothing for the people's representatives and is prepared to lock them up at any sign of independent feeling? But President Wilson has required that the Mexican Cromwell shall not present himself for election as President. He has been ordered to step down, and when President Wilson addressed his message on Mexico to Congress in August last, he advised all Americans domiciled in Mexico to leave at once. This was commented upon in British and Continental journals as hardly tactful in the circumstances, and the Americans concerned said that they were not afraid to stay on. Now, however, the situation has become more acute. It was suggested then that the Government of the United States contemplated a blockade of Mexico to prevent the importation of arms, and there can be no doubt about General Huerta's fears. His special agent was in Washington soon after the Message to Congress was delivered and was acclaimed there as wise and necessary; but as President Wilson's conditions had not been complied with, Senor Gamboa was not given an interview. It was recognised as significant that he should be at the American capital, though the real significance of the position at the moment was that neither side would give way; and the impasse then reached has now been overcome, not by diplomacy or inevitable concessions, but by an advance on General Huerta's part to extremes.

What will President Wilson now do? He has announced to the Mexican dictator that if any of the arrested Deputies are injured he will be displeased, but does that mean that the United States will also go to extremes? It is undoubtedly a very difficult situation for any leader to deal with, because the path has now apparently been closed to negotiation. Action on one side can only be met by action on the other, and yet, as far as the United States are concerned, nothing has been done by General Huerta which may be construed as a challenge or classed as an insult. The Deputies are to be put on their trial. They have been arrested, therefore, not because they defied the dictator, or insisted rather that he should recognise the rights of Parliament, but because they have broken the laws. Such is, in effect, the explanation to the world. Unfortunately, the world does not forget how Senor Madero, Huerta's predecessor, was treated. He was arrested and shot. The story in his case was that he had attempted to escape; and when indignation against what seemed very like a brutal murder grew hot in all directions, an inquiry was ordered, only to result in the verdict that everything had been done in due order. General Huerta whitewashed himself, so it has been generally felt, and that was supposed to be the end of it. Are rebellious Deputies to be killed under similar circumstances? President Wilson seems afraid of something of the sort, and his wrath at Madero's death is supposed to be largely responsible for the refusal at Washington to accept Huerta as ruler of Mexico. This attitude has involved much trouble for General Huerta, because without the recognition of the United States he cannot raise money. He is like Tantalus, in that the money is waiting and can be obtained, since other Powers have recognised an accomplished fact in his rise to power. There are plenty of financiers waiting to lend to Mexico, but only on condition that there is to be no trouble with Washington. It is easy to see, of course, that if President Wilson were moved to take extreme steps, war would result, and in the course of the conflict all security would vanish. Moreover, there has recently been a new interpretation of the Monroe Doctrine. With Panama responsibilities upon her, America has been indicating her determination to deal firmly with Central American States if they give trouble; and the draft treaty with Nicaragua, even though not ratified by the Senate, has made students of the new development exclaim that it is a step towards the something which up to the present has been repudiated and denied. The United States now do not propose to stand any nonsense; and, curiously enough, it is a Democratic Cabinet, with peace-loving Mr. Bryan, as responsible Minister, which has called out in such peremptory tones. But this directly affects Mexico, and the treaty mentioned has probably been held over because of the delicate situation which has arisen there. Since it was discussed, however, General Huerta has gone from denial of President Wilson's demands to practical defiance, and the world will again ask: What next? There is every promise of further complications, and if war is not the outcome it will only be because President Wilson waits for some outrage on American citizens to force his hand. Meanwhile, he says that Mexico already has to face a bill for foreign claims of five hundred million dollars in gold! Perhaps General Huerta thinks he may as well be hanged for a sheep as a lamb, and is prepared to go to the last extreme.

THE NEW HEBRIDES.

The Condominium in the New Hebrides has been a subject of keen concern to Australians, and the failure of the plan has been becoming increasingly evident. On Tuesday we gave an interview with Mr. Paton, who put the case from the missionary point of view—and a very pessimistic view it was. There is not, and there need not be, any feeling of hostility to the French settlers or the French administration; but no one can get away from the fact that the system leaves a very great deal to be desired, and it is likely to continue to do so until some drastic change is made. We have known this for a very long time, but Mr. Paton sums up the position in a dispassionate and convincing fashion. His main point, of course, is the treatment meted out to natives; a treatment that makes progress practically impossible. We may allow some little discount for the missionary point of view, but there seems no doubt at all that the case against a harsh and inefficient administration has been completely made out. Without wishing to make invidious comparisons, we cannot but allow that the treatment of native races is one of the conspicuous glories of the British Empire; and where, under a joint control, we find ourselves unable to maintain that tradition it is only natural that we should be deeply concerned. Mr. Paton put the matter in a nutshell. The Condominium leaves a very great deal undone that ought to be done, but even what it is supposed to do is not accomplished. In one word, the law is not enforced against French residents, and they appear to revel in their impunity. There is sometimes an argument from statistics that cannot be gainsaid; and Mr. Paton points out that the records of the joint court show that in the few instances where fines are inflicted on British settlers they are always collected, while when they are inflicted on the French they seldom are. It is not the constitution of the Condominium that is as much at fault as the inevitably biassed administration which it receives. The best French opinion, no doubt, agrees with our own; but in practice that opinion seems to be of very little service. We gave the other day the views of an enlightened Frenchman on these matters. M. Bernus frankly acknowledged all the faults of administration of which British residents complain.

It is well that we have evidence that this is admitted by distinguished Frenchmen, because while this is so there is always the opportunity for us to occupy some common ground. No one supposes that France would willingly condone an injustice to a native race, especially an injustice that incidentally stood in the way of progress. But her colonies are isolated units, far removed from any effective application of public opinion, and at the mercy of a bureaucracy and of sporadic settlers not necessarily of the highest type. The evidence shows quite clearly that in effect the Court does nothing to protect native interests, and that the conditions of the convention are flagrantly violated almost every day. When a Frenchman declares that he finds in the New Hebrides "an actual regime of slavery" it is surely time to call a halt and to endeavour to discover some way out of a condition of uncontrolled misrule. A more poignant indictment of an administration theoretically humane was probably never written than the one to which we refer, and it confirms all that has been said by British missionaries as to the injustices that are daily perpetrated. A correspondent of our own last month gave a vivid description of the way in which the alleged protection of native and British interests works out. He spoke of the Joint Court as a "mountain in labour," and that very aptly describes the uselessness of its results. French interests have every right to expect to be conserved, but the overwhelming dominance of Great Britain in the Pacific gives us a status that cannot be denied, and that ought to be preeminent. Our correspondent in the articles to which we have already referred, put the case as simply and clearly as possible; as, indeed, we have been putting it for a number of years past. British influence and British enterprise in the Pacific are always a growing quantity; the same cannot be said of the French, and the inescapable end must be the survival of our own rights, whatever allowance we may be willing to make for those of France.

THE MAIN ROADS.

It cannot be expected that the £250,000 which has now been allotted to the various local authorities to assist them in maintaining the main roads will allow of those roads being placed in the condition in which they ought to be placed and kept. The Chief Engineer for National and Local Government Works is quite explicit upon that point. In making the classification of the shires and municipalities to which the money is to be granted, he states emphatically that it is out of the question to expect that the roads of the State can be put into satisfactory order by the expenditure of this sum. But, at any rate, it is something—more, indeed, it appears, than the shires would have received under the classification made in December last. Under that scheme they would have obtained £308,000. Under the present scheme they are given the ordinary grant of £150,000, and over and above this a grant of £200,000, which latter sum they are free to spend on this condition, that it is to be devoted to the main roads. Besides what is granted to the shires, the towns obtain £50,000, of which £10,000 goes to the municipalities in the metropolis, and £40,000 to country municipalities. The whole principle on which the grant has been divided is that help should be given to those of the local authorities who happen to be responsible for main roads from which people elsewhere draw the chief benefit, or which have to carry a heavier or rougher traffic than the ordinary means of the district suffice to meet.

Although it will be impossible to place the roads of New South Wales on an equality with those of other civilised countries without the expenditure of a far larger sum than this, the public will expect to see a considerable improvement in the condition into which the shires have allowed the roads to fall of late. It is an open secret that if anything impressed our recent British Parliamentary visitors more than the richness of the North Coast pastures it was the awfulness of the North Coast roads; and that party contained several Canadians, who are not unacquainted with the sort of road that can reasonably be expected in a new country. The earliest roads in Australia were good enough, and those early roads remain some of the very best of our roads to-day. But the present generation of Australians has never known what good roads are. We have never tasted the advantages that arise from their existence, and what we have never known we are apt not to miss. It is only that fact that can explain how it is that we have for so long acquiesced in a style of road and road-making for which the nearest parallels are to be found in China or Siberia. It will, probably, need an expenditure of at least a million and a half to put the roads of the State into proper condition, or even to maintain them when once properly repaired. And in this connection one fact is clear above all others—and that is that the people of this State simply cannot afford to spend the million and a half that has been foreshadowed in putting their main roads right, if it is within the power of a single teamster to come along the next week with a load of heavy timber, and do perhaps £1000 worth of damage in a single journey. If any considerable sum is to be expended on the main roads of this State, a law regulating the width of tyres is a matter of simple economic prudence.

THE CITY AND HOUSING.

The deputation from the Trades and Labour Council which waited on the Lord Mayor yesterday with the view of urging the desirability of the City Council taking more active steps with regard to housing, was able to point without fear of contradiction to the scarcity of housing accommodation, which has for some time been one of the most serious factors in our civic life. Too much attention has been devoted of late to the problem of increased rents, and too little to the dearth of houses. The former is, of course, a very important matter. The very considerable augmentation of the house rents in all classes of property has been responsible to a larger extent than any other cause for the increased cost of living in Sydney during recent years. This has been due partly to the fact that the demand for houses has exceeded the supply. But the land and other taxation has also contributed to the increase; landlords have not been slow to pass on the burden which has been placed upon them, with a margin in addition. It is important, no doubt, that our public men should keep this aspect of the economic life of the metropolis continually before them. But the question of the amount of the rent is comparatively unimportant compared with the need for more houses of every description. It does not matter very much what the rent is if no house at all can be secured. Visitors to Sydney express surprise at the large number of married persons who live in boarding houses and lodgings. The domestic problem is one reason for this. But the lack of suitable, or, indeed, any houses, is the more cogent cause.

The deputation yesterday contended that the City Council had an obligation to supply housing accommodation in respect of areas which the council resumed. In England a responsibility in this connection is placed upon the local authorities, and this is one of the matters which should be considered in any general reform of our local government system, which must accompany the creation of a Greater Sydney. It is no doubt true that, as the Lord Mayor indicated, for the general body of the workers the soundest policy with regard to housing lies in building in the outer suburbs and improving the transit facilities thereto. But there are many classes of workers to whom residence in the city is a virtual necessity, and we think that a case has been made out for more activity on the part of the municipality in meeting the needs in this regard. We are in agreement with what was said yesterday as to the relative superiority of houses over flats. The worker prefers his own cottage as a home, and very properly so, and the recent policy of the Harbour Trust, for instance, has been in this direction. Summarising the position, therefore, an obligation does definitely rest on a public body which dishouses a section of the population to replace the housing accommodation which has been removed if this cannot be adequately supplied elsewhere. Whilst dispersion of congestion is desirable, the interests of those who desire or are compelled to live in the city must not be overlooked. The City Council cannot be expected to solve the whole housing problem of Sydney but it can do something at all events to relieve the present serious position.

WELSH COLLIERY DISASTER.

Every hour the earth revolves on its axis there are calamities in which human life is lost and families left to mourn the death of those near and dear to them, but during the past few days we have heard of two great disasters upon a scale which is fortunately uncommon in the ordinary experience of the world. First came the burning of the Volturno amidst circumstances which made the tragedy peculiarly poignant. Hardly had the details of this become known when our sensibilities are shocked by the news of another tragedy, whose incidents by land are scarcely less appalling than those of the other affair were on the high seas. Colliery disasters are by no means infrequent. In New South Wales we have a melancholy inheritance of memories in the shape of the Bulli and the Mount Kembla catastrophes. In Britain there have been many occasions when death has lurked in the pit and claimed a hecatomb of victims. But the disaster at Senghenydd seems likely to rank among the most awful calamities of its time, and on its present showing it threatens to result in a death-roll which, fortunately, has few equals in the annals of coal-mining. Four hundred men are entombed in the depths. What their fate will be is not yet known, but their prospects of safety are small. Some may have been stricken by the explosion. Many must have succumbed to the dreaded after-damp. The survivors are pent in deep below the surface, waiting, waiting, waiting! The air they have to breathe grows less and less, hunger and thirst weaken them; their only hope is that rescue parties may pierce the walls of their prison before it is too late, and the one consoling thought is that in such circumstances death comes mercifully. And if below the surface men are in desperate straits, at pithead men and women and children are bearing their share of the sorrow. Would-be rescuers cannot go on their errand of mercy, for no one can pass through the after-damp. Wives do not yet know if they are widows, children if they are orphans. In many forms of disaster the worst is soon known; the truth may be cruel, but it is quickly learned. In a colliery explosion there must be a period of suspense, of hoping against hope, and at Senghenydd not the least painful part of the affair is the agony of those who are waiting for tidings.

When one hears of tragedies such as this is one cannot be surprised that the men employed in coal mines demand an adequate recompense for the risks they run. There is a disposition to think of the coal-miner as a man who earns a generous wage, spends it in a somewhat uneconomical fashion, and then demands more. We must remember that they should be paid not only for the work they do, but for the dangers they run. For years the dangers may not seem very apparent, but every now and again there is a disaster which levies a frightful toll. And when such a thing does happen the miner's chance is a small one. He is deep down in the bowels of the earth. His sole exit is up a shaft which becomes a vent for any fire that has broken out or any poisonous gas that has been generated. More often than not all communication with the upper air is broken. He is cut off until such time as the fire dies away or the fumes dissipate, or the rescuers dig their way into his tomb. Some of these men in Wales are buried two thousand feet below the surface, and the probability is that the tunnels in the mine are blocked with fallen earth. At the Whitehaven disaster a few years ago the bodies of the victims were finally found beneath the floor of the North Sea two miles from the English coastline. Mostly when a man is overwhelmed by a catastrophe he has some chance of fighting for his life, but in a colliery he has very little. He is trapped, and he can do nothing but wait to see what Providence does for him. And, whether Providence is going to be kind or harsh, he has to wait a good long time for the verdict. We can but hope that in Wales the period of waiting will be a short one, and that for better or worse the suspense will soon be over.

State Speaker.—On the occasion when members of both sides of the State Parliament were assembled at a social gathering early yesterday morning to celebrate the end of the session, reference was made to the Speaker (Mr. H. D. Morton). The Speaker stated that while in the Chair he knew no party, and he sometimes felt between the devil and the deep blue sea. Which party was the devil and which the deep blue sea he would not attempt to say. (Laughter.) The Premier said that it rarely had fallen to the lot of a member to be selected to fill the Chair during the course of his first experience in Parliament, and he thought it would be generally conceded that Mr. Morton had acquitted himself with credit in the position. (Applause.) Mr. Daniel Levy, speaking on behalf of the Opposition, said he had to acknowledge that Mr. Morton had given all sides of the House fair play. He would not compare him with some other occupant of the Chair. (Laughter.) He thought that in his conduct of the proceedings Mr. Morton had been actuated by a sincere desire to do justice to all, without fear or favour. (Cheers.)

The Roads Problem.—In a report to the Minister, the Chief Engineer for National and Local Government Works makes the following comment respecting road-making:—"Modern requirements are not satisfied with weak earthen roads or those constructed with either gravel or metal; and the haphazard patching, with the filling of holes with soft material, must give way to a more systematic mode of construction and upkeep. In towns especially, and in the neighbourhood of Sydney, it is certainly desirable that tarred metal on a properly constructed foundation of ballast should take the place of the ordinary macadam roadway. A smooth surface is what is needed. Woodblocking of any of the pavements resting on concrete is out of the question, owing to the great cost; but where the financial condition will admit, I certainly think a better style of construction is needed than in the past, and this should be provided, even if less lengths be dealt with. More thorough supervision is also needed to prevent the haphazard way in which it is frequently found that roads are made and maintained."

Long Sittings.—Sittings of the Legislative Assembly during the session just closed have averaged 11 hours 30 minutes, which means that the Assembly, which technically meets each day at 4 o'clock in the afternoon on Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday in each week, has not on an average risen until 3.30 o'clock the next morning.

The Flagship's Tampeons.—It may not generally be known that the eight handsome tampeons (or tampions, or tompions, or whatever they may rightly be spelt—for the dictionaries differ) which fill the muzzles of the Australia's eight 12-inch guns are the work of the greatest sculptor that Australia has produced, the first amongst the sculptors of the British Empire to-day—Mr. Bertram Mackennal. Before the Australia left England it was desired to obtain for the tampeons some design containing a reference to the ship in which Captain Cook discovered the east coast of Australia, and claimed it for the British Empire. One design had been suggested, but the difficulty was that the services of the sculptor who would have executed it would have been somewhat expensive, and naval expenditure does not usually concern itself with mere ornamentation. It was at this juncture that Mr. Mackennal stepped into the breach—or, speaking more accurately, into the muzzle—and designed, as a gift for the flagship, the handsome pattern which fills the Australia's muzzles to-day.

Votes for the Fleet.—The question has been raised as to the electorate in which the 2500 officers and men of the Australian fleet will be enrolled. It has now been decided to enrol them in the East Sydney electorate of New South Wales. The reason for this decision is that Farm Cove, which is in that division, is regarded as the home of the fleet. The basis of the Federal Electoral Act is residential qualification.

The Savings Banks.—The State Government has recently had under consideration fresh proposals from the Commonwealth Bank to take over the State's Saving Bank business. Mr. Holman went into the matter recently, when in Melbourne, and, owing to the political exigencies both of the State and Federal Governments, the subject has been postponed for the time being. The difficulty in the way of a settlement lies in the conversion of the State stocks. These were negotiated in times when money was cheap, and the State stands to lose by any sudden conversion at existing values. The terms recently offered are much more favourable to the State than those proposed when Mr. Fisher was Prime Minister. Nothing further is likely to be done, however, until the political atmosphere both in Federal and State spheres is clearer.

"That Hideous Lie."—"To us emancipated Jews, who live in peace and prosperity among enlightened neighbours whom we respect and hold in brotherly affection, comes the dreadful news from Russia that that hideous lie, that Jews require Gentile blood for the celebration of their Passover, claims afresh its scape-goat victim." Rabbi F. L. Cohen used these words in his sermon at the Great Synagogue at the Atonement service last week, in referring to the trial of Mendel Beilis, which is now proceeding at Kieff, Russia. The Rabbi continued: "A blindly ignorant populace, a savage and corrupt officialdom, a small-minded and narrow-hearted tyrant, have with craft and venom worked up again this hideous charge, not only against the poor victim, Mendel Beilis, but against the whole of the Jewish section of the human race. One consolation arises for us Australian Jews, a stimulus to do all that men may do to retain the precious goodwill of our own enlightened and great-hearted compatriots. I allude to those noble protests issued by leading Christian theologians, men of letters, scientists, politicians, and others in France and Germany, and even Russia itself, against this abominable calumny, capped by that wonderful protest signed by every contemporary name that rouses the pride and evokes the respect of the British nation. These great and good and learned and honoured men declare that 'the question is one of humanity, civilisation, and truth. The blood accusation is a relic of the days of witchcraft and black magic, a cruel and utterly baseless libel on Judaism, an insult to Western culture, and a dishonour to the Churches in whose name it has been falsely formulated by ignorant fanatics.'"

The High Schools.—The Minister for Education, Mr. Carmichael, on Saturday, has taken the quarterly reading of the attendance barometer at the High schools and evening continuation schools for the September term. The gross enrolment at the high schools for the September quarter was 3158, made up of 1927 boys and 1231 girls. There is usually a drop in the attendance during the September quarter, and this year shows a decrease of 206 pupils over the corresponding figures for the June quarter. The average attendance for the September quarter was 2817, which gives a percentage of 91.7 to the average weekly enrolment. Of the pupils who left schools 13 were bursars, 35 scholars, and 133 ordinary pupils—a total of 181 pupils who left during the quarter. Exactly 200 teachers are employed.

An Ancient Spring.—"The total length of bores in Australia may fairly be said to be 500 miles and about 680,000,000 gallons of water obtained daily from the artesian waters of the Commonwealth," said Professor David in the course of a lecture given recently in the hall at the Australian Museum on the subject of "Australian and Tasmanian Lakes: Past and Present." "We have," Professor David said, "mineral wealth beyond the dreams of avarice. In Queensland and New South Wales we have something like 200,000,000,000 tons of coal that can still be worked. In the artesian water and in the coal of Australia and Tasmania we have a vast inheritance that we owe to Providence through the development of the great lakes of the past." Cuddy's Springs, near Brewarrina, had been flowing perhaps for hundreds of thousands of years past, and in bygone times there were large herds of elephantine herbivorous animals that used to make for it when drought came. They became bogged and hundreds, probably thousands, of perfect skeletons of these animals were still preserved. Cuddy's Springs were a great mausoleum of extinct animals. Then there was the class of lakes to which Lakes Gairdner, Eyre, Frome, and Blanche belonged. A proposal had been made to create an inland sea by cutting a canal from Spencer's Gulf. This canal would have to be 200ft deep in the deepest part, but so far away was Lake Eyre that by the time the water got there evaporation would have turned the water into a brine just ready to deposit its salt. Unless they got a canal the size of the one across Panama it would simply fill Lake Eyre with rock salt.

Prosperous England.—"It struck me, while in London, as a peculiar circumstance that in not one in twenty newspapers would one find any news of Australia; and when it did appear, it was usually something in the way of disparagement—like the smallpox outbreak," said Mr. A. C. Rowlandson, general manager of the New South Wales Bookstall Company, Ltd., last week. Mr. Rowlandson has returned from a six months' trip to England and the Continent. "On the other hand," he continued, "the English publications of any standing contain a large amount of news of and from Canada. My opinion is that Canada is being boomed, and it will pay the Commonwealth Government to see that our statistics and the magnitude and resources of our country are brought under the notice of prospective immigrants—especially those who have money to spend." Mr. Rowlandson was struck with the immensity of wealth and the manner in which financial affairs were conducted in England, and said that one could not fail to be impressed with the part which London played in the movements of the world. There was a general wave of prosperity and happiness in England just now, with no sign of any diminution. Referring to the publishing trade, Mr. Rowlandson said that in one establishment he visited they turned out six million copies—chiefly magazines, ladies' journals, and comic papers. In bookbinding there was much to interest the average Australian. In some of the large factories it was possible to turn out 30,000 copies of a book fully bound and ready for the market between nightfall and dawn. Of course, it was nearly all done by machinery.

Electric Sky Signs.—Reference was made at the works committee of the City Council on Tuesday to the increased number of electrical advertising devices around Circular Quay and other places. A letter was read from the secretary of the Institute of Architects, protesting against the unesthetic appearance of these signs, and expressing the hope that every precaution was being taken to ensure their stability. Alderman Griffin pointed out that it had been alleged these dazzling lights were detrimental to navigation. The chairman of the committee (Alderman A. M'Elhone) mentioned that the electrical engineer hoped next year to draw a revenue of £10,000 out of these signs. He warned the aldermen not to be led away by what he termed "the newspaper crusade against this form of advertising." The matter was referred to the full council to deal with.

Prohibiting Marriage.—The Western Australian Legislative Assembly has adopted a new clause in the Criminal Code Bill. The clause provides that any person or corporation that prohibits, under threat of dismissal, the marrying of any employee over 21 years of age shall be liable to a fine of £500, or three months' imprisonment. This clause is the outcome of evidence in the Arbitration Court that the Western Australian Bank prohibits the marriage of all clerks paid less than £200 a year. The leader of the Opposition approved of the clause being inserted.

FEDERAL SESSION.

DAY LABOUR.

MELBOURNE, Wednesday.

The House of Representatives was not long in getting down to business this afternoon. The questions without notice were not many, due perhaps to the fact that Mr. Webster, the inquisitor-general of the Opposition, was not present.

Last night the first item of the works estimates was agreed to, which indicated that the general discussion on the policy of the Government was closed. It is usual when this has happened for the remainder of the items to be rushed through with little or no debate. This session, however, is making its own procedure, which up to date seems to be one of delay.

The first item called to-day was that of the new Treasury buildings in Melbourne. This work was begun by the late Administration, and when it was started there was a lengthy debate in the House as to the merits of day labour and the contract system. To-day the question was brought up again, and all the old stories were retold. The discussion was carried on principally by members of the Opposition side. It needed only a sentence from Ministerialists to set half a dozen Labour members talking. Mr. Bruce Smith was early in the argument, and he set the fight going strongly by hinting that the ex-Prime Minister (Mr. Fisher) was building some cottages by contract. Mr. Fisher indignantly denied that he had anything to do with the building of cottages, or was in any way interested in such a venture. After the debate had proceeded a little way, Mr. Kelly (the hon. Minister in charge of the Home Affairs Department) taunted the Opposition with funking the ordeal of testing which was the cheaper, day labour or contract. He said that when the building in question was first thought of the then Government had an excellent chance of proving which was the cheaper, but they declined to accept the risk, and did not call for tenders. He also added fuel to the fire by saying that Mr. Griffith, the Minister for Works in New South Wales, had thrown over day labour, and had decided to build three millions pounds worth of railways by contract. This was denied by the denier-general of the Opposition (Mr. Roberts). Nothing new was said until Mr. Hughes got up and dared the Government to carry out the promises they made at the elections and do away with day labour. They were not game to do so.

PERSONAL.

The Premier (Mr. Holman) left last night for Cootamundra and Temora.

A number of representative citizens of Sydney were yesterday entertained on board the city's name-ship, H.M.A.S. Sydney, by Captain J. Glossop, R.N. Amongst those present were the Lord Mayor of Sydney (Alderman A. A. Cocks), Mr. T. H. Nesbitt (town clerk), Mr. J. Russell French (treasurer of the citizens' committee which recently organised the presentation to H.M.A.S. Sydney), Mr. H. Y. Braddon (president of the Sydney Chamber of Commerce), Mr. T. Hughes, Mr. F. E. Winchcombe, Sir William M'Millan, and Mr. Samuel Hordern. After luncheon the visitors made a thorough inspection of the ship. It may be mentioned that the captain of the Sydney is connected with Australia by what is probably a longer record of service on this station than that of any officer now in the service, this being Captain Glossop's fifth commission in Australian waters.

Mr. T. Miller, patrol officer of the northern division of Papua, adjoining the German boundary, and Mr. A. MacAlpine, manager of Sir Rupert Clarke's plantations in Papua, are on a visit to Sydney.

The Panama Exposition Commissioners—Messrs. A. Adams (Commissioner-General), Major S. A. Cloman, and Messrs. T. G. Stallsmith and O'Neil Sevier—called upon the Premier yesterday. Mr. Holman said he was confident that Australia would be well represented at the exhibition.

Mr. W. B. Griffin, the designer of the Federal capital, was entertained at dinner on Tuesday night by members of the Freetrade and Land Values League at the Commercial Travellers' Club. Alderman Savage presided. The chairman expressed the pleasure members felt that a land values man had designed the capital of the Commonwealth. Mr. Griffin said that in architecture there were the aristocratic and the democratic schools, and theirs was the democratic, which enabled people to make the most of their opportunities.

Mr. Charles E. Adshead, who for the past 18 months has been advertising manager at Paling's, is leaving Sydney for a tour abroad by the Niagara, sailing for Vancouver on Monday.

Mr. Gordon C. Thompson was on Monday made a presentation at the offices of the Queensland Insurance Company by the general manager, Mr. A. M. Vernon, on behalf of the staff, the occasion being his approaching marriage. The gift took the form of a silver-plated inkstand, and Mr. Thompson was also handed a letter from Colonel Burns, M.L.C., the chairman of the company, enclosing a cheque on behalf of himself and his co-directors.

After nearly 52 years' active connection with the Queensland Government service, Mr. W. H. Ryder, I.S.O., has retired from the position of Under-Secretary of the Home Department.

Miss B. Broderick, who for the past 10 years has been in the employ of the Sydney Industrial Blind Institution, was, on the eve of her marriage, made presentations by the staff and members.

Dr. John Morton, M.B., Ch.M., has been elected to the position of honorary surgeon of the Royal Prince Alfred Hospital, vacant through the death of Dr. H. C. V. Hinder.

Mr. W. A. Mackenzie, who has recently accepted the position of general manager of the Sydney Ferries, Ltd., has been manager for many years of the Miller's Point branch of Dalgety and Co. Born in Canada, he came to Australia in 1886. Mr. Mackenzie joined Dalgety and Co. under Mr. T. F. Knox in October, 1888, and has maintained a hitherto unbroken connection with the company. He paid a visit to London at the time of the Coronation, and afterwards made a protracted tour through the United States. He will enter upon his new responsibilities on the 15th of next month.

The death occurred in Brisbane, on Tuesday, of Mr. W. H. Miskin, a well-known Queensland solicitor, who at one time held the position of official assignee.

EDITOR KILLED.

RUN OVER BY TRAIN.

PERTH (W.A.), Wednesday.

Mr. Lorrie Bodley, editor of the "Westralian Worker," was run down and killed by a city-bound passenger train at the Summer-street crossing, East Perth.

On arrival at the West Perth locomotive sheds Driver Bond noticed traces of blood on the cow-catcher and undergear of his engine. The bloodstains brought back to his recollection a peculiar jolting motion of his engine when passing the Summer-street crossing. Subsequently, the body of deceased was found lying huddled a few feet clear of the rails. The injuries were of a shocking description, and death must have been instantaneous. Deceased, who was between 45 and 50 years of age, has left a widow and five children. For the past two or three years he filled the editorial chair of the "Worker" newspaper, and was previously connected with a Geraldton journal.

CRADLE OF FIRE.

THE GREAT EARTHQUAKE RECORD.

STATEMENT BY PROF. DAVID.

The earthquake recorded by Rev. Father E. F. Pigott, S.J., at Riverview on Tuesday, as having occurred about 40 miles south-west of the island of Aneityum, in the New Hebrides, was also recorded at the Sydney Observatory. The Observatory seismograph records are usually only read once a week—on Sundays—but in view of the violent character of this earthquake, the first information of which came from Father Pigott, the Government Astronomer, Professor W. E. Cooke, yesterday took steps to have the Observatory record read, and it coincided with the Riverview record.

This latest earthquake, which appears to have been a very severe one, reminds us that the New Hebrides are essentially a group of volcanic islands.

The volcanoes of these islands, Professor David explained last evening, are built up on the foundations of coral reef, rock, and limestone, containing various other marine organisms. There are two principal volcanoes in the group, the large volcano of Ambrym, and the smaller one of Tanna. Both of these volcanoes are intermittently active; and about 29 years ago Ambrym was in a very violent state of eruption, the whole of the surrounding island being covered with such dense clouds of volcanic dust that it was completely wrapped in darkness for several days. The volcano of Tanna, near Port Resolution, is chiefly in what is called the solfataric stage of eruption—that is, it is chiefly producing volatile sulphur, which is deposited in incrustations of considerable extent, so as to make it of commercial value. Over 40 years ago there were several violent earthquake shocks at Port Resolution, each of which was immediately followed by the actual uplift of the shore line, on three separate occasions, to the extent of from 10 to 20 feet. Altogether, the result of these severe earthquake shocks was a permanent raising of the land at Tanna, near Port Resolution, to the extent of about 50 feet.

A WARSHIP'S DISCOVERY.

About the same time, at a spot between Fiji and the New Hebrides, in the ocean to the south-east of the latter group, one of the warships of the Australian station observed what was considered to be an uncharted shoal, as the sea surface was breaking in an irregular turbulent manner, as though over a hidden reef, and the water was locally much discoloured. On sounding, however, it was found that a depth of many hundreds of fathoms was obtained immediately under this spot, that the sounding lead brought up several pieces of freshly erupted volcanic glass, and further soundings in the vicinity revealed the fact that the supposed shoal was a large submarine volcanic cone. The discolouration and disturbance of the water noticed no doubt having been occasioned by one of the recent phases of its eruption.

Thus, in the New Hebrides, there are not only active volcanoes above sea-level, but at least one submarine volcano intermittently active.

A CRADLE OF FIRE.

"The New Hebrides," said Professor David, "are situated on what may be termed the cradle of fire, which encircles the Pacific, for throughout almost the whole of the Pacific coast-line one finds evidence of a more or less continuous volcanic and seismic activity. This is notably the case with the west coast of South America, where Valparaiso, Concepcion, Lima, and other cities are frequently visited by earthquake shocks, which sometimes lead to permanent elevation of the coast. In the case of the Panama Canal, the presence of hot springs in the Culebra Cut shows that volcanic energy is only dormant, and already at least one shock of earthquake has been experienced, though not of a very severe character. Nicaragua and Mexico are often visited by severe earthquake shocks, and have been so visited evidently in the past, as is proved by the fact that the Mexican hieroglyphic for an earthquake is an outline of a man sitting on the ground. The significance of this is obvious, from the fact that one of the first results of an earthquake shock, if one is travelling over the country on foot or horseback, is to throw one down.

"The great earthquake of California in 1906 will be fresh in the recollection of all. The zone from California runs around the coast of Alaska, through the Aleutian and Kurile islands, and Japan, thence passing on to the Philippines, and trending eastwards through New Britain, perhaps to the New Hebrides. A southern branch of the fire zone runs through German and British New Guinea. What becomes of these volcanic zones further to the south-east is as yet somewhat obscure. We know that they both probably join a very powerful volcanic zone extending from New Zealand through the Keromadec Islands to Tonga and Samoa.

THE GREAT TONGAN TRENCH.

Immediately to the east of Tonga is one of the deepest spots known in the whole ocean—so deep that if Mount Everest, a little over 29,000ft high, could be placed in this depression the sea water would cover its summit to a depth of 1000ft. This Tongan submarine trench runs in a nearly north and south direction. It marks the site where probably a large slice of the earth's crust has bodily subsided, and is still subsiding. It, too, like the New Hebrides, is one of the most fruitful sources of earthquake shocks which record themselves on the Sydney seismographs.

At the far end of this zone, in Samoa, volcanic eruptions of exceptional severity have taken place within the last six years, in the island of Savaii. For considerably over a year immense streams of molten basalt flowed from many miles inland down to the sea cliffs and into the ocean, presenting a magnificent spectacle where the molten rock encountered the sea water, the rock being blown up to vast heights by terrific steam explosions.

GIGANTIC EARTH CRACKS.

"From New Zealand the zone of fire extends southwards to the active and extinct volcanoes of the Antarctic continent, such as Mount Erebus and others, the circle being completed on the American side of the Antarctic, where the volcanoes of Graham Land extend as a chain of islands to meet the southern extremity of the Andes. Along the whole of this great zone new land is in the making, or, as it might otherwise be expressed, the earth's crust is undergoing readjustments, sinking in some regions and rising in adjacent areas. Such warpings of the crust even culminate in gigantic cracks, more or less vertical, and having an area of approximately 100 square miles. The snapping of such huge masses of rock produces intensely severe vibrations, which, like those of the recent earthquake at Aneityum, are transmitted very perceptibly to a distance of many hundreds of miles.

IMMIGRATION.

CHURCH CO-OPERATION.

A meeting of agents and others interested in immigration, and connected with the various churches of Sydney, was held yesterday in the rooms of the Church of England Men's Society. Mr. F. H. Molesworth, the organising secretary of the C.E.M.S., was in the chair, and representatives from the Church of England, Roman Catholic Federation, Congregational, Methodist, Presbyterian, and Baptist Churches, the Society of St. Vincent de Paul, and Central Methodist Mission, were present.

The Rev. W. Thompson, who is the agent in connection with the Presbyterian Church of Victoria, delivered an address, in which he outlined the scheme in operation in Melbourne, in which all churches co-operate in the meeting and welcoming of immigrants. He stated that, in turn, one denominational agent, representing all the churches concerned in the work, visited each incoming immigrant boat before arrival in the port of Melbourne, in some cases travelling over to Adelaide and journeying back to Melbourne with the boat. So well had this work been done that the Government and shipping companies had recognised its value, and granted every facility to the agent, and had, in fact, created them auxiliary immigration officers. He suggested that the same scheme could be introduced with beneficent results into the work in Sydney, and stated that he was empowered by a combined committee in Melbourne to offer the assistance of that committee in connection with the work here.

It was decided that each representative present should convey to the committee of the church to which they belong a report of what had taken place, and that a further meeting to consider a definite scheme of action should be held.

WELSH DISASTER.

APPALLING EXPLOSION.

MINERS ENTOMBED.

CUT OFF BY FIRE.

HEARTRENDING SCENES.

LONDON, Oct. 14.

The village of Senghenydd, embosomed in a quiet Welsh valley, is the scene of a disaster unparalleled in Britain, if the worst fears in regard to the explosion in the Universal colliery are realised.

In all 935 men descended the pit at 6 o'clock in the morning, and two hours later the noise of a terrific detonation rent the silence of the valley, and a great column of smoke shot up from the pit-mouth.

The machinery at the pit-head was blown to fragments. Heavy iron plates were twisted grotesquely, and scattered in every direction and the cage was hurtled high into the air, and fell some distance away.

Two banksmen were blown to pieces by the explosion, which also killed a bird which was flying overhead at the moment.

The explosion occurred in the west pit intake airway, 400 yards from the bottom of the down-past shaft, and it was followed later by the outbreak of fire.

The only hope for the 400 miners still below lies in the possibility of a heavy fall of earth from the roof cutting off the fire.

Rescue brigades, doctors, and policemen hurried to the scene, and 1000 miners hurried in from other collieries to bear a hand.

The full horror of the disaster was only realised at noon, when the fire broke out in the west side, and urgent demands were made for extinguishers from all parts of the district. The Cardiff post-office sent 50 by special train.

The earliest efforts were directed towards saving the men in the east side. The work of rescue was conducted without panic. Through an almost impenetrable cloud of coal dust rescuers and rescued groped their way along the tunnels, and when they got to the surface quietly left the pit in batches of 18, many not being clearly aware of what was happening near by. Many, however, were rescued in a pitiable condition, suffering from burns, shock, and the effect of afterdamp.

The first man rescued was so excited that he was unable to give a coherent account of what had happened to him.

A rescue party, with Mr. Edward Shaw, the manager of the mine, went down an adjoining shaft, but they were not able to get near the vicinity of the explosion owing to the deadly fumes, and the heavy falls of earth.

They found 16 bodies, however, and they were sent up. With the exception of two, they were battered beyond recognition. One had the hands blown off, and another had the face torn away.

Around the pithead and on the mountain slopes groups of relatives congregated, and when the first message of "no hope" reached the surface heart-breaking scenes occurred among the hundreds of stricken ones.

One woman has a husband, four sons, and three brothers entombed.

Other rescue parties descended later and found hundreds of miners huddled together where the ventilation was still good. They were conducted to the bottom of the shaft, where the machinery had been repaired, and were wound up so expeditiously that 327 of them reached the surface by 11 o'clock. By this time 511 had been accounted for.

Many miners were brought up in the afternoon injured almost beyond recovery.

Up to 6 o'clock 489 had been rescued, but 418 were still cut off from the rescue parties by the fire, and there was little chance of their rescue until the fire could be extinguished.

At nightfall the relief gangs, after many reverses, succeeded in getting water to the fire, which was still raging fiercely.

Frequent small falls of earth from the roof retarded operations, but relays of men crept through the smoke-filled tunnels, and in the face of the tremendous heat crawled near enough to the fire to discharge their extinguishers.

The explosion wrecked the ventilating system, thus cutting off the air supply from a large section of the mine, and this added to the difficulty and danger of the rescuers.

At 8 o'clock the fire was still raging, and the rescuers were continuing their heroic efforts.

They could only penetrate 50 yards, owing to the fire, and the entombed men are two miles further in. Only faint hopes are held regarding their safety.

During the night the rescuers found 18 men alive.

UNDER CONTROL.

The latest news from the pit states that it is believed the fire is now under control.

HOPES OF RESCUE.

LONDON, Oct. 15, 6.55 a.m.

Five more men have been rescued from the Universal colliery.

They were all behind falls of earth, and this fact raises the hope that the remainder of the men will be got out safely.

12.40 p.m.

In all 532 men have been rescued, and 31 bodies have been recovered. Thus there are still 372 men entombed.

The rescuers are now in touch with 29 men who are alive.

A FORMER EXPLOSION.

An explosion occurred at the Universal Colliery in 1901, which resulted in the death of 81 miners.

ROYAL SYMPATHY.

The King telegraphed that he and the Queen were appalled by the terrible disaster, and they were the more shocked in view of the fact that they had visited the district last year.

His Majesty added: "We trust the loss will not be so great as at first anticipated. We deeply sympathise with the bereaved, and shall be grateful for particulars regarding the injured."

The Minister for Mines (Mr. Edden), who has himself worked in English pits, was much affected yesterday by the report of the disaster. "I feel very deeply for those concerned," he said. "The disaster only emphasises the need for doing everything possible to protect the miners. For that reason I am pushing on with the establishment of our rescue stations here in New South Wales. I am pleased to be able to state that the Broken Hill Masters' Association has written, asking for the establishment of a rescue station at Broken Hill, and offering to share the cost £ for £."

LAND REFORM.

COMMITTEE'S REPORT.

FIRST RECOMMENDATIONS.

LONDON, Oct. 15.

The first portion of the report of the Liberal Association's Land Inquiry Committee has been issued. The chief recommendations are:—

Wages boards.

Fixed statutory minimum wage for agricultural labourers.

Land courts for the readjustment of rents.

Extension of small holdings, by giving the Land Courts power to fix a reasonable purchase price.

State sinking fund for the purchase of land.

Repeal of the game law restrictions.

Special taxation of land used for sport.

The report declares that 120,000 new cottages are required, and urges that the rural councils should be compelled to make adequate provision for cottages.

A LIBERAL'S CRITICISM.

Sir Luke White, Liberal member for Buckrose division, Yorkshire, speaking at Driffield last night, stated that Mr. Lloyd George, in his recent speech, had failed to indicate how his land ideals were to be achieved. He was disappointed that the Chancellor had not alluded to the removal of the heavy burdens now borne by agriculture.

THE SUFFRAGISTS.

MILITANT CAMPAIGN.

GUARDING CABINET MINISTERS.

LONDON, Oct. 14.

Fearing that the suffragists intended to molest members of the Ministry, detectives escorted them to the Cabinet meeting in Downing-street to-day.

The suffragists did "sentry-go" in Parliament-street, carrying sandwich boards.

Sylvia Pankhurst, who escaped from custody during the melee at Bow Baths the previous day, was arrested yesterday when about to address a meeting in Poplar.

THE KING AND THE SUFFRAGISTS.

A women's suffragist was arrested while throwing papers into the coach of King George while he was on his way to the wedding of Prince Arthur of Connaught and the Duchess of Fife.

Several other women threw papers into the coach occupied by Queen Alexandra and the Queen of Norway.

MRS. PANKHURST'S AMERICAN VISIT.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.

The Immigration Board has decided to detain Mrs. Pankhurst on Ellis Island when she arrives, until a special inquiry is held with respect to her case.

The societies favouring women's suffrage have not taken any action, but it is likely that the question of Mrs. Pankhurst's admission will be referred to the Courts.

HOME RULE.

PROPOSED COMPROMISE.

LIBERAL-UNIONIST NEGOTIATIONS.

LONDON, Oct. 14.

The "Daily Mail" states that informal negotiations are proceeding between the Government and the English Unionist leaders in regard to Ulster, and that an attempt is being made to induce Mr. J. E. Redmond, the Nationalist leader, to moderate his views.

It is expected that Mr. Winston Churchill will announce the Government's policy at Manchester on Saturday.

CANADIAN POLITICS.

OTTAWA, Oct. 15.

The Liberals, with Sir Wilfrid Laurier at their head, are discussing the question of calling a conference with a view to reconsidering the policy of the party, chiefly in reference to tariffs.

The Liberal defeat at the Chateauguay election leads the party to believe that a new alignment regarding their reciprocity policy is inevitable.

Whether the naval question is to be reconsidered is not known, but it is believed that Sir Wilfrid Laurier himself is not averse to it.

VOLTURNO FIRE.

THE CAPTAIN'S STORY

NIGHT OF HORROR.

PANIC-STRICKEN PASSENGERS.

LONDON, Oct. 15.

Captain Inch, of the steamer Volturno, was interviewed yesterday regarding the disaster. He said:—"The chief officer discovered the fire in No. 1 hold. In a remarkably short space of time it burnt through the hatches, and set the forecastle and deck fittings ablaze. The flames leaped up as high as the foremast light.

"The watch below was cut off by the fire and incinerated.

"Several explosions occurred, and they wrecked the saloon and hospital amidships, and also damaged the steering gear.

"I sent out wireless calls for help, and then, as it seemed impossible to save the ship, I ordered that the boats should be provisioned and swung out.

DISASTER TO THE BOATS.

"The ship was rolling heavily, and two of the boats were smashed against the side.

"The third was successfully lowered. It contained the cabin passengers, and was in charge of the first officer. had not been long in the water, however, when it capsized, and all the occupants were thrown out. The boat was righted, and the chief officer and several of the crew managed to clamber on board her again.

"The fourth boat, filled with steerage passengers, and in charge of Mr. Langsell, the fourth officer, got away safely.

"The fifth boat was caught under the stern of the steamer, and was wrecked.

CARMANIA ARRIVES.

"In the meanwhile the chief engineer, two seamen, and myself fought the fire. We apparently got it in hand, and then I received word from the Carmania that she was coming to our assistance, so I gave the order that no more boats were to be lowered. At last the passengers became calmer.

"Then it was discovered that the bunkers were ablaze. I ordered the water-tight doors to be closed, and poured water down No. 2 hatch, but notwithstanding all our effortts the fire continued to gain.

"Then the Carmania arrived, but her lifeboats drifted past us out of reach.

"By dusk other steamers arrived, but all their efforts to reach us proved futile.

"The saloon and the charthouse were now in flames, and parctically the whole ship from the funnel forward was blazing fiercely.

FIRE FROM END TO END.

"Just before midnight an explosion wrecked the wireless aerial. Then the fire worked through the women's steerage to the after end of the ship; but I kept the knowledge of this from the passengers, who were quiet throughout the night.

"The chief engineer, the Marconi operators, the remaining sailors, and myself spent the night making small rafts in case the fire burned through the decks before daylight.

"At 5 o'clock in the morning, after the Narragansett had poured oil on the sea, the liners' boats were able to come alongside, and the passengers were loaded into them in an orderly manner. There was no panic, but many of the women wept when they saw that at last help was alongside.

"I searched the ship, found no one aboard, and decided to abandon her, as by that time No. 3 hatch was alight."

HOW THE FIRE STARTED.

Batches of survivors have reached Havre, Rotterdam, and Liverpool.

Various theories are advanced as to how the fire started. One passenger, a German named Badke, relates that smoking in the steerage was prohibited, but a Russian emigrant was smoking a cigarette when a steward appeared, and the man dropped his cigarette through a hole in the floor down on to the emigrants' baggage. Badke says he afterwards lifted the trapdoor, found the compartment beneath to be on fire, and raised the alarm.

A SEAMAN'S HEROISM.

One frenzied woman threw her child to the Devonian's boat, but it fell into the water, and a sailor named Hazelwood plunged overboard, at the risk of being crushed between the boat and the Volturno, and rescued the infant.

PANIC-STRICKEN PASSENGERS.

The survivors agree that the loss of life was largely due to the panic-stricken people jumping into the sea.

One woman threw a child overboard, and jumped in after it. Three boys of one family all leaped overboard, but the mother and the other children remained on board, and were saved.

BEHAVIOUR OF THE CREW.

Mr Wisborg, a survivor aboard the Minneapolis, states that sailors jumped overboard when the fire became serious, and many were afterwards hauled back by the passengers.

The doctor of the Volturno, however, declares that the reports regarding the panic among the crew are quite unfounded.

CAPTAIN INCH INJURED.

A wireless message received from the steamer Kroonland states that Captain Inch, master of the Volturno, is temporarily blind owing to injuries received from the fire.

The explosions on the Volturno are attributed to the breaking of boxes of chemicals in the hold, and the mingling of their contents.

The steamer Campania, which has just arrived in port, states that she passed the Volturno on Sunday.

She was then still smoking, but otherwise she appeared to be in good condition.

A SURVIVOR.

ROCKHAMPTON, Wednesday.

Mr. R. W. Belfield, secretary of the Mount Morgan Company, has received a cablegram advising that his son, James Belfield, who was fourth engineer on the illfated steamer Volturno, was among those picked up by one of the vessels that went to the assistance of the burning ship.

ALLEGED LIBEL.

SIEVIER VERSUS BONO AND DEY.

LONDON, Oct. 14.

At the Central Criminal Court, Percy Bono, solicitor, and Thomas Dey, were charged with circulating a typewritten sheet alleging that Robert Sievier had blackmailed Dey to the amount of £1000 in connection with an advertisement in the "Winning Post."

The accused pleaded justification.

The prosecuting counsel stated that the "Winning Post" in 1907 refused Dey's advertisements, but, after an interview, these were accepted, Dey paying Sievier £300 for one advertisement. Sievier denied that Dey gave him another £700 which he specially brought from a bank in gold and handed to him in the presence of Edward Sievier, a cousin of complainant, who died last January. After this Robert Sievier and Dey were political associates in Hoxton, where Dey was a candidate for the London County Council.

Cross-examined, Sievier admitted that Dey had several times lent him money, and they had considerable betting transactions.

Sievier said that after the quarrel this year he again refused Dey's advertisements. Dey and Bono then circulated the alleged libel among the electors of Hoxton.

Sievier incidentally stated that his betting account for eight months amounted to £100,000.

BARREN JACK.

MEASURING THE EARTH'S MOVEMENT.

INSTRUMENTS FROM GERMANY.

Science, like the world's great literature, belongs to no country in particular; it is universal. The scientist works not for his own, or his country's, glorification, but for the advancement of knowledge throughout the world; and the fact is well illustrated by an exceedingly interesting letter just received by Professor David from the eminent German scientist, Professor Helmert, Director of International Geodetic Institute at Potsdam.

Professor Helmert has intimated, in response to a letter from Professor David and the Rev. Father Pigott, S.J., of Riverview, that he is despatching to Sydney two extremely delicate and valuable sets of pendulums for use at the Barren Jack reservoir.

It is proposed to instal these pendulums at the ends of some short tunnels in the rocks, above the level of which the water will ultimately rise when the reservoir is full. These pendulums will be kept continually swinging, and any variations in swing due to the bodily subsidence of the earth's crust resulting from the great load of water—about 1000 million tons—will record themselves automatically on the paper of revolving drums. It is thought that there certainly will be a very appreciable subsidence of the earth's crust under this great load, though not at all of such a serious order as to in any way imperil the strength of the great dam. At the same time, the bending crust might be quite sufficient to somewhat alter the distances between various spots in the locality in such a way that the actual distance from one another of adjacent trigonometrical stations will be shortened to an extent that will be approximately calculable.

"Professor Helmert, in lending these instruments of such great intrinsic, as well as historical, value—for one set of them has been used already by Professor Hecker to determine the deflection of the earth's crust under the full of the sun and moon," said Professor David yesterday, "has given a touching instance of how sympathy in the pursuit of knowledge makes the whole world kin."

The instruments are expected to reach Sydney in a week or two.

£50,000 GIFT.

SITE FOR AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE.

ADELAIDE, Wednesday.

In the Legislative Assembly the Premier announced that Mr. Peter Waite, a well-known pastoralist, had given to the University of Adelaide a house and 134 acres of land for the purposes of an agricultural high school.

Mr. Waite had explained that the offer was made as he realised that a stage of development had been reached when it was necessary that science should be availed of to a greater extent than had been the case in the past. Unless this were done Australia could not hope to keep in the forefront of agricultural enterprise. The only condition laid down with respect to the gift was that neither the University nor Mr. Waite's estate should be called upon to pay succession duty.

The Premier said that he had accepted the offer. The land was about four miles from the post-office, and the Fullarton tram to be constructed would pass by it. The land and buildings included in the gift were worth approximately £50,000. The Government would without delay accept the gift, and establish an agricultural high school.

AMERICAN FARMERS.

CALL OF AUSTRALIA.

ATTRACTION OF CHEAP LAND.

According to Mr. O'Neil Sevier, one of the Panama Exposition Commissioners, now in Sydney, Australia is going to call eloquently to American farmers.

It is well known that American farming lands are at a premium, and the scientific instruction given to farmers in that country makes them just the sort of men that Australia requires.

"It is universally conceded," Mr. Sevier remarked, "that Australia in her present state of industrial development needs more than anything else immigration of the better sort. And it is accepted as a fact that her economic interests will be best promoted, if, in the course of the next 20 or 25 years, farmers understanding the principles of scientific agriculture and thrifty management preponderate among the new people who come to her shores. For such immigration she can look to no country of the civilised world more hopefully than to the United States. Farmers from the United States have in 25 years transformed the elk and buffalo pastures of the vast Canadian North-West into the most prolific wheat lands in the world. But the Canadian wheat lands are for the most part taken up, and the ever ebullient pioneer spirit of the American agriculturalist must find a vent in another direction.

"Australia can get better farmers from the States than the prairie-breakers of the Canadian North-West, because there are in the States more farmers and better ones just now than at the time of the emigration to the Canadian North-West or, indeed, at any other period of our history. In no country of the world has instruction in the science of agriculture been conducted with the thoroughness that has marked the last quarter of a century of educational progress in the States. Two great universities—Cornell and Dartmouth—specialise in agriculture, and a diploma from either insures to its holder a lucrative income as an expert adviser to farmers in general. An agricultural course is included, along with law, medicine, and theology, in the curriculums of most of the other universities. Every State has its agricultural college and experiment station, and some of them have two or three. In these colleges thousands of inquiring students receive instruction from the best talent the world affords in the art of thorough ploughing, the conservation of soil moisture, and manures, the selection and care of stock, the rotation of crops, the production of forage, fruit culture, truck gardening, afforestation, and what not.

"In western States, where water is scarce and irrigation difficult, the principles of dry-farming are included, and the application by youthful enthusiasts of these theories has transformed alkali wastes of New Mexico, Arizona, and Colorado into prodigiously fruitful oases. Utah has demonstrated that under judicious irrigation 800 bushels of potatoes may be grown under the surface of one acre of land which a little while back produced nothing more valuable than sage bush and mesquite. From thousands of acres of formerly arid land in Arizona five and six crops of alfalfa are cut annually; and widespread experimentation has proven that alfalfa favours no particular country and is equally indifferent to zones, parallels of latitude, and meridians of longitude.

"The economy of hog-raising has reduced to such a point in sections of Oklahoma, Missouri, Iowa, and Illinois that one acre of alfalfa with a proportionate ration of fat producing corn sends to the market in eight months 25 300lb swine.

"Everywhere the values of producing lands soar. The vast cattle ranges of Texas and New Mexico and Western Oklahoma, cut up into farming plots, fetch 25 to 125 dollars an acre. The sheep ranges of Wyoming and Montana are fast being turned into more valuable apple orchards. Everywhere there is a demand for land which cannot be gratified. Yet the production of farming talent, young, enthusiastic, enterprising, and land hungry, continues year after year.

"No country offers such opportunities to these young men as Australia."

LABOUR POLICY.

CRITICISED BY MR. WADE.

EXTRAVAGANCE AND BLUFF.

Commenting yesterday upon Mr. Holman's policy speech, Mr. Wade said that one might use the same term with regard to it as applied to the administration of the Government, namely, extravagant.

"His language and promises," said the leader of the Opposition, "are greatly exaggerated, evidently with the intention of captivating those who do not think; but they are absolutely impossible of accomplishment within the compass of a three-years' Parliament. The work outlined is enough to keep the Government of this country occupied for the next 20 years, and Mr. Holman might easily have saved himself four columns of talk by simply saying: 'The country wants £100,000,000 spent upon it for development. We are the men to do it. That's our policy. Vote for us.'

"The meaning of a policy speech hitherto has always been an outline of work that is practicable in the ensuing Parliament. He boasts of all his extravagance, revels in further taxes, and is indifferent to the consequences. In only one instance does he excuse himself, when he asks for sympathy on the ground that they have been compelled to work on a reduced revenue. The mere fact that the Commonwealth returns have fallen off does not affect the position, because the present Government during their three years have received on the whole £3,000,000 more revenue than we enjoyed, and this makes the present shortage of over £1,000,000 the more inexcusable.

UNRESTRAINED EXPENDITURE.

"But let us come to the divisions of this unrestrained expenditure. Mr. Holman predicts raising £13,000,000 of loan money on public works in the next Parliament, exclusive of redemption loans. Of this £13,000,000, £4,000,000 is for duplication, £3,500,000 for public works other than railways, and the amount to be allocated for railways under construction or authorised, but not commenced, is £4,300,000. Now, to use a favourite phrase of Mr. Holman's, this position is either correct or incorrect, and for once he seems afraid of the weight of his own figures.

"Calculating railways that are authorised, and whether commenced or not, the total commitments reach £5,300,000. In addition to that there is the North Coast railway, which will take at least £1,500,000, and there is also £72,000 for tramway extensions. In rough figures, therefore, there are obligations here for £6,870,000. But a number of railway proposals were postponed or rejected by the Council during the last few days, and presumably the Government regard them as obligations they must face. This city railway represents £4,500,000, and other railways just under £1,000,000, so that the total obligations for railways should be really £11,300,000.

"Now, it is absolutely farcical to expect this enormous amount of loan money, totalling altogether £25,000,000, to be raised in the course of the coming Parliament.

"Moreover, it is impossible to secure the labour to carry out these enormous undertakings in that limited period.

"This wonderful feast of figures, therefore, can only be regarded as window-dressing, and absolutely impossible of fulfilment in the period stated.

BURDEN UPON TAXPAYER.

"But consider the burden upon the taxpayer, and the enormous increase in interest this will involve, and the delay in obtaining productive returns. At present there are some nine or 10 country railways partially completed on which the best part of £1,000,000 has been spent in the last two years, and none of them up to June 30 was earning money. If the same policy is to be pursued of a little work here and a little there without concentration on any one project, the days of productive returns will be indefinitely delayed.

"Another instance of huge bluff is the paragraph about industrial legislation. First they propose to amend the law to extend to rock-choppers the benefits of the Miners' Accident Relief Fund. A bill proposing to do this was passed in the Assembly nearly three years ago, and the Government has not attempted during all this time to pass it into law. The same remarks apply to the proposals to give relief to men suffering from miners' disease and to the Shearers' Accommodation Bill. The so-called Eight Hours Bill is a farce, because all the trades which are to be granted the eight hours under it already have it by virtue of awards of the Arbitration Court.

ELECTION EVE PROMISES.

"The Government has promised to amend the arbitration law to comply with the recommendations of Mr. Piddington, but, think the Government, the workers can afford to wait. And now all these nice things are dangled before them on the eve of the election. There is much the same record in regard to the land proposals. The man who has land is to be forced to break it up further by a heavy super-tax. Additional areas are to be added to homestead farms; yet, strange to say, both these matters have been given effect to by bills passing through the Assembly; and no attempt has been made to carry them into law. In fact, without any opposition being raised, the Government announced some weeks ago that they intended to make no further progress with these Crown lands proposals. Why? The interests of land settlers did not concern them much. They could be allowed to wait indefinitely while there was the chance to do them a service, and now these things are dangled before them as an evidence of bona fides and sincerity.

HOLLOW AND INSINCERE.

"It only requires an analysis of each item in the programme to find how hollow and insincere this speech is. If these proposed measures are for the good of the community, the Government must explain why it is that they have made no honest attempt to pass them into law. It will not satisfy the public to tell them, "We have been idling these back to dangle before you as baits in the hope that you will give us a further lease of power."

"Take the day-labour question, over which Mr. Holman sings a paean of praise. He suggests that day labour works, on figures of the Works Department, represents the cost of £1000 per mile less for railway construction than under the contract system, and he quotes, by way of confirmation, a statement by the Queensland Minister for Railways. Mere quotations are of no value in a case like this. What is required is the actual comparison in the carrying out of the same work under similar conditions of labour. That is almost impossible to obtain. None of the day-labour experiments of the Government on the North Coast railway during the last three years have been included in the comparison given, and such defects destroy the whole value of the comparison. We find that the total cost of the first three sections of the North Coast railway finished by day labour exceeds the contract price by £200,000. That is the nearest approach to a true comparison, and it works out disastrously for the much-boomed and advertised day labour.

MOTOR ACCIDENT.

MR. LEWIS WALLER INJURED.

MELBOURNE, Wednesday.

A sensational collision occurred late tonight on the St. Kilda-road, between a large motor car containing Mr. Lewis Waller, the well-known actor, Miss Madge Titheradge, and other members of their company, and a tram.

Both the motor car and the tram were badly damaged. Mr. Waller was severely bruised about the chest, and the other occupants of the car were shaken.

Mr. Waller was attended to by Dr. Davenport, and it is thought probable that he will be able to appear as usual to-morrow night.

KIEFF TRIAL.

REMARKABLE EVIDENCE.

BY CONVERTED JEW.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 15.

At the trial of the Jew Beilis at Kieff yesterday on a charge of murdering the boy Yuschinsky, in order to secure human blood for ritual purposes, the Archimandrite Antonomius, who is a converted Jew, in the course of his evidence related cases that, he said, had come under his own notice of the kidnapping of Christian boys by Jews.

He declared that Jews tortured Christians to death, but he had never heard of Jews using Christian blood for ritual purposes.

When under cross-examination, however, the witness failed to give precise information as to the torturing of Christians.

MR. WADE'S CHARGES

PREMIER'S CHALLENGE.

Referring yesterday to Mr. Wade's charges against his colleague the Minister for Works, the Premier said:—

"Mr. Wade was told if he made any charge of public wrong-doing in respect of his sixth matter (Medlow land transactions) it also would be sent along for inquiry before the Royal Commission. Mr. Wade made five charges of public wrong-doing, which were sent on. Any other charge of public wrong-doing would have been sent on in the same way.

"Mr. Griffith told Mr. Wade that if he made any charge of private wrong-doing, and would make it outside Parliament and outside the protection of privilege, he would serve a writ on him. I have Mr. Griffith's authority for saying that this opportunity is still open. Mr. Wade has never done either. He has run away from the chances of proving his public charges. He has also run away from the chance of proving any charge, public or private, about this other matter. Where the responsibility rests can be left to the electors to judge."

ONE CLEAR DAY.

SMALLPOX ABATING.

There was a decided abatement of the smallpox epidemic yesterday, not a single case being reported in the metropolis.

The only case came from Bourke, and it was of a mild type.

Yesterday was the first day since the beginning of the outbreak, 15 weeks ago, that the metropolis could boast of being clear. The health authorities regard this clear day as very encouraging.

Thirty-seven patients remain in quarantine, together with 142 convalescents. Eleven persons were discharged cured yesterday. The vaccinations yesterday totalled 146.

BOURKE, Wednesday.

A suspected case of smallpox, a baby girl, five months old, is at present in the isolation ward of the local hospital. A number of children resident near the house occupied by the patient are not allowed to attend school.

HARBOUR SQUALL.

STEAMER JAVA DRAGS HER ANCHORS.

A heavy blow struck the harbour yesterday morning, and caused anxiety amongst shipping. A succession of squalls from the westward whipped the surface into numerous white-topped wavelets, and caused anxious eyes to be cast at moorings and anchor chains.

The German-Australian Steamship Company's new cargo steamer, Java (7600 tons), which was lying at the back of Garden Island, had a trying time. When the blow was at its height the vessel commenced to drag her anchors, and was being rapidly carried in the direction of Clark Island.

The vessel pulled up almost on the edge of Clark Island, and went so close that it was at first thought that she had gone ashore. It transpired, however, that the vessel's anchors took hold and stopped her drift before she touched bottom. She therefore sustained no damage. The steamer was afterwards removed to Double Bay.

AT WATSON'S BAY.

The blow was particularly strong in the vicinity of Watson's Bay and the Heads. A man in a small boat, with a sail hoisted, felt the force of it while off Bottle and Glass Point.

This boat was immediately capsized, and its occupant thrown into the water. Luckily the Watsons' Bay ferry steamer Greycliffe was coming along at the time, and she proceeded to the spot, and picked the man up. His boat was afterwards towed into Watson's Bay by the pilot steamer Captain Cook, and hauled up on to the beach.

A couple of boats belonging to fishermen at Watsons' Bay broke away from their moorings during the blow, and went ashore on the beach.

AFLOAT.

AFTER THREE WEEKS ON BEACH.

WOOLGOOLGA, Wednesday.

The steamer Kallatina, after lying high up on Woolgoolga Beach for nearly three weeks, was floated off at high water to-night, practically undamaged. The vessel is now at anchor in the bay, and will take in ballast to-morrow, and then proceed to Sydney. Captain Cuthbert, of the Sydney Marine Underwriters' Association, was in charge of the refloating operations. He will return to Sydney on the Kallatina.

The Sydney Marine Underwriters' and Salvage Association received a telegram from Captain Cuthbert last night, stating that the Kallatina had been floated, and was not leaking.

GERMAN METHODS.

SETTLING NEW GUINEA.

"MAKE THE NATIVES WORK."

Greater advantages are offered to settlers in German New Guinea than to settlers in the portion under the control of the Commonwealth, according to Mr. A. L. Joubert, who is on a visit to Sydney from Samarai.

Traders who had established themselves in Papua had, he said, many troubles to contend with, not the least of which were caused by petty leaders of the beachcombing class, who were allowed to live practically with the natives, and who were no good to them or to the whites. In German New Guinea traders were given a license for a particular district, and no one else was allowed to invade it for trading purposes. He considered it would be well to adopt the same system in Papua. The Germans were able to get labourers easier and cheaper than the residents of Papua. The German authorities put a tax of 5s per head on the natives, and in order to obtain the wherewithal to pay it they had to go out to work. The Germans did not bother about gaols. The punishment for natives who committed offences were work on the roads for varying terms. The consequence was that there were many fine roads, along which buggies and motor-cars could be driven, whereas in Papua there was only one short road about 15 miles in length at the back of Port Moresby. It was essential for the proper development of Papua that the Commonwealth should provide funds for the building of a railway, wharfs, and other necessary works, and it would be well both for the Commonwealth and Papua if the local residents were given some voice on the government of the possession.

The prohibition of the killing of birds of paradise is, Mr. Joubert considers, quite a mistake. "They're as thick as bees up there," he said, "and of the 600 white people on the mainland of Papua, which has an area of 90,000 square miles, did nothing but hunt them all day long they couldn't possibly exterminate them for years and years. The birds would always find a sanctuary in the mountain fastnesses. In German New Guinea the Government gets an export duty of £1 per skin, and quite a considerable revenue is derived from this source. It seems to me a pity that we don't avail ourselves of the same opportunity of getting a big revenue every year."

HOUSING PROBLEM.

CITY COUNCIL URGED TO BUILD.

LORD MAYOR CAUTIOUS.

Arguing that the housing of the people was one of the principal functions of a municipal council, a deputation from the Trades and Labour Council waited on the Lord Mayor yesterday afternoon to ask him to use his influence in urging the City Council to build more workmen's dwellings in the city area.

Alderman Burke, who introduced the deputation, said that there was not sufficient housing for the workers in the city. The works committee of the council had approved of the building of some houses on the Nickson-street resumption area, but many more were required, and he instanced a vacant area near Moore Park as a suitable place.

Mr. E. J. Kavanagh, M.L.C., Secretary of the Labour Council, said that the position was becoming acute. The City Council had done a good deal in the direction desired, but they would like them to do more. The Government, with its Daceyville scheme, and the City Council, with its Chippendale tenement houses, had just touched the fringe of the trouble. When they found agents demanding bonuses from people who wanted to rent houses it was time something was done. He considered it would be a good business proposition for the City Council to build houses and let them at moderate rentals. They did not want houses at 25s a week, but houses that ranged from 12s to 15s per week. They asked the civic authorities to step in where private enterprise had failed to meet requirements. Owing to the scarcity of houses there were a number of cases now where several families lived under one roof, and that was a bad thing from a health point of view.

Mr. J. Grant, Secretary of the Political Labour League, contended that the council itself was largely responsible for the present state of affairs, as it had demolished innumerable houses without providing other houses for the dispossessed tenants. It was the council's duty to provide homes for the homeless.

Mr. Vernon, secretary of the United Labourers' Society, suggested that the Queen Victoria Markets, on which the council lost several thousands a year, might be turned into a lodging-house.

The Lord Mayor: The markets are not under discussion.

Mr. Vernon replied that he had merely thrown out a suggestion for providing a municipal lodging-house, which might thus be made a source of profit instead of being a loss.

The Lord Mayor said that he considered the building of flats on the Chippendale area was one of the biggest mistakes the council had yet made, and if the council now did nothing at all it would be a wiser policy than the repeating of such a mistake. He could not view the matter of entering upon a comprehensive scheme for the erection of workers' dwellings in the city with favour, whatever a Greater Sydney might do. He thought the deputation would be acting more wisely if it devoted its energies to urging the erection of houses in some open space in the suburban areas. The solution, it seemed to him, lay in cheap and rapid transit to these outer areas. He did not think the council was called upon to provide the doubtful advantage of workers' homes in the crowded city area; but he was only expressing his personal views. The request of the deputation would be put before the council.

STRANDED FAMILY.

PORTUGUESE AND TROUPE OF MONKEYS.

The Premier recently made representations to the Commonwealth in the interests of a Portuguese family who have been stranded in Sydney for some considerable time.

"The family in question," said Mr. Holman yesterday, "consisting of husband, wife, and six children, was allowed to land in Sydney from a French mailboat, on which they had shipped at Marseilles, by the authorities administering the Immigration Restriction Act of the Commonwealth. The unfortunate people, who cannot speak English, brought with them a troupe of monkeys and bears, in the hope of thereby making a living. The Commonwealth Government, however, under the Quarantine Act, has not seen its way to release the animals, which the unfortunate Portuguese represent as their only means of earning a living; while under another Act, the Immigration Restriction Act, they have admitted these people, who have, ever since their arrival, been a charge upon the Government of the State.

"I invited the attention of the Commonwealth authorities to the plight of the new arrivals, and urged that they be repatriated, or that the Government responsible for their admission should accept some responsibility in relieving them of their present dilemma. The only response that I can get from the Prime Minister is that 'as the State desires to be relieved of its responsibility of maintaining these people, it is suggested that your Government should incur the expense necessary for their return to Europe.' In the meantime the family is living under canvas in one of the suburbs, and is being sustained from the charities vote of the Chief Secretary's Department."

MR. HOLMAN'S OTHER COMPLAINT.

The other day Mr. Cook complained that Mr. Holman had given letters to the press on the subject of quarantine before they could possibly have reached him (Mr. Cook) in Melbourne. Mr. Holman stated yesterday that Mr. Cook had done exactly the same thing in respect of a letter which he had written to him (Mr. Holman), dated October 9. Mr. Cook tabled the letter in the House of Representatives on the 10th, and it did not reach Sydney till the 11th. "Mr. Cook," said Mr. Holman, "complained bitterly of my discourtesy in handing matter to the press before he had seen it. Then in the very next step in the correspondence he did the same thing himself."

OFF THE RAILS.

SHUNTING SMASH.

KATOOMBA, Wednesday.

Four empty goods waggons of the "D" class were derailed and hurled from the permanent way down the embankment, and on to the centre of Bent-street, running alongside the railway line, during shunting operations on the railway siding to the west of Katoomba station, on Tuesday afternoon.

A number of empty trucks were being shunted when the train struck the dead end buffer stops, and the four first trucks left the rails. Two of them completely overturned and landed on the roadway, with their wheels in the air.

The derailment was responsible for the breaking down of one of the telegraph poles and the snapping of telegraph wires. No one was injured, although one of the shunters employed in the yard was in the leading truck at the time of the accident.

The break-down train and gang were immediately wired for, but owing to the heavy rain falling during the night the train was delayed until daybreak, when operations were begun to have the trucks again placed on the rails.

FEDERAL CAPITAL.

MELBOURNE, Wednesday.

During the financial year 1911-12 £68,036 was spent on the Federal capital teritory, and last year the expenditure rose to £137,367. On the Estimates this year, which are now before the House of Representatives, a sum of £235,000 has been earmarked for the development of Canberra.

NEW CRISIS.

AN UNCOMFORTABLE DAY.

MR. HOLMAN'S WAY OUT.

There was another crisis in the career of the Labour Government yesterday, which threatened unpleasant results, but which the Premier managed to overcome.

An investigation of the circumstances showed that for about the last 15 years Parliament has been prorogued in a fashion not strictly constitutional. The present Governor is known to be a great stickler for constitutional procedure, and it is no secret that he has stuck the Government up on more than one occasion. Yesterday his Excellency refused to sign a proclamation extraordinary for the prorogation of Parliament until the Government had received assent to all its bills. It has been the irregular practice in the past for the Governor of the day to sign the proclamation and clear up the arrears of bills which have passed both Houses afterwards.

For a while yesterday it was thought that the Government would have to meet the House in the ordinary way pending the assent to all bills unassented to, and the issue of the proclamation. This might have been extremely awkward for the Government, as a lot of its supporters had left for the country, and it was within the bounds of possibility that the Opposition would get wind of the dilemma, turn up at the House in force, and do what it liked with the Government. However, the members of the Ministry met the Governor-in-Council in the afternoon, when the difficulty was got over, the bills being assented to in hot haste, and the proclamation issued.

Thus a crisis, which was not without its humour, ended happily for the Government.

LOST BILLS.

MINISTERS ATTACK THE COUNCIL.

"THE PEOPLE TO DECIDE."

Ministers yesterday commented on the action of the Legislative Council in rejecting a number of their works proposals.

The Premier (Mr. Holman) said:—"I certainly thought that the Council would see its way to pass the bills submitted to it to ratify bargains made with other Governments. The Jervis Bay territory matter and the Riverina railways were confined to the good faith of the Council, and in the case of Jervis Bay the Federal Government has actually entered upon the land and commenced expenditure, in the belief that Parliament would ratify the agreement arrived at. Matters of that kind should be above politics. I have personally felt that the reputation of the State was involved, and I certainly entertained the hope that the Legislative Councillors would view the matter in the same spirit. As to our own special measures, I am quite prepared for any fate which meets them in the Upper House."

"I cannot understand the attitude of the Upper House in rejecting at least some of these railways, which were deliberately selected by the Government with a view to opening up some of our best Crown lands. The Barmedman to Rankin Springs railway, for instance, would have opened up 893,000 acres of Crown land for closer agricultural settlement. It is practically impossible for me to deal with this country in a satisfactory way until I know definitely where the railways are to be built. I cannot now deal with the land in the vicinity of Rankin Springs as I intended. If the Crown lands of the country are to be brought under settlement in a practical and satisfactory manner, both branches of the Legislature will have to realise that railway lines must precede settlement, or at least accompany settlement. The short line from Gilgandra to Collie would not have cost much, and would have opened up one of our best wheatgrowing districts. Yet it was ruthlessly slaughtered with the others."

Mr. Carmichael said:—"I was not at all surprised at the action of the senate gentlemen in another place rising in a sudden paroxysm and slaughtering the innocents in the way they did. After the manner in which they treated the Superannuation Bill I was prepared for anything. A harmless measure, a supposedly non-party measure, and a procedure that had not one valid reason to support it was sufficient to suggest to the least-informed politician that the cup was about to run over. The Council has thrown down the challenge to the people. Like the two famous giants in 'Pilgrim's Progress,' it has assumed quite a warlike attitude. It rests with the people to say what the result of the challenge is to be."

DILLY-DALLYING.

CIVIC METHODS.

"SOMETHING ROTTEN SOMEWHERE."

More instances of the slackness in some of the departments of city government, to which Alderman Richards and Alderman M'Elhone have from time to time drawn attention, came under the notice of the finance committee of the council yesterday evening.

The position with respect to certain blocks in the resumed areas was explained by the treasurer (Mr. Solomons).

Alderman Clarke: One of the cases you mention has been going on for two years. How is it we can't get it fixed up?

The Town Clerk: It's in the hands of the city solicitor.

Alderman A. M'Elhone commented strongly on the delay that had taken place in this particular instance, and said it showed that there was "something rotten somewhere." If there was some unseen hand that had been keeping matters back it was time they knew whose it was.

Alderman Richards: There is too much dilly-dallying here.

Alderman Hagon: Things go on here that would not occur in a private institution.

It was decided that the chairman of the committee (Alderman W. P. M'Elhone) investigate the specific instance that had been mentioned, and report at the next meeting of the committee.

STEAMERS HELD UP.

CONGESTION IN THE COAL TRADE.

NEWCASTLE, Wednesday.

There were 17 interstate and foreign-going steamers lying idle waiting for berths to be vacated at the coal-loading cranes to-day.

Appeals have been made times out of number to the Chief Railway Commissioner, and also to Ministers, for extra coal-loading appliances, but no improvement has yet been effected, although promises have been given. About three months ago the Chief Commissioner promised to erect one of the M'Myler hoists, which are lying idle in a store at Carrington. A deputation from the Chamber of Commerce will wait upon the Chief Commissioner on Friday, when he calls here on his annual inspection, and they will invite him to a trip round the harbour, and show the necessity for something being done at once.

The steamer Cantara, with a cargo of sugar, came in from Mackay to-day, but as she could not get a berth she proceeded to Sydney, where she will take in a quantity of bunker coal. The coal trains from the collieries to the cranes are also running considerably late, and are certain to be running much later as the week advances.

FEDERAL PARLIAMENT.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

MELBOURNE, Wednesday.

Mr. Higgs asked the Treasurer (Sir John Forrest) whether he had obtained any information from the governor of the Commonwealth Bank as to the names and salaries of the officers of the Commonwealth Bank.

The Treasurer replied that he had submitted the question to the governor of the bank, and had received a reply to the effect that he could not see his way to do so, as the information was confidential.

Opposition cries of "Oh, oh."

Mr. Boyd (Vic.): Well, you have yourselves to blame for creating an autocrat.

Mr. Higgs asked whether it was advisable that the names of officials of the Commonwealth Bank should be kept a secret. Would it not be advisable to have the Act amended so that the information now obtainable regarding other branches of the Public Service would apply to members of the Commonwealth Bank.

The Treasurer replied that he had given the answer he had received. He had no control over the governor of the bank.

TASMANIAN MAIL CONTRACT.

Answering Mr. Laird Smith (Tas.), the Postmaster-General (Mr. Wynne) said that the new Tasmanian mail contract had not yet been signed, but the Government had agreed to the conditions.

POSTAL ELECTRICIANS' AWARD.

Mr. Bruce Smith (N.S.W.) referred to the postal electricians' award of Mr. Justice Higgins, and asked whether it was true that under its provisions the Postal Department would be called upon to pay boys of 15 and 16 years of age, who were undergoing their apprenticeship and learning the work, a salary of £168 a year?

The Postmaster-General (Mr. Wynne): "Under the present award I am advised that youths under 21 years of age are entitled to the same pay as the men of any age, namely, £168 a year. We think that that part of the award was made under a misapprehension, and are applying to have it amended or rectified by the Judge."

NAVIGATION ACT.

The Prime Minister, answering Mr. Tudor (Vic.), said that the Minister for Trade and Customs was now preparing the promulgating proclamation of the Navigation Act, and he expected to have it ready in a few days.

Mr. Finlayson (Q.) asked the Prime Minister whether it was the intention of the Government to agree to the desire in a report by commandants to reintroduce the canteen system into military camps.

The Prime Minister (Mr. Cook) replied that the State commandants had furnished a report upon the matter at the instance of the late Minister of Defence (Senator Pearce). The Prime Minister said that he was not aware that any change was likely to be made.

OLD-AGE PENSIONS.

The Treasurer (Sir John Forrest), answering Mr. Pigott (N.S.W.), said that it would not be advisable in the country districts to pay old-age pensioners their fortnightly allowance by cheque. The administration of the Act would be made more expensive if 't were done, and it was considered that there would be difficulty in getting receipts and ascertaining that the proper people were paid.

The Assistant Minister for Home Affairs (Mr. Kelly), answering Mr. Pigott, said that the Government of New South Wales was unwilling to make arrangements whereby the Governor-General might occupy Government House, Sydney, pending the settlement of the appeal to the Privy Council.

DAY LABOUR v CONTRACT.

The estimates for new works, buildings, and additions were further considered in committee. On item "Building for Department of Treasury and other departments, £8486," a debate took place on the question of day labour versus contract. The Hon. Minister (Mr. Kelly) stated that the building cost in all £63,000, as against £61,000 estimated.

Mr. Fisher thought this small increase reflected credit on the officers and the day labour system.

Mr. Bruce Smith (N.S.W.) said that the fact that the cost was only £2000 over the estimate went for little. What he would like to know was for how much less could the building have been erected by contract.

Mr. Fisher claimed that the debate was only opened up to enable the Government to declare for contracts. There was nothing to stop them going over to the contractors at any time now they had a majority.

Mr. Bruce Smith contended that on the evidence given in New South Wales courts the building would have been much cheaper by contract. It had been claimed by union officials that one day's piecework was worth 12 days' day labour; while Judge Heydon had put it down as worth 20 days' day labour. Had not the ex-Prime Minister let a contract for the building of some cottages?

Mr. Fisher: It is not true. I have never had any cottages built. I do not intend to build any cottages. I have no interest in any cottages being built, or have I any land to build them on.

The Hon. Minister pointed out that when the Labour party had an opportunity of proving that day labour was cheaper than contract they did not avail themselves of it. When the building in question was to be started the Labour Government should have proved their contention by calling tenders, but they funked it. If the Opposition wanted any evidence as to the value of day labour as compared with contract work they should turn their attention to New South Wales, where the Minister for Public Works (Mr. Griffith), after a three years' orgie of railway building by day labour, proposed to revert to the contract system.

Mr. Roberts (S.A.) denied that the Minister for Works in New South Wales was abandoning the day-labour system, and reverting to the contract system. Mr. Griffith had not said that he preferred the latter system.

Mr. Charlton (N.S.W.): He has just saved £1000 a mile by building a railway by day labour.

Mr. Riley (N.S.W.) instanced several contract-built public buildings in New South Wales which, he said, could have been better built by day labour. The Parcel Post-office at the Sydney Railway Station was a glaring example of how the Government was tied hand and foot when once a work was placed in a contractor's hands.

Colonel Ryrie (N.S.W.) asked why the Minister for Works in New South Wales had wished to give Norton Griffiths and Company a £3,000,000 contract for railway construction in New South Wales if day labour had been a success. Under the day-labour system it was only human for men to do as little work as possible, and spit on their hands as frequently as possible. (Laughter.) An awful instance of a day-labour job was the removal of two trees which grew outside the Educational Department in Sydney. The men employed on the job used fancy little saws, and after cutting off some small branch carried them away. The job cost £90. He guaranteed he could have done it for £15.

Mr. Hughes (N.S.W.) said the Government had not made up their minds on the question of day labour. Why did not the Government furnish instances of jobs carried out at a loss by day labour. The present Prime Minister gained reputation and kudos by introducing day labour into New South Wales. When before the electors last time he promised his supporters he would abolish day labour, but he was afraid to carry out his promise and keep faith with his contractor friends in New South Wales. The contractor proved a failure, and day labour had to be introduced. Why the Government were hesitating from giving their decision about day labour was that the case for it had become so strong, especially in railway construction. For every case where day labour had failed he would supply ten cases where contractors had failed.

"PART OF POLITICAL MACHINE."

Mr. Pigott (N.S.W.) gave a number of instances where works had been carried out by day labour at a loss in New South Wales, and said no wonder the State was in the market. The tramsheds at Fort Macquarie, Sydney, were estimated to cost £17,000 by contract. They were erected by day labour, and cost £37,000. Tabulam Bridge, similarly constructed, cost £15,588, as against £9878, the estimated contract price. The Pyrmont post-office cost £4109, or £1849 more than it would have done had it been erected by contract. Upon the erection by day labour of the Newcastle post-office, there was a loss of £13,665. The contract price was £19,335, and the cost by day labour £33,000. The one great objection he had to the day labour system was that unfortunately the overseers had to have the work done in the men's way and in the men's time, because they were part and parcel of a political machine. (Opposition cries of dissent.) He challenged the Opposition to name any country other than Australia that carried out works on the day labour principle. Shearers and coal miners believed in working by contract.

Mr. M'Grath (Vic.) asked the Government to give a guarantee that all contracts in future should contain a clause providing for the payment of a minimum wage.

The Prime Minister said they already did contain that clause, and would continue to do so.

Mr. Burns (N.S.W.) quoted passages from the "Sydney Morning Herald," which, he said, proved that by building the Marrickville Cottage Hospital by day labour there was a saving of 33 1-3rd per cent.

The item was agreed to.

LODGE DOCTORS.

TO BE IMPORTED.

RESISTING B.M.A. DEMANDS.

CASINO, Wednesday.

Some time ago the Casino Friendly Societies' Association circularised the Friendly Society lodges throughout New South Wales with regard to the formation of a board of medical control for the purpose of obtaining medical officers for the various lodges throughout the State from England and the Continent, as a counter move against the demand of the members of the B.M.A.

The first circular merely asked for an expression of opinion from the various lodges, and the hundreds of replies that have been received are most encouraging, and in every case strong promises of support have been offered. The association secretary (Mr. D. S. Rayner) has now issued an important circular to all the lodges, and when the replies are received a definite move towards forming the board will be made.

The Casino society has suggested:—

That an association of lodges be formed in every town, and that a District Association be formed, comprising in each centre one-tenth of the Friendly Society members of the State; that a delegate be appointed to represent each district, and that the 10 delegates thus elected form the Friendly Societies' Board of Medical Control; that the board shall establish agencies in London, in America, and on the Continent, for the purpose of securing medical men; that the board shall appoint medical men where required, and assist them in their practices; that the board shall establish Friendly Society hospitals where desired, and assist in making the necessary financial arrangements; that the board shall keep a register of nurses available, and supply them where desired, and that arrangements be made to provide nurses in districts other than where hospitals are established; that all members of lodges pay 1s per year into a central fund, to be controlled by the board, and that the amounts be collected at quarterly meetings by the secretary of each lodge and forwarded to the secretary of the board; that a fund be established to assist doctors and nurses where necessary (to which each shall contribute), and that the board shall subsidise such fund; that doctors and nurses' travelling expenses, as far as possible, be allowed upon the first engagement.

THE MANUFACTURERS.

ANNUAL MEETING.

IMPORTANT MOTIONS DRAFTED.

Important motions are set down on the business paper for discussion at the ninth annual meeting of the Associated Chambers of Manufactures, which is to be held in Melbourne on Monday next.

A motion from the New South Wales chamber deprecates the efforts of certain unions to bring about a six hours' working day, as being detrimental to the Commonwealth, financially, morally, and physically. Other industrial motions from New South Wales are that the principle of a fixed living wage is commercially unsound and detrimental to the interests of a community, unless accompanied by corresponding production; that tariff legislation will be a more effective safeguard against unemployment than any Government scheme of a national unemployment insurance; that limitation of apprentices is not in the interests of either employer or employee; that, should an increase in wages be imposed by wages boards directly affecting a contractor's labour during the currency of any Government contract, the contractor shall receive an amount equivalent to the increased cost, and a decrease to be deducted in like manner. The Victorian body desires to congratulate the Federal Government on the repeal of the policy of preference to unionists. South Australia recommends uniform holidays throughout the Commonwealth.

The New South Wales chamber has a motion dealing with the tariff. It is recommended to the Interstate Commission as a fundamental principle that all raw materials used in manufactures in Australia, and not obtained locally, be admitted to the Commonwealth duty free.

The Western Australian Chamber asks for co-operation in organising an All-Australian Exhibition in Perth, to commemorate the opening of the Trans-Australian railway from Port Augusta to Kalgoorlie. The N.S.W. chamber goes one further, and recommends that an All-Australian Manufactures' Week be held every year.

Touching Government enterprise, the South Australian Chamber desires all departments engaged in manufacture or business should publish detailed profit and loss accounts, etc. On the same subject Victoria suggests that no order for Government requirements should be placed with any Government factory until after public tenders are called.

The New South Wales Chamber recommends that the time has arrived for the appointment of Commonwealth Overseas' Trade Commissioners for the purpose of co-ordinating the efforts of the various States. The Federal capital city has not progressed commensurately with the progress of Australia, so the chamber claims, and consequently the laying out and all development work should be removed from party politics, and placed in the hands of an advisory board of experts. In connection with the various transcontinental lines the same body recommends that the example of Canada be followed in the creation of townships in the interior, and in the settlement of immigrants.

CASUALTIES.

SINGLE MAN'S SUICIDE.

The City Coroner recorded a finding of suicide yesterday in the case of the death of James Young, 40, single, who, on October 9, was found on some vacant land off Park-street, Alexandria, suffering from the effects of poison.

FALL DOWN SHIP'S HOLD.

William Swift, 4, the son of the watchman on the hulk Argo, lying in White Bay, Balmain, was playing on the deck yesterday when he fell down the vessel's hold, a distance of about 20ft. The Civil Ambulance conveyed him to the Balmain Hospital, where he was admitted, suffering from fractured ribs, concussion of the brain, and severe abrasions to the face and ribs.

THROWN FROM A SULKY.

Three men, including John Healey, 65, of Boothtown, were out driving in a sulky along Prospect-street on October 6, when the horse shied. After striking a post, a shaft of the sulky snapped, and Healey was thrown out on his back. He died at Prince Alfred Hospital on October 8, and the City Coroner yesterday found death to have been accidental.

WIFE'S DEATH AT WOOLLAHRA.

GRAND OPERA.

TALES OF HOFFMANN.

"LA TOSCA."

Offenbach, King of Melodists, crowned his volatile career as a composer with one important art production, and in the revival of "Tales of Hoffmann" at Her Majesty's yesterday afternoon, a large audience recognised once more the sentiment, drollery, and sparkling character of his music at its highest and best. There was more than that, however, to account for the delight with which "Tales of Hoffmann" was welcomed. There was the reappearance of that favourite contralto, Miss Edna Thornton, and the triumph of Miss Felice Lyne as the doll, Olympia. Never has a more dainty and life-like little doll in flaxen-curls, sky-blue silks, and white socks and shoes been seen on our stage, and the American prima donna's singing was as brilliant as her make-up, and acting were true to the character.

"Tales of Hoffmann" is, indeed, a captivating little work of elegance, mirth, and charm. Indeed, since Mr. Thomas Quinlan first introduced it to Australia a year ago, it has been pretty constantly kept in mind by local orchestras, street bands, and concert-room singers, who have unanimously appropriated the Barcarolle—absolutely overlooking Antonia's touching romance, and various other numbers which now once more renew the popularity of the work! However, this same Barcarolle blossoms once more like the rose in all its freshness when played as it was yesterday by the Quinlan Orchestra under Herr Richard Eckold after the third tale. The delicacy of the nuances, and the wood-wind combinations, restored all its original charm to the music, and the performance was warmly encored.

Playgoers may like to be reminded of two extraordinary facts connected with "Les Contes d' Hoffmann," the first that it was produced after the composer's death (though he had made scores of successes, including "La Grande Duchesse" and "Mme. Favart"), when it ran 101 nights at the Paris Opera Comique; and the second, that it did not reach London, only nine hours' distant, until 27 years later! On hearing the piece once more, one realised that the tragic side of the wonderful, weird story of Hoffmann's three love affairs, had not been markedly transferred to the music. It fascinates chiefly through the comic touches for which the composer was famous; an idyllic sentiment of a very rare character in the last act; and the use of his brass, with full orchestra, for martial and melodramatic effects, or with the wood-wind for the suggestion of the supernatural. The plot by Jules Barbier, the distinguished librettist of Gounod's "Faust" and "Romeo and Juliette," is in a prologue, three acts, and an epilogue. It may be said to form "such stuff as dreams are made on," and first takes the audience to Luther's wine-cellars in Nuremberg a hundred years ago. Here the English choristers, attired as German students, rolled out a tra-la-la drinking song in richly harmonious joviality, and Mr. Spencer Thomas, as Hoffmann, in the quaint dress of the period, with top-boots and a long staff, introduced the "Song of the Dwarf Kleinzach," with many a comic touch for tripping flute or solemn bassoon in the accompaniment. This went briskly off; and after Hoffman had promised to tell the students the story of his three unhappy love-affairs, the three subsequent acts revealed the love-adventures in turn. Finally, epilogue showed the students dozing over their cups, thus revealing the dream-like nature of all that had passed before the eyes of the audience.

Only two characters, Hoffmann and his young friend Nicklaus, appear throughout the opera. In the former, Mr. Spencer Thomas rightly showed the hero as a man of sentiment, as well as of pleasure. The tenor proved in excellent voice, both in the romance of the first act, in which the vocal theme is quite independent of the persistent figure for horns, and in the "Drinking Song" of the second, which he delivered with breadth of tone, and abundant animation. Miss Clegg, who has not been heard before, acted Nicklaus with boyish freedom, and in the gay song in which she rallied the hero upon his passion for a doll, she revealed a light contralto of good quality. The mimicry of the doll was capital. Miss Edna Thornton was the all-important figure as Giulietta in the richly glowing Venetian scene of act two, which opens with the barcarolle theme as a duet, "O, Lovely Night, O Night of Love," in which the contralto joined mellifluously with Miss Clegg. All the power of Miss Thornton's splendid voice, a mezzo-contralto with a thrilling top register, was revealed in the passionate "Mirror" duet with the tenor, and in the concerted number with chorus, which closes the scene. Mr. Graham Marr, a sinister, Mephistophelian figure as Dappertutto, the necromancer, gave a dramatic rendering of "Jewel Divine," in which he displayed a fine baritone voice.

Miss Lyne's success has been already referred to. The high soprano sang the brilliant doll music with lark-like ease, and her mechanical movements were cleverly in character. Yet another soprano, Miss Alice Prowse appeared as Antonia in the last act. This singer possesses a voice of brilliant resonance, which will probably serve her better in music more dramatic than the purely idyllic "Thou art flown, dove that I cherished." In this die-away romance of the gentle consumptive girl, the singer could not conceal her inherent health and vitality. Many minor parts were well rendered, more especially the scientist (Sydney Russell), Coppelius, and Dr. Mirakel (Charles Magrath), and Pitichinaccio (Robert Veevers).

"LA TOSCA."

In the evening Puccini's great tragic opera "La Tosca" was staged, and in the extremely modern character of its art scheme and orchestration at once placed a gulf of at least half a century between itself and the tinsel which had passed as something in the grand vein a few hours before! Dr. Tullio Voghera thus carried off the honours yesterday, piloting his enthusiastic band of players with sureness and significance through the oft-times tempestuous ensembles of the work, and elsewhere gently leading them through the flowery paths of pastoral peace and pathos which reached up at last to the rapturous heights of the poetic last act. Owing to this admirable interpretation of the ever-changing accompaniments from the five great discords of the Scarpia theme in the opening to the very last bar—and not less to the charm and emotional suggestion of Jeanne Brola, in happy association with W. J. Samuel and Maurice D'Oisly—the performance will stand high amongst the brighter moments of the Quinlan season.

This great work was first performed here two years ago by the Melba Company with a star cast, consisting of Mme. Korolewicz-Wayda and Signor Scandiani, who both made a lasting reputation in the central characters, with Mr. John M'Cormack as Cavaradossi. Playgoers are intimately acquainted with the theme of the work. Over all the beautiful music that Giacomo Puccini has woven round it lies the shadow of Victorien Sardou's terrible story of lust and blood. The original has been cleverly condensed by Messrs. L. Illica and G. Giacosa from a five-act drama into a three-act libretto by omitting the explanatory and comedy scenes of the original. Sardou's second act with Queen Carolina of Naples is omitted, and all the events which took place at the lover's antique villa and in Scarpia's supper-room are adroitly brought together in the latter place. Thus the librettists place their final brief scene on level terms with the conclusion of the tragedy on the ramparts of San Angelo, from the giddy wall of which the unhappy Floria leaps joyfully to the death in which she rejoins her lover.

Miss Jeanne Brola showed every side of Floria La Tosca's character, more especially in the playful caprice, poutings, and pretty entreaties of a jealous woman in the Church scene, where she joined with charm in the conversational duet which the composer accompanies with such ravishing attire. Mr. D'Oisly also acted with spirit as Cavaradossi, and sang with warmth of sentiment the famous aria "Strange Harmony," in which he effected an admirable vocal climax at the great outburst of orchestral sweetness which crowns the close of the song. The tenor was again at his best in the wonderful music of the last act, and his Cavaradossi will always be remembered with pleasure. His Duke had not prepared us, we admit, for such a marked success.

The brutal incidents of the second act, less shocking when viewed through the veil of tone colour than in the spoken version, gave prominence to the new Scarpia. Mr. Samuell acted the part with a good deal of smiling, malevolent power, though at times with not quite sufficient authority, and sang "Too Lovely Art Thou," and the other great aria of the scene, with effective expression, though the scoring was heavy. In this scene Miss Brola moved the audience with a rendering of the beautiful prayer ("Visi d'Arte"), that was quite poignant in its expression of suppressed emotion, whilst the voice, not large, but of fine quality, was used with judgment. The love-music in the last act, with the strange unisonal music for both voices, had the right effect of a spontaneous impulse on the part of both artists. The tragedy was well staged in every detail, and the small parts were vividly put in—notably the loquacious old sacristan by Chas. Magrath, Spoletta by Sydney Russell, and Angelotti by Arthur Wynn.

COURT SCENES.

WIFE AND HUSBAND FAINT.

ATTEMPTED MURDER CHARGE.

MELBOURNE, Wednesday.

There were a couple of painful scenes in the Richmond Court to-day during the hearing of a charge against William Alfred Williamson of having unlawfully and maliciously shot at his wife, Beatrice Williamson, with intent to murder her.

She lived with her husband up to the week preceding last Thursday, Mrs. Williamson said, and had a little boy, aged 7. At 8.45 a.m. last Thursday she was in the kitchen at Mrs. Hooker's house, when her husband entered. He said, "Beatrice, forgive me this once, and I will be a better man." Witness replied, "No; you go to your girl in the country. You know too many for me." She also said, "I will never live with you again, Alf. You have beaten me so often I cannot stand that life any longer." Her husband then snatched up their little boy, and took him away. Witness immediately went to the police station.

At this stage Mrs. Williamson, who had given her evidence between sobs, broke down completely, and it was decided to hear medical evidence while she was given a chance to recover.

Dr. Bullen, of Melbourne Hospital, said Mrs. Williamson had a wound behind the right ear. The shot had been fired at close range. The wound in itself was not dangerous, but it was a close call.

Williamson at this stage fell unconscious on the floor of the court. Soon afterwards Williamson recovered, and the case was proceeded with.

Mrs. Williamson continued her evidence. She said that at about 4 p.m. on the day of the shooting she was in the back yard of Mrs. Hooker's residence, when her husband leapt over the back gate. He flew towards her like a maniac. She rushed into the house, slammed the door, and bolted it. There was immediately a crash of glass, and her husband entered through the window. She ran through the house and out into Swan-street. She saw Constable Herbert. She had almost reached the constable, when her husband caught up to her, and she felt a stinging pain in the head. He had previously threatened to kill her.

Accused reserved his defence, and was committed for trial.

"ROSE DAY."

CHAMPIONSHIP OF THE FLEET.

On Saturday over a thousand young ladies will be marshalled in the city and suburbs for the sale of roses for 56 Sydney charities. Public interest in the campaign is most pronounced, and the committee is meeting with every assistance from those in a position to help the movement. Mr. Hugh J. Ward, the hon. organiser, was yesterday informed by the Lord Mayor that the day would be officially recognised. The Town Hall has been placed at the disposal of the committee; while at night the building will be illuminated in recognition of the occasion.

At noon the State Governor and Lady Edeline Strickland will visit the stands in various parts of the city. Mrs. W. H. Holman will entertain a number of the collectors at the Tourist Bureau, Martin-place. This section of the city has been apportioned to members of the theatrical profession, who are taking part in the rose sale. Among their number will be Miss Perceval Allen, Mme. Edna Thornton, Miss Felice Lyne, and the members of companies now appearing in "The Cingalee" and "Within the Law."

Miss Florence Young will captain a team of cricketers at the carnival on the Agricultural Showground in the afternoon; and Mr. W. S. Percy will appear at the head of a team of footballers against representatives of the Rugby League. Both games promise humour, as does a game of musical chairs in motor cars, which is to be one of the attractions of the carnival programme.

Yesterday an exciting trial of the chariot racing teams was held at the Agricultural Show Ground. The drivers lost control of the horses, and were careered round the ground at breakneck speed. This event has all the element of a thrill in it.

A contest that should excite a great deal of interest on Saturday will be one deciding the championship of the fleet at tug-of-war. Teams from the Australia, the Sydney, and the Melbourne will pull in the competition.

There is also a military tournament on a spectacular scale. Most of the sports under this heading will be played on horseback.

It is expected that the gate-money will run well into four figures, as the programme is one with an appeal to all sections of the community.

AUSTRALIAN WEATHER.

THE "HERALD" MAP.

The double-headed Antarctic disturbance which covered the south-eastern States on Tuesday has developed a considerable amount of energy. The centre has not made very much easting, it being still over Tasmania, where the barometers are as low as 29.14 inches, while the outer isobar has extended into Queensland. This slow movement and the extension northwards probably account for the good rains over the southern half of our State.

To the rear of this disturbance is a high pressure, which has also developed much energy, the central readings, which are as high as 30.42 inches, being situated in the extreme south-western corner of the continent.

Owing to the combination of these two pressure systems colder weather, with squally S.W. winds, should be experienced during the next day or two, and some thunder-showers in the north-east.

Ocean Forecast.—South-west gales and rough seas from Kangaroo Island eastwards, and squalls on the New South Wales coast.

Both the contents and the building, which is the property of the Norton Russell Estate, are stated to be insured.

A MOUNTAIN STORM.

KATOOMBA, Wednesday.

A very heavy thunderstorm occurred here to-night, followed by strong winds, which blew the roof off the billiard-room of the Family Hotel, Park-street. This was carried across the street, and struck a telegraph pole on the opposite side with a crash. The roof was absolutely demolished.

STEAMERS IN COLLISION.

MELBOURNE, Wednesday.

When the steamer Maunganui was going down the river on her way to New Zealand, via Hobart, she had a slight collision with the tug Alacrity, staving in a blind porthole, about 3 feet above water. Captain Worrall decided to have repairs effected before proceeding to New Zealand, and put into Williamstown for this purpose. She is expected to resume her voyage during the night.

COLLIERY STOPPAGES.

NEWCASTLE, Wednesday.

Just before the close of proceedings at the Miners' Wages Board to-day Mr. Kelynack, counsel for the colliery proprietors, drew attention to the further stoppages that had taken place at the collieries during the past week. On Wednesday last the Pelaw-Main colliery was thrown idle. As far as could be ascertained, the only reason given was that the price of explosives had gone up a halfpenny. On Friday, at Whitburn, the colliery was laid idle without any intimation to the management, and on the following day it was again idle. Yesterday, at Hebburn, the afternoon shift refused to go to work, and did not notify the manager.

Mr. Kelynack said he was aware that he could not ask the board to take any steps, but he wished to have those stoppages placed on record, together with the fact that he had entered a strong protest.

The board adjourned at 4.30 till Monday morning.

OIL FIELDS.

APPOINTMENT OF AN EXPERT.

MELBOURNE, Wednesday.

The Minister for External Affairs (Mr. Glynn) is very hopeful of the future of the Papuan oil industry. To-day he announced that he had engaged Mr. F. C. Grebin for 12 months at £600, as a general supervisor. Mr. Grebin is a member of the Institute of Mining Engineers. He graduated in mining engineering at the Frieberg University in Germany. He located oil a considerable distance from the locality in which Mr. Locke is working. Mr. Grebin will be sent to meet Dr. Wade when he arrives at Papua, and will assist him in his work of surveying the fields. After that he will be at the disposal of the Government, and will probably lay down a scheme for the production of petroleum.

HIGH COURT DECISION.

MELBOURNE, Wednesday.

The question whether the High Court can hear an appeal in camera was again discussed to-day. The case before the Court was that of Dickason v Dickason in divorce jurisdiction, which had been heard by Mr. Justice Hood with closed doors.

Mr. Morley, on behalf of the petitioner, asked that proceedings should be in camera. In the present instance, if the appeal were taken in public the parties might be frightened out of Court. There would be no injustice by the case being heard with closed doors.

Mr. Justice Isaacs said that it had been decided by the full Bench of the High Court that under the judiciary act the Court could not hear appeals in camera. The present Court was bound by that decision. No order could be given that the Court be cleared. An order would, however, be made by the Court that there would be no publication of proceedings other than the names, that the appeal was under the Marriage Act, and that the result should be published in the simplest possible way.

The appeal was one by the wife against the dismissal of her petition by Mr. Justice Hood. Mr. Rogers appeared on behalf of the respondent. After argument, the appeal was dismissed.

SUGARCANE.

PRICE BOARD SUGGESTED.

BRISBANE, Wednesday.

In the Assembly this afternoon Mr. Rankin moved that the House, at its next sitting, consider the introduction of a bill to establish sugarcane price boards. He pointed out that there was room for improvement in the relations between grower and manufacturer. The bill proposed, he said, would establish tribunals on lines suggested by the Federal Royal Commission. The sugar-worker was protected by wages boards, and the miller by £6 a ton duty, and he was seeking to give some protection to the grower. The zone system had practically done away with competition, and it was with a view to breaking down the zone system that the bill was to be introduced. The motion was agreed to.

STATE JOINERY WORKS.

"Anonyma" writes:—

Sir,—In your issue of Saturday last is published an account of the gross trading of the State Joinery works at Roselle for 12 months ended June 30 last, but the amount of stock on hand at that date is omitted, and should be, by the figures supplied, £56,024/12/10.

The gross profit on production is only 20.73 per cent.—a profit inadequate to successful manufacture. The stock on hand is equal to 63½ per cent. on production of the period. This is apparently much larger than would be held by prudent capitalists, and, as one interested in the success or otherwise of State Government trading, it would be a source of satisfaction to myself and other taxpayers to learn what is the net profits of such undertakings, and how arrived at; and as this account is audited by professional auditors, I would like to learn whether the supplies to Government works are at the prices of similar goods charged by private traders.

BREADSTUFFS.

AN EASIER MARKET.

Good falls of rain at Riverina stations and fair falls at some western and northern stations had an easing effect on the wheat market yesterday. An attempt to sell old wheat for prompt delivery at 3/8 met with no response, and holders had to reduce their asking price to 3/7 for southern grain, and 3/7½ for western grain. In the altered outlook millers were not solicitous as to the future, and they kept off the market. New wheat was offering more freely, and farmers sold some fair lots for delivery at country stations at prices varying from 3/ to 3/1. For January-February delivery ex trucks Sydney 3/6 was asked, the great difference between this and the country price being due to uncertainty as to the railway delivery.

Freights for parcel shipment prompt are considerably easier, and there has also been a lowering of freights for next year's loading of sailer cargoes.

Flour was dull and without alteration at £8/15/ for bakers' lots. Bran and pollard were quoted at £4/10/.

COMMONWEALTH WHEAT EXPORTS.

Wheat exports from the Commonwealth were about twice as much as those of the previous week. They amounted to 396,000 bushels. From New South Wales 164,000 bushels were sent away. Victoria sent away 67,000 bushels, and South Australia 165,000 bushels. Probably as freights are lower and the spot position is easier, there will be larger shipments from New South Wales right on to the new season. Details from December 1 to October 11 are:—

	Wheat. Bushels.	Flour. Sacks.	Total in Equivalent of Wheat. Bushels.
New South Wales	12,701,129	478,692	15,097,589
Victoria	9,740,618	711,989	13,300,563
South Australia	12,080,684	441,950	14,290,434
Western Australia	3,900,479	222,190	5,110,429
Commonwealth	38,533,910	1,854,821	47,808,015

For the corresponding period of last season, shipments were:—Wheat, 31,726,102 bushels; flour, 1,419,085 sacks; total in equivalent of wheat, 38,821,527 bushels.

At Darling Harbour yesterday 970 tons of wheat and 144 tons of flour were manifested to arrive.

COMMERCIAL.

THE MARKETS.

Though there was welcome rain in the wheat belt yesterday, the jute market did not strengthen to the extent anticipated. Some large operators, believing that the 10,000 bales coming by the Gracchus and the Umta would be felt, made a determined attempt to break down the market. On the previous day, before news of the rain was received, a sale was made in the vicinity of 7/ slings, for August shipment, but nothing like that price was available yesterday. There were offerings at 7/4 slings, and some sales were made at that figure. On spot, 7/6 delivered discount found buyers. For later September shipments 7/5 slings was asked. There was some demand for branbags from Tasmania and Queensland, but as far as New South Wales was concerned the business was confined to town operations. One hundred bales were reported at 6/10, and 40 bales at 6/10½ on spot delivered discount. Forward prices were irregular. Some sellers wanted 6/10½ slings for October-December shipments, but there were many bales available at 6/9 slings. Twenty-five bales of woolpacks sold in the morning at 3/3½, but stocks of the present season's make being extremely limited, 3/4 was wanted in the afternoon. The holders of last season's packs advanced their prices in sympathy, and asked 3/2.

The news of the Colombo auctions yesterday induced a little buying in the tea trade at firm rates. Transactions included over 300 packages of Ceylons up to /10, and at the close of the day further business was pending. The Colombo cables stated that at the auction on Tuesday for all kinds the market was very strong, and, despite the inferior quality, the prices realised were on a par with those ruling the previous week. Nothing could demonstrate better the strength of the statistical position.

In harvesting material an active business was done. All kinds of hay forks were becoming in short supply, and active movement took place between houses. Binder twine was worth £59 per ton for lines. Axes were also inquired for. Lawn mowers were moving freely, but not quite to the extent of this time last year. Cement was extremely firm at full rates. Two hundred casks of Challenge brand sold at 12/9, and 100 casks of Knight Bevan at 15/ per cask. Despite the low prices, and the importers having considerably reduced prices to undercut the local manufacturer, wire-netting was moving out very slowly, and it was not expected that any great business would be done till after the harvest. Most of the trade that was done came from the pastoral districts. With imported prices as they are at present, it is quite within the bounds of possibility that the Government may be asked to institute an inquiry whether dumping is not being practised by the manufacturer outside the Commonwealth.

Oils continued dull for parcel business. Distributing linseed oil, boiled, could be obtained at 3/7 when taken alone, but when taken with raw oil 3/8 was asked. The reason for the concession when taken alone was that the market was rather over-supplied with the boiled oil. White-lead had still £39 asked, but buyers were holding off the market, preferring to await the arrival of the Miltiades, when they expected lower values would rule.

TO-DAY'S HOMEBUSH OFFERINGS.

The numbers of sheep and cattle listed for to-day's Homebush auctions are as follows:—

Sheep (including lambs)	45,382
Cattle (including calves)	3,724

EXPORT TRADE.

SHELL SALES.

Our London correspondent, under date of September 12, writes:—

This week's sales of mother-o'-pearl shell were heavy, but in spite of this competition was very fair. Queensland shell sold at fully steady prices on the average; on the whole the quality was good. Of 1102 packages offered, 960 sold up to £11/17/6, and £12/15/ per cwt. for A.A. chicken shells, colonial sorted, and £15/7/6 to £16/17/6. In Western Australian there was large supply, with a heavy proportion of chicken and small medium shell, which declined quite 30/ to 40/ on average. Of defective shell the supply was comparatively small, and, in consequence, prices were steady. Of Western Australian 1853 packages offered, and 1026 sold, sound shells being 20/ to 40/ cheaper on average. Bold and medium were £11/17/6 to £15/2/6, London sorted, and A.A. colonial sorted, £11/15/ to £13/15/. Thirty packages Port Darwin shell offered, and sold steadily up to £14/2/6 per cwt, for A.A. chicken. Black edged Tahiti was firm to 10/ dearer, and the 57 packages of Fiji shell offered, sold at dearer prices on the average.

At the tortoiseshell sales supplies were also heavy, but nearly everything sold at very firm prices; 1512lb Sydney and Fiji shell offered, and it was mostly cleared. Selected good ranged from 41/ to 100/ per lb, small to bold, fair to good, dark mottle, 29/ to 34/; chicken 15/6 to 17/; hoof, good clean, 20/ to 29/, and ordinary 11/ to 17/6 per lb. Yellow-belly, fair to good was 9/ to 15/ per lb. Hoof and yellow-belly were very firm.

IMPROVEMENT IN EGGS.

Several of the big pastrycooks and biscuit makers recommenced buying operations on the egg market yesterday morning. The immediate result was that prices for river varieties advanced ½d per dozen, to /7½. Supplies were not to be had under this figure. South Coast and railway lots were steady at from /7½ to /8. For new-laid suburban varieties anything from /9 to /10 was secured. There was no alteration in the price of duck eggs.

Contrary to the general expectation special brands of bacon did not advance. It was stated by agents handling these cures that prices were already sufficiently high, and that any further upward movement at this juncture might kill the demand. Hams were again in good request for prompt delivery, but it was impossible to secure a quotation for December delivery.

There was a steady inquiry for butter at 109/ per cwt, delivered in boxes. The total arrivals of butter in Melbourne since July 1 amount to 220,391 boxes, as compared with 160,797 boxes for the corresponding period of 1912. Arrivals from Tasmania since July 1 amount to 227 boxes, against 291 boxes for the corresponding period last year.

RAILWAY MARKET.

CHAFF SELLING WELL.

The chief feature of yesterday's auctions was the sale of an unusually large quantity of wheaten chaff. Eighty truckloads were manifested as being on the sidings. Good prices were obtained, the top price of 5/10 being a distinct advance. The medium quality of chaff predominated, and sold readily. A few consignments of oaten chaff sold up to 4/8 per cwt.

The potato market was still poor, although somewhat brisker than on the previous day. Most of the consignments were from Crookwell. Sales at 2/1 to 3/6. A consignment of Swede turnips from Windsor was the cause of some amused comment. The turnips had apparently been "picked" too late, and two days under heavy tarpaulins during transit had reduced them to an odorous, pulpy, and mildewed condition. They were three-quarters bad, and had to be sold at an absurd figure.

Produce placed in position for sale totalled 120 truckloads, and consisted of:—Hay 6, chaff 80, wheat 11, maize 6, potatoes 16, turnips 1.

The following consignments were manifested to arrive:—Chaff 65, potatoes 18, turnips 1, wheat 11, maize 8, hay 5.

The Sydney Woolselling Brokers' Association report:—Catalogues comprised many attractive wools, and the market ruled exceptionally strong, with an upward tendency, very satisfactory clearances being made. The chief support of the market was the spirited Continental competition, although a few lines were taken on Yorkshire account. In the greasy section /14½ was secured for merino, which represents the highest point reached so far this season.

Harrison, Jones, and Devlin, Ltd., offered a good catalogue including some well-grown lines. The highest price in the grease was 13¼d, paid for 100 1st com e of XX/G (Warialda), 72 2nd com making /12¾, and 45 A com e /12. MELBOURNE, Wednesday.

At to-day's wool sales 2000 bales were offered. The selection was a good one. The better class of wools met with strong demand from all sections, and sold at full late rates. Faulty and inferior sorts, together with those of doubtful yield, on the other hand, showed some irregularity, and did not always command opening rates.

THE INTERMEDIATE AND LEAVING CERTIFICATES.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Allow me, in the interests of more than a few schools, denominational and undenominational, to point out that the very strong representations already made as regards the compulsory four-group choice of subjects (apart from the few pupils taking three foreign languages), should not be regarded as mere pious opinions by the examiners' board, or the other authorities now engaged in drawing up the new regulations. The feeling on the part of those teachers that object to this compulsory four-group regulation is very strong indeed, and I would like to point out to the authorities and to the public some of the reasons that lie at the root of this strong feeling. Those reasons have had a large part, it seems to me, in determining the representations made this week by the Sydney Headmasters' Association, and it may be well to summarise them briefly under three heads, viz.: (1) Freedom and encouragement for all types of good schools, and all types of pupils receiving a sound education; (2) the health of pupils and the avoiding of undue physical strain; (3) a sincere concern for true education, and the avoiding of cram. Now, there are two points of view from which a practical educationalist is bound in duty to consider this subject. First, from the point of view of the schools as practical institutions, with actual limitations in staff and equipment. From this point of view I think the authorities, including the examiners' board, have a duty laid on them to consider the burden they will be imposing on really good schools to the great injury of true education. This great injury will be wrought if certain types of school with efficient masters and mistresses in three mathematics, languages, English, and History, be compelled to waste or distract their energies in practical science work of a highly specialised character. Why and by what right compel them to take science, to be intensively taught as a main branch of every system of education? It is hardly credible, but none the less a fact that the new regulations require a fourth group to be taken, and this means physics or chemistry for most of our schools of every type. We may be of opinion that an intensive study of science is to be encouraged, but surely we must not insist upon this as an article of the true faith necessary to be believed by all the faithful. In no other country, in no other educational system, even in progressive Australia, is there any such attempt to dogmatise and enforce uniformity. If, with the rest of the world, we admit that a good school can give the pupils a good type of secondary education without intensive detailed work in practical science, we must in the interests of mere freedom, I think, allow such schools to be free in this matter. You may note that I do not urge that any school should be free to teach science, even where less intensively studied, but I would urge that to the inspector could be entrusted the task of seeing to the efficiency of work done in science, where it may be a subsidiary subject. Secondly, with regard to the pupils, I would point out that there are many subsidiary subjects in a good all-round secondary school, and it is in the best interests of the boys and girls' health of brain and body that inside of the inner circle of subjects chosen by certain schools, e.g., the three mathematics, two foreign languages, English literature, and grammar and history, there should be no attempt to crowd other subjects which can and should be studied, but not intensively as part of an all-round liberal education. In such schools this or that boy or girl may have special aptitude and strength to take a third foreign language or intensive practical science work, but it will not be in the best interests of the pupil's health or education if the masters or parents are not left free to judge what may be injurious or helpful in this respect. The proposed new regulations are against freedom in this matter, and yet freedom here means a better education, and it means a wise care for health of body and brain. The Examiners' Board and others interested in drawing up a permanent scheme of a practical nature will, no doubt, be grateful to have plain statements of the views of more than a few teachers of schools.

MINING.

MARKET STILL LISTLESS.

BUSINESS ON LIMITED LINES.

LONDON EASIER.

"The monetary position here is still acute," writes a leading London Stock Exchange operator to a member of the Sydney Stock Exchange, "and this fully accounts for the lack of buoyancy. All sections of the mining market are affected. The unsettled state of affairs on the European continent is also a big factor in the depressed state of our market."

The above view of the position of affairs confirms what has been stated in this column for some days past. The list of middle quotations of the London Stock Exchange on Tuesday clearly shows that there is no sign of the cloud of depression lifting. Indeed, if anything, it is deepening, for both copper and silver stocks were a fraction easier. Moreover, the prices of copper and lead declined—copper by 12/6 and lead by 17/6.

In these circumstances it is no wonder that the local market showed few signs of much vigour. This is clearly indicated by the fact that in the copper division the sales recorded disclosed a decline in Hampden-Cloncurry from 36/ to 35/9, Mount Morgans from 69/ to 68/9, Mount Lyells from 26/ to 25/9, and Mount Oxide Options from £35/5/ to £35.

The record in the case of Barriers was also against sellers, for, in the sales booked, B.H. Block 10 receded from 31/ to 28/, British Broken Hill from 36/1½ to 35/10½, Broken Hill Proprietary from 35/4½ to 35/, and B.H. Souths (paid) from £7/5/6 to £7/2/6. The only stock that did not decline was B.H. North, but the sale price—47/—confirmed the decline of earlier in the week. Considering the slackness of the market in most lines, the offers for B.H. Junction North and B.H. Junction were fairly steady, but wide in the case of B.H. Block 10 and Amalgamated Zinc. Broken Hill Souths (con.) firmed a little on the previous day's easier quotations, whilst holders of Sulphide Corporation (ord.) would not mark down their price below the last sale rate. New Burragorang (con.) were firmly held.

So far as business was concerned, gold stocks were very much neglected, the only sale recorded being in Bullfinch Proprietary, on the easy side.

For once in a while, Carpathias, as the doyen of the Ardlethan stocks, did not furnish one transaction. They were seldom called in the vestibule. Has the dividend taken away the breath of both bulls and bears? The quotations at the noon "call" showed that buyers of the contributing shares offered 16/, as against 17/6, the closing sale of the previous day, but sellers would not come below 17/6. For the paid scrip, buyers offered 13/, whilst sellers declined to quote below 15/. Southern Cross (con.) raised its head with more confidence, and sales were booked at a recovery of /4 and /5. A parcel of Tongkah Harbour sold at a /6 discount on the previous day's closing rates, but Tongkah Compound were not quoted.

In a quiet afternoon, most attention was paid to Barriers, but the prices realised, in the sales booked, were again on the easy side. Copper and gold stocks were neglected; whilst in Ardlethans business on solid lines was booked in Carpathias and Southern Cross (con.), but Tongkah Harbour sold /6 down, with sales a shade easier on the top price of earlier in the week.

UPS AND DOWNS OF MINING.

AMALGAMATED HILL END.

STAR OF PEACE REEF FOUND.

Apparently in gold-mining fortune leaves as well as follows the brave. The "Herald" correspondent at Hill End sends a telegram, the substance of which is as follows:—In 1875 the Star of Peace Company, at Hill End, then under the management of Mr. Alfred Fairfax, sunk a shaft vertically over 250ft, and then on the underlay for over 500ft, on what was known as the rich Star of Peace vein. At the bottom of the shaft the vein was worked, also a little south, when the shaft was officially condemned as unsafe, and no work has since been done there, though it is said that two companies were formed for the purpose of reopening the shaft or sinking a new one, but the money was spent in other directions.

In the year 1913, or 38 years afterwards, the main drive off the lower tunnel, driven by the Amalgamated Hill End Company, was recently turned easterly, with the object of connecting with the old Star of Peace shaft or workings. In so doing several veins were cut, the last one assaying 40oz of gold to the ton of ore. The drive off the tunnel was continued towards the Star of Peace shaft, and early this week it is learned from our correspondent, a borehole, kept ahead of the drive for safety, pierced the old Star of Peace workings, and such an enormous body of water spurted out that the mine was flooded for several days.

On Tuesday night the mine manager was able to crawl into the old workings, and there found that the Star of Peace vein was 4ft wide in places. It was impossible for him to remain long enough to sample the reef carefully, so he brought away a few pieces of quartz, and if they are a fair sample of the lode then the Star of Peace Company had to abandon a payable reef when the shaft was officially condemned and work ceased.

Another interesting fact remains—that if the Star of Peace Co., 38 years ago, had only crosscutted to the west a considerably less number of feet, it would have struck the rich vein that was recently discovered by the Amalgamated Hill End. "Such is the luck of mining," observes our correspondent.

So far the present company has found no evidence of prospecting by the old Star of Peace Company. It evidently found and left behind a lode practically ready for stoping, so that the present-day stories that the Star of Peace shaft was sunk 500ft on the underlay without a crosscut being driven east or west are likely to be also confirmed.

If these two facts are established, as they are very likely to be within the next month, the outlook for the Amalgamated Hill End shareholders and the district generally is an encouraging one. Success would be well deserved, for no more legitimate effort has ever been made in the history of New South Wales mining to revive a field that has been derelict for 38 years.

BARRIER MINES.

BROKEN HILL, Wednesday.

At the B.H. South mine, during the past week, the rise from the 725ft level (section D3) was taken up to 774ft, with the back in ore going 16 per cent. lead, 4.2oz silver, 16 per cent. zinc. Good grade ore is also showing in two winzes from the 835ft level. Two west crosscuts were started off the 1170ft level (section C), intended as sites for diamond drills. The south drive at this level was taken to 74ft in schist, leaving ore on the western side. Diamond-drilling at the 970ft level had no good results.

At the South Block's mine, the main shaft was last week deepened to 1295ft. The main north drive (1050ft level) was carried to 305ft, the ore assaying 17.6 per cent. lead, 3.4oz silver, 11.6 per cent. zinc. Development on the zinc lode was proceeded with at the 691 and 532ft level. The main north drive at the latter level is carrying ore going 5 per cent. lead, 1.4oz silver, and 14.4 per cent. zinc. Elsewhere only low-grade ore is showing.

RADIUM HILL COMPANY.

The fourth annual meeting of shareholders in the Radium Hill Company (no liability) was held yesterday at the offices of Messrs. Starkey and Starkey, York-street. There was an attendance of about 30 shareholders, and the meeting was presided over by Mr. John H. King, in the absence of the chairman and managing director, Mr. Thomas D. Jones.

The secretary said the company had a credit bank account of £46 18s 9d. Outstanding cheques amounted to £166 17s 6d, leaving a debit of £117 18s 9d. There were amounts owing to the company of £433. Outstanding calls amounted to £83. The credit was £399 6s 3d. The bank overdraft had been reduced by £1600, and was now £2000. The total available funds were £2399 6s 3d.

The chairman moved the adoption of the report and balance-sheet. The report stated that the capital had been increased to £80,000 by the creation of additional shares of £10 each.

Mr. Hollander asked if they had taken into consideration, when making up the balance-sheet, the amount of radium they had in hand.

The chairman said that they had not. They had produced for July 100 milligrammes, for August 110 milligrammes, and for three weeks of September 100 milligrammes—worth fully £6000.

Mr. Hollander: And not shown in the balance-sheet!

The report and balance-sheet were then adopted.

The report of the works manager and chemist, Mr. S. Radcliff, was then read. It was desirable, he said, to sink the shaft another 100ft as early as possible, as geologists were of opinion that the ore would increase in value in depth.

Three vacancies on the board of directors were filled by the appointments of Messrs. F. W. Berne, Joseph Thompson, and W. Lambert. Mr. J. King was also nominated. Directors' salaries were fixed at £200 per annum, a motion to reduce it to £100 being lost. Messrs. Starkey and Starkey were re-appointed as auditors.

Mr. C. A. Marshall then moved (a) "That the office of managing director of this company be and the same is hereby abolished, and the seat of the managing director be, and the same is, hereby declared vacant, and his engagement cancelled; (b) that no further appointment of managing director be made until otherwise directed by the shareholders in general meeting."

Mr. Marshall said that in a case like theirs a managing director should know something about the business. Mr. Jones was not a mining man.

Dr. Nash said he would rather have waited till Mr. Jones was present.

Angry Voices: He should have been here. He was recalled two months ago.

There was much discussion on the question, but the motion was ultimately carried on the voices by a large majority.

The rules were amended to provide that members holding 250 shares may convene a general meeting in the event of the directors failing to do so after requisition.

The matter of taking into consideration offers made for the sale of the company's property was left in the hands of the directors, it being stated that the matter would have to be submitted to a general meeting before any sale was decided on.

MINING IN PAPUA.

There is considerable activity in the mining industry in Papua, according to Mr. A. L. Joubert, who has just arrived in Sydney from Port Moresby.

"The copper shows around Port Moresby promise well," he said yesterday. "From all appearances the Laloki mine, a few miles out of the township, will turn out an enormous thing. With the provision of transport facilities, a lot of other good properties will be developed. At the present time a lot of attention is being devoted to gold dredging. All the old alluvial fields are practically worked out, as far as primitive methods of alluvial mining are concerned. There are hundreds and hundreds of acres of rich alluvial, with insufficient fall to be ground-sluiced, which should give very handsome returns for dredging or hydraulic jet elevating. This is particularly the case in the Yodda Valley, where the Guinea Gold, Mambare, and other syndicates have secured enormous dredging areas, while others have taken up land on the Mambare River, Tamata Creek, Gira River, and also on Misima and Woodlark Islands.

"On Misima Island a syndicate is working a big lode, which is said to be 500ft high and 100ft wide, running right through the mountain, and averaging 5dwt to 6dwt of gold. But the gold is so fine that they have experienced difficulty in saving it, and now they are going to cyanide everything. A number of mines are being worked on Woodlark, the richest of which—the Woodlark King—is owned by Mr. McLeish. He got 2000oz. last year, and 1600oz. for the fortnight that ended just before I left Samarai. He has only a 3ft 6in mill and works but one shift. There are other privately-owned mines on the island, and I believe they are all pretty good. Anyhow, their owners will neither float nor sell. If they were company-owned you would hear a lot more about them. We have deposits of osmiridium, there being several places in the Yodda Valley where you can get half as much osmiridium as gold."

VICTORIAN SPORTING NOTES.

MELBOURNE, Wednesday.

It may not be wise to attach too much importance to the running of Caulfield Cup candidates at Caulfield to-day. It was a blustery, rainy day. Towards the finish the going was heavy. It is quite certain that more than one horse failed to show true form. This more particularly applied in regard to the Eclipse Stakes, which was run in driving rain.

The imported horse Sea Prince is a sour brute at any time, and to-day he was on his worst behaviour. He was got out into the straight all right, but would not budge more than a couple of yards away from the gate leading on to the course. At last his trainer, E. A. Connolly, threw his open umbrella at him. This is calculated to make the average horse bolt, but Sea Prince was not to be frightened off in that way, and it was not until the clerk of the course came along on his pony that he consented to go up to the starting post. He was troublesome again at the barrier, but when the word was at last given he moved off smartly. At the home turn he looked to have a fair chance, but once in the straight his stable companion, Anna Carlovna, came away, and beat him as she liked. There was no pace on in the first part of the race, and this suited the mare better than Sea Prince, who is a proved stayer.

After the race Anna Carlovna was the horse mostly spoken of in connection with the Caulfield Cup. M'Lachlan, who rode Anna Carlovna, is understood to be very pleased with the way she went in the Eclipse Stakes. It was not until this morning that it was decided to start Anna Carlovna in the Eclipse Stakes, but her trainer was disappointed in not getting a mate to run a gallop with on the track, and as he wished M'Lachlan to get used to her for Saturday's race, he thought it advisable to start her. He backed both Sea Prince and Anna Carlovna. Sea Prince was in want of a race, and his outing to-day may do him good. He meets his stable companion on Saturday on much better terms.

No significance need be attached to Andelosia's form. That it was all wrong is shown by Eubulus finishing well in front of him. Andelosia did not like the rain. He was badly interfered with in the straight, being nearly knocked over the rails.

An Eclipse Stakes winner, it may be mentioned, has three times won the Caulfield Cup in the same year, viz.: 1895 (Marvel Loch); 1906 (Poseidon); and 1907 (Poseidon).

The field for the Coongy Handicap to-day was disappointing. Of the 27 horses figuring on the card, only seven put in an appearance. Offa (8st 11lb) was left at the top of the weights. Effervescence, who was favourite, scored very easily, but the time, as in the Eclipse Stakes, was poor. Offa was second, but he had no chance against the winner in the last furlong, and he does not appear to have improved much since he was here in the autumn. Two Coongy Handicap winners, Hymettus, in 1898, and Dewey, in 1899, have followed up their form by winning the Caulfield Cup.

In the Caulfield Cup, J. Killorn will ride Flaith, P. Kelly Sheriff Muir, Jos. Higgins Golden Shore, and H. Cairns or M. Connell Midnight Sun.

V.A.T.C. SPRING MEETING.

ANNA CARLOVNA WINS ECLIPSE STAKES.

EFFERVESCENCE COONGY HANDICAP.

MELBOURNE, Wednesday.

The Victorian Amateur Turf Club's spring meeting was advanced another stage to-day, the weather being very cold, boisterous, and unsettled. The attendance, however, was very good.

Racing was resumed with the Emo Hurdle Race. There were only a half-dozen starters, and at the finish of betting operations Reigle and the South Australian Hardrada were equal favourites. Hardrada was always at or near the front, and when leading over last hurdle blocked Reigle, who was trying to get up on the inside. It made no difference, however, as Reigle pulled out, and won easily by a couple of lengths from Paymaster, while Hardrada failed to come on, and missed a place.

For the Mona Nursery 34 figured on the card, but only eight went to the post. Traquette opened a strong favourite, and at the finish she was odds-on. After going a hundred yards, Traquette took command, and led for the remainder of the journey. She ran right out after passing the distance, but was still able to win, after an exciting finish, by a short neck from Maharajah. The Welkin filly Andesine was third.

The Eclipse Stakes brought out a field of seven. Sea Prince was an odds-on favourite at the start, but he gradually drifted back, and at the finish was at nine to four, with Anna Carlovna at the same price, and Andelosia at 5 to 2. Heavy rain was falling as the horses came out for the start, and Sea Prince was very bad-tempered. He refused for some time to move away from the gate leading to the course. Golden Goblet and Eubulus made the running, but at the distance Anna Carlovna and Sea Prince ran to the front, and Anna Carlovna coming away, won as she liked by five lengths from her stable companion. Eubulus beat the others. Andelosia did not appear to relish the rain, and always appeared in trouble. He may, however, have got a place, but for being interfered with in the straight. Anna Carlovna is in the Caulfield Cup with 7st 8lb. She will be ridden in that event by W. H. M'Lachlan, who was on her to-day. She shaped much better for M'Lachlan than she did for Turner in the Caulfield Stakes last Saturday.

In a field of a dozen for the Australian Corinthian, St. Constant and Bullawarra were backed against the field. Scottish Chief and Bobbery made the running, and Scottish Chief had a good lead into the straight. St. Constant finished fast, but could not quite get up, and Scottish Chief won by a head. Dollar Dictator beat the others.

There were seven runners for the Coongy Handicap, and Effervescence was a warm favourite. Greek Fire was in the lead to the straight entrance, where Effervescence ran to the front, and was never afterwards troubled, winning as he liked by a couple of lengths from Offa. Effervescence is in the Caulfield Cup with 6st 13lb.

The racing concluded with the Moonga Handicap, run over five and a half furlongs. The top-weight, Valido, was favourite, with Lord Walla next in demand. Quair Burn ran to the front at the home turn, and won, according to the judge, by half a length from Charlatan, with Valido three-quarters of a length away. The majority of the spectators, however, thought that Valido was second. This was the first win scored by Quair Burn since she won the Stanmore two-year-old at Caulfield last November.

Zenith-Jap machine, rode consistently throughout, and was awarded second place. The club secretary, Mr. A. Levi, states he is arranging a speed carnival to be held at Pratten Park in conjunction with other sports clubs events, on Tuesday, November 25. These events will be open to members only.

STATE ELECTIONS.

BELMORE.

Alderman English, candidate for the Belmore seat, addressed a meeting of three or four hundred electors in Waterloo-street, Surry Hills, last night. He was billed as the true and locally-selected Labour candidate, and portion of his speech was given to dealing with the position he took up in the campaign. He was, he claimed, a better Labour man than many in the caucus who had smashed the Labour planks. Why should he be called a Labour rat because he was not in that caucus, and did not bow the knee to the immaculate P.L.L. executive, which was composed of self-seekers and place-hunters? Alderman English went on to detail what he had done as a Labour man, and said that if the electors thought Mr. Minahan had done more they should elect that gentleman. Next Friday, he said, as a result of his efforts, the carters in the employ of the council would each draw £8 back pay. This, he claimed, was one of a number of actions of his as a true Labour man. This he was of his own volition.

SURRY HILLS.

Messrs. R. A. Price and L. O. Martin have decided to submit to the arbitration of Mr. Wade regarding the Liberal selection for Gloucester. Another candidate is Mr. Robert Malcolm, grazier and farmer, of Dumaresque Island. He is seeking the temperance and farmers and settlers' votes.

INTERCLUB CHESS.

EX-CHAMPIONS COMPETING.

There was a splendid attendance last night at the match between the School of Arts and Sydney chess clubs. The result was a runaway victory for the School of Arts players, who won by 8 games to 1.

A most interesting feature of the match was the meeting at the top board of the two retired champions of Australia, Mr. J. L. Jacobsen (School of Arts) and Mr. A. E. N. Wallace (Sydney Chess Club). The game was won by Mr. Jacobsen. On the School of Arts side were two recent arrivals from England, Prof. Robinson and Mr. H. V. Crane.

School of Arts C.C.		Sydney C.C.
Jacobsen	1	Wallace	0
Bradshaw	1	Bagnold (absent)	0
H. V. Crane	1	Britton	0
Robinson	1	Henderson	0
Calvert	1	Spence	0
Baynes	0	Johnston	1
Bracey	1	Ridley	0
Cummings	1	Craig	0
M'Arthur	1	Hardaker	0

AMUSEMENTS.

NATIONAL AMPHITHEATRE.

A number of new turns, recently arrived from America, were presented at the National Amphitheatre at yesterday's matinee. The star item was the Francis M. Hubanik Company, presenting miniature grand opera for the first time in Australia. The "Grand Opera" cast consisted of Frances M. Hubanik, Emili Gilli, Alfonso Romero, and Belle Laurier, the opening production being "The Bells of San Gabriel," with the scene laid at the San Gabriel Mission, California, period 1785. An excellent new turn was that of Dixie Southern, a character comedienne, who created much amusement by her suffragist's stump speech. Kimball Bros. made their first appearance as "The Jolly Messenger Boys," and the Maloney Bros. and Daisy appeared in an amusing acrobatic act. The other newcomers were the Weaver Schulz Trio, in a good turn of "Pianologues and Shadowgraphs."

ELOCUTIONARY RECITAL.

St. James's Hall was crowded with an enthusiastic audience last night, when the pupils of Mrs. Perrins gave an elocutionary recital. All the young people taking part showed excellent and careful training. Amongst those assisting were Miss Ethel Lack, Miss Hilda Byrnes, Miss Amy Perrins, Mr. Eric Harrison, and Mr. S. Barwick. Mrs. Perrins gave a humorous sketch "How Shall I Take Sir John?" and she was warmly applauded and recalled. One of the best items during the evening was a musical monologue by Miss Amy Perrins, "A Tale of a Terrace." Miss Perrins proved herself a musician as well as an artist, and she had to respond to the generous applause. Miss Hilda Byrnes, the possessor of a fine contralto voice, was heard to advantage in "Creation's Hymn," whilst Miss Ethel Lack was well received for her singing of "The Lord is My Light." Others to assist were Miss Amy Birch, Miss Kathleen Gifford, Miss Olive Swaries, Miss Doris Read, Miss Gladys Steen, Miss Trixie Dawes, Miss Millie Huggett, and Miss Linda Turner.

"BOCCACCIO"—MOSMAN MUSICAL SOCIETY.

In their performance of Von Suppe's opera "Boccaccio" the Mosman Musical Society, with their honorary conductor, Mr. A. H. Norman, their enterprising secretary, Mr. A. Longford, and, more particularly, Mr. John Wallace, the present stage director, who was the first, over 30 years ago, to produce the opera in Australia, are to be congratulated on what is perhaps the most successful hitherto of their productions. Miss Dorrie Ward, in the name-part, combines a captivating stage presence with agreeable vocal qualities, and especial praise on the latter score must also be awarded to Miss Mabel Rydelor in the role of Fiametta. Mr. Y. Middleton was admirably at home as the barber Scalza, causing, indeed, a typically early-Florentine appearance, and some enjoyable character-acting was presented by Mr. P. C. M'Conachie in the part of the Prince of Palermo. Hearty applause was evoked in the third act by Miss Lorna Paterson, who executed a skilful pas seul. While not so abounding in well-known airs as some of the older operas, "Boccaccio" is full of music that ripples with joyous harmony from beginning to end, and that was capably well rendered both by the orchestra and the chorus, who showed careful and experienced training. The taste and judgment evinced in the costumes and scenery also call for attention. The piece will be continued at the Warringa Hall, Neutral Bay, till October 18, after which it will be produced at Manly on the 24th and 25th.

VIOLIN RECITAL.

Miss Muriel Andrews gave an invitation concert in the Y.M.C.A. Hall last evening to a crowded audience. She was assisted by Miss Muriel Barton (soprano) and Mr. Herbert Ratcliffe (baritone). Miss Andrews is a violinist of temperament, and the programme she chose for last night gave her full scope for her powers. With the audience the most popular number was "Zigeunerweisen," one of the best known compositions of the violinist-composer, Sarasate. In the first portion of this test piece Miss Andrews displayed fine breadth of tone, and in the second a brilliancy of execution that brought a most appreciative encore. Her playing throughout was marked by a singular clarity of tone and delicacy of touch. Max Bruch's concerto ("Vorspiel Adagio"), more strictly classical perhaps, and full of pitfalls, was not so showy as Sarasate's composition, but Miss Andrews' performance in this was quite on a par with her other work. It was in Beethoven's "Romance" and Bach-Wilhelmj's "Air" that the artist's delicacy of treatment was most noticeable. Her other items were "Fantasia Appassionata" (Vieuxtemps) and "Hungarian Dance" (Brahms-Joachim). Miss Andrews was the recipient of many bouquets from her admirers. Mr. Herbert Ratcliffe's cultured baritone voice was heard to advantage in Maud V. White's rousing song, "King Charles," and in the quieter song of Clay's, "The Sands o' Dee." Miss Muriel Barton sang "Vol che sapete" (Mozart), and bracketed "Three" (Aylward) and "Love's Rhapsody" (d'Hardelot). Her items were warmly applauded. An excellent number was a duet, "In Springtime," by Miss Barton and Mr. Ratcliffe. Mrs. J. Bissell ably presided at the piano.

WINGHAM, Wednesday.

THE KING'S.

FIRST STAGE OF COMPETITION

S. EDWARDS LEADING.

STORMY WEATHER CONDITIONS

Eight hundred riflemen, the picked marksmen of Australia, buoyed up one and all with the high hope of being the King's winner, marched proudly on to Randwick Range to engage in the blue ribbon event of the Australian Bisley.

An hour later, the same contingent, wet and bedraggled, enveloped in greatcoats and waterproofs, and dimly discerned in a blinding rainstorm, straggled back to camp. It was like the retreat from Moscow, the simile being accentuated by the range officers' assistant, a forlorn figure on a white charger, leading the van.

It was not a very auspicious opening for the big event of the carnival. But battles do not wait for a fine day, neither does the N.R.A. Carnival. The programme has to be carried out on schedule time, weather conditions notwithstanding. And in the first stage of the King's all sorts of weather were met with. At the firing of the first shot it was dull and cloudy, with a soft, drizzling rain coming from the west. Then it fined up for a space. By 9 o'clock, however, as the second squad got busy, the rear fish-tail developed into a heavy rainstorm from the west, which swept across the range and almost hid the targets from view.

By 10 o'clock it was fine and fair. The sun shone brightly. Hardly a single fleecy cloud flecked the blue. Overcoats and waterproofs were discarded. Shooting proceeded under something like comfortable conditions, but a strong westerly wind fish-tailing erratically, kept the marksmen thinking all the time. Then the wind sobered down and good scores were registered. Later it took a turn for west-sou'-west, and died down at sunset. But the moon was up before the last men in the Motton match left the mounds.

It was a strenuous day for the champions. At the first range, so exacting were the conditions that none of the competitors managed to notch the possible. Several, however, reached 34, among them being A. Pettitt, Mudgee; L. Swan, Goulburn; H. Love, Jamberoo; J. H. Williams, Melbourne; C. McAlister, Gundagai; A. C. Campbell, Bombala; J. Beatty, Queanbeyan, and F. Gunning, Cooma. A number registered 33, but the average was about 25, while some of the riflemen failed to get out of their teens. At the 500 yards distance, despite the blustering westerly, five competitors scored the possible, and four of these were Sydney men who knew something of the vagaries of the fish-tail. They were S. Magill, Sydney; J. Hammond, Yorkshire Society; W. H. Muir, North Sydney; B. Cousins, Sydney; and A. Parsons, Wollongong. When the two ranges were negotiated the leaders were:—

F. G. Harrison (Randwick L.I.)	33	34	67
O. H. Meithke (Granville T.C.)	33	33	66
A. S. Drysdale (Glen Innes)	32	34	66
G. E. Castley (Coolamon)	33	33	66
J. W. Adams (Rockdale)	33	33	66
E. C. Fame (Kiama)	32	34	66
J. W. Maze (Sydney)	32	33	65
A. J. Green (Parramatta)	32	33	65
M. N. Campbell (Rocky Dam)	32	33	65

When the 600 yards range was reached, Stan Edwards and W. N. Harris, both of Victoria, notched possibles, and the first stage of the King's ended with the following in the lead:—

S. Edwards (Vic.)	99
G. R. Greig (Randwick)	98
W. J. Green (Parramatta)	98
A. S. Parsons (Wollongong)	97
O. E. Boyd (Murwillumbah)	97

The second stage of The King's will be fired to-day, and the Governor will be present.

A new departure has been made this year in The Kings, each stage in the big event counting as a distinct match, besides being a portion of the main test. The scores in the first stage count as a separate match, called the Prince of Wales, and for it £420 was allocated in prize money. It is a great test of short range shooting, and the conditions yesterday were such as tried the contestants to the utmost. Stan. Edwards, the ex-Australian rifle champion (now of Melbourne), who won The King's match in 1908, secured first prize with an aggregate of 98. G. R. Greig, of Randwick, and N. J. Green, of Parramatta, also secured 98, but Edwards's possible at the longest range gave him first money.

For the Motton match, some of the competitors had a steady breeze, with a cloudless sky. Others had a stiff rear fishtail, that defied their efforts to keep on the bull. Others again fired in the fading light, with the sun down and the moon just peeping over the hill. That is the luck of the game. At half-past 6, when the last card was handed in, there were three men with 47 out of the possible 50. They were T. B. Hill of Orange, W. W. Harris of the Victorian Railways, and W. F. Hockey of Millthorpe. In the count-out the Orange shot secured first prize. The Motton last year was won by J. M. Miller, of Gerringong.

It is a curious fact that in the midst of the fusillade that sounds all day long at the range, any shot fired in the wrong direction can be immediately detected by the trained ears of the marksmen; so yesterday morning when a rifle accidentally went off, the riflemen all rushed for their tents to see what had happened. It was almost a tragedy. The rifleman in question had taken his weapon into one of the armourer's tents to be cleaned, and was facing towards the camp with his back to the butts. Without warning the cartridge exploded. The bullet narrowly missed a man, perforated the tent, and travelling about four or five feet from the ground went somewhere between the press tent and the magazine. Fortunately no one was struck. The executive met in the evening and decided to reprimand the offender.

VICTORIA.

MELBOURNE, Wednesday.

The Hospitals and Charities Bill was discussed in committee in the Legislative Assembly. Mr. Hannah secured the passage of an amendment providing that two members of the board of five should be women, and Mr. McLeod, leader of the Country Party, succeeded in having placed in the bill a provision that two members of the board should be conversant with the administration of charitable interests outside the metropolis.

SOUTH AUSTRALIA.

ADELAIDE, Wednesday.

The Assembly, almost immediately after the Speaker took the chair, resumed the discussion on the Constitution Bill in committee, and the Premier, in response to questions from members of the Opposition, stated that it was the intention of the Government to keep the House at work until the measure went right through committee. Labour members stated their intention to fight the bill at every point, and they have so far lived up to that intention. Several divisions have been taken, and in each the majority for the Government has been of such a character as to show that it is impossible to make any alteration in the bill, except with their consent. At 10 o'clock last night Labour members, without assistance from any Ministerialists, had been debating clause 17, which refers to the qualification of the Legislative Council electors, for nearly six hours, the particular amendment under consideration being one moved by the Leader of the Opposition, that, instead of household suffrage franchise for the Legislative Council, it should be adult suffrage. The Assembly has so far sat for 28 hours considering the bill.

CAMDEN COLLEGE.

The annual commemoration in connection with Camden College, the institution for the training of ministers for the Congregational Church, was held in the North Sydney Congregational Church on Tuesday night. Rev. G. Campbell presided, and had with him the warden of the college, Rev. G. W. Thatcher, Rev. A. G. Campbell, and Professor Barraclough.

In an address on "The Claims for an Educated Ministry," Professor Barraclough said that when they recognised the disabilities under which Camden College had laboured, they would realise the great success that had been attained. He could wish that in the past there had always been the same realisation as existed to-day of the need for an educated ministry. The fact was that in this country in the future they were going to have an educated people. Then, again, the minister was right up against the problems of the day, with sociological and economical problems, ethics, and others. He had many responsibilities, in fact, they were enormous.

Other speeches of a congratulatory nature were made.

Lovers of good Tea ought to use "LLOYD'S." It is fit for the highest in our Empire, and within the reach of all.

One Single Pound—or even Half a Pound—will be quite sufficient to convince anyone that LLOYD'S TEA possesses qualities that the ordinary medium grades do not.

The price we charge—1/6—is not high for really fine Tea—the cost, including milk and sugar, is ONLY ONE FARTHING PER CUP.

ALWAYS BUY LLOYD'S 1/6 TEA.

Samples Free to Country Residents on request. Single Pounds sold at our Stores.

COOKS WELL TO-DAY—TO-MORROW—ALWAYS.

That's one thing that is exceptional in the "Success" Stove, you can depend on it roasting, baking, or boiling perfectly every day.

The "Success" No. 1 is suitable for small cottage homes. It is self-setting, compact, with an oven 12 x 9 x 14, and a roomy boiling surface. The cost is only 35s; or if you want to burn wood fuel, we make it with special firebox, at 37s 6d.

FRIDAY'S A LUCKY DAY.

Lots of folks with a grain of superstition in their temperament consider Friday an unlucky day. It's a day of good luck, though, at Fay's; for on Friday nights all the Fay Shoe Stores are simply blocked with happy shoppers, reaping the benefit of Fay's BIG VALUES. We do our best to serve everyone, and our customers do not seem to mind a little inconvenience, but on Friday nights we really cannot serve ALL who flock to our four shoe stores.

THE BEST IS CHEAPEST

—is a well-known saying, and true. Nowadays, with so many cheap articles for sale, it is often hard to choose the genuine.

When buying Calico, look for Ferguson's name and Trade mark.

FERGUSON'S CALICO

contains no starch or misleading fillings, and has a delightfully soft finish. It washes and wears well, and is easier to make up.

Look for Ferguson's name on the selvedge, it is there for your protection.

Do you know "SUNDOUR" Window Holland, the splendid material that is absolutely unfadeable? Ask to see it.

IF YOU NEVER ATE

ARNOTT'S SHREDDED WHEATMEAL BISCUITS

You cannot afford to put off trying them any longer. They please the most critical taste.

They are appropriate at the most formal functions, and are welcome anywhere.

Almost every day there is some occasion when they are exactly what you want.

Order a tin to-day and keep it in the house. The Biscuits will not get stale or lose their delightful flavour—the air-tight tin ensures that.

ARNOTT'S ONLY!"

THE PAINLESS WAY.

Formerly Pain was a "red flag" that scared people away from necessary dental treatment. The "MOSES METHOD" has changed the colour. It is the "green flag" that tells patients that the way is open to "COMPLETE DENTAL RELIEF" along the path of perfect painlessness.

I confidently say just two words to you, "DON'T SUFFER." Don't put up with the pain and discomfort of bad teeth, or with the pain that usually attends the improving or removing them. I can SAVE YOU ALL PAIN!

I have an apparatus—the only one in Sydney—for the painless drilling and filling of tender teeth. No matter how sensitive the tooth, my treatment entails no pain. I give written guarantees with my work. If a filling should fail or a tooth should break off a plate, during five years after treatment, I cheerfully repair the mishap. The work is good and lasting. It is most rare that a defect appears.

If you should feel any pain during an extraction I will hand you £5. And there will be no painful pricking, no swollen gums, no broken teeth. I can extract even abscessed teeth painlessly. My method will not affect you if your heart be weak.

OPEN TILL 6 P.M. DAILY (Sats. included), UNTIL 9 P.M. FRIDAYS.

ANOTHER SHIPMENT OF THOSE

SPLENDID LAWN MOWERS.

Our first shipment went like the proverbial hot cakes, and left us very short of the line till this lot arrived.

They are Mowers that have the advantage without the high prices—a good make, good materials, well finished, light running.

THE "SHEFFIELD" MOWER AT 24/

is a nice little mower at a medium price. Of course, we have many lower-priced ones, but we pin great faith to the "SHEFFIELD." There's nothing wrong with it, and there are plenty of higher-priced mowers in town that we would be pleased to place our "SHEFFIELD" alongside.

You'll like to see it on your lawn, and you'll find it run like a bicycle.

Notices of BIRTHS and DEATHS cannot be inserted in this journal unless endorsed with the name and address of the person by whom they are sent.

Notices of MARRIAGES cannot be inserted unless certified as correct by the officiating Minister or Registrar.

All Advertisements charged to account must bear the authorisation of insertion. The number of times they are to appear must be stated; otherwise they will be inserted until countermanded. No verbal communication will be attended to.

While every care is exercised, the Proprietors do not hold themselves responsible for non-insertion of advertisements through accidents or otherwise, and they reserve to themselves the right of omitting advertisements received and paid for in the usual course of business if they appear to be objectionable.

ADVERTISEMENTS are classified as far as possible for the convenience of readers. BUT NO CLASSIFICATION CAN BE MADE UNLESS THE OBJECT OF THE ADVERTISEMENT IS DISTINCTLY STATED IN THE ADVERTISEMENT ITSELF AND ON THE MS. No guarantee is given that Advertisements shall appear under any special heading.

Advertisers in the country may make payment by Cheque, Money-order, Postal Note, or Postage Stamps. Exchange should be added to country Cheques.

For the convenience of advertisers, replies to advertisements may be sent to the Herald Office, Hunter-street, also to the Branch Office, King-street; but the Proprietors do not accept any responsibility in this respect.

The Pillar Box at Sydney Railway Station for receipt of Advertisements and Communications is cleared every week-day at 8.30 and 9.30 p.m.; Sundays at 9.30 p.m.
